Stout Heart Fails After Four Days of Suffering

Pope Succumbs

Warm Simplicity Won Him Love Of All Faiths

(Times News Service)

VATICAN CITY—Pope John XXIII, spiritual leader of 500,000,000 Roman Catholics, died today at the age of 81.

He died on the fourth day of a dramatic fight against the disease from which he had suffered for more than a year—a stomach tumor, complicated since Friday by peritonitis.

The pope died at 7:49 p.m. (11:49 a.m. PDT), it was officially announced.

He died the day after Whitsun, feast of Pentecost, an occasion which was always very dear to him.

The Pope had reigned for four years, seven months and six days.

Death came only nine minutes after echoes of an extraordinary outdoor sunset mass in St. Peter's Square died away.

There at least 20,000 of all faiths and nationalities had joined in prayer for the dying Pope.

An announcement on Vatican radio broadcast the news to the world, first in Italian, in a calm but sorrowful voice.

His death also leaves up in the air recent Vatican contacts with the Communist regimes of Hungary and Poland.

It came just before President Kennedy, the first Roman Catholic president of the United States, had planned to call on the Pontiff.

Pope John was born Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, son of a Northern Italian farm couple.

Comparatively Short Reign

His comparatively short reign, his warm simplicity, his great concern for his fellow men of all faiths and his outspoken dedication to peace, Christian unity and social justice made him one of the most loved popes in the long history of the church.

His last days were spent in suffering relieved only when he fell into coma. Crisis had followed crisis and still his astonishing heart pumped life through his veins. His fever rose and so did his pulse rate. He was in what the Vatican called "atrocious pain." But he clung to a crucifix on his breast and suffered with fortitude. When he could, he concentrated on prayer.

High church dignitaries and his sister and three brothers—peasant folk from northern Italy—were in the palace when he died.

The Pope was stricken a year ago with a stomach tumor that caused hemorrhaging, but he continued his heavy tasks virtually to the end.

A grave relapse occurred two weeks ago and he suffered a final crisis last Friday when peritonitis set in.

The Pope's death automatically terminates the major undertaking of his reign—the second Vatican ecumenical council. One of his successor's first major decisions will be whether to continue the council. It has been in recess since Dec. 8 and was scheduled to resume Sept. 8.

Embassies and legations of the 50 nations which have diplomatic relations with the Vatican were immediately notified of the Pope's death.

CARDINALS TOLD

So were cardinals throughout the world who must come to Rome for the conclave to elect a new church ruler.

The conclave must start in 18 days. It could be sooner because of the speed of modern transportation.

But it cannot begin before a 15-day waiting period, including nine days of mourning.

The cardinals in Rome will gather as quickly as possible to take up the "interregnum," the period until a new pontiff is elected.

The cardinal chamberlain—83-year-old Italian-born Benedetto Aloisi Masella—became the central figure in the college on the Pope's death.

During the interim period, he is sort of an administrator, a "first among equals" in the College of Cardinals.

The Crisis In Quebec

(The position of Quebec province within Canada's Confederation appears to be undergoing strange changes. There are strong "nationalist" feelings, some going so far as to propose withdrawal from Canada and setting up of a separate republic. What are the reasons? What may result? Peter Regenstreif, whose articles analyzing the last election campaign—with an extremely accurate forecast—appeared in the Times, starts a five-part series today seeking the answers to these questions.)

The Red ensign trampled underfoot.

Declarations that "Canada's last chance" has arrived.

A government elected in Quebec on the slogan "maitres chez-nous."

Indeed, the events of the past few months in the Province of Quebec point to political behavior patterns that are far more characteristic of "underdeveloped" areas than of a region of a supposedly "advanced" western society.

One of the most noteworthy aspects of Canadian society is the existence of a large, readily identifiable, minority of French-Canadians with its own language, religion and educational system. In fact, it is possible to analyze the course of this country's history simply in terms of French-English relations.

In attempting to explain any developments in Quebec, it is always a good rule to bear in mind just what that history is.

Since 1763, when the British wrested control over most of the territory now called Canada from France, the French living in the British "new world" have tended to feel that they were a conquered people. After uncertain beginnings, the colonial authorities made little or no attempt to interfere with the habits and practices of their new subjects.

Through Church

Instead, the British, heavily outnumberd, dealt with French-Canada through the Roman Catholic Church, the only remaining focus of recognized authority in the area.

While the British North America Act firmly and irrevocably guaranteed to the French, now a minority, their own religion, school system and code of law, and established both French and English as the "official" languages of the country a century later, the French have never lost their conviction that they were in constant danger of having their culture submerged and their autonomy revoked by what they considered to be pernicious English influences.

It is difficult to demonstrate how much of this attitude is based on fact and how much on fantasy. It is, as might be expected, a mixture of both. The point is, that this is an important part of the French-Canadian ideological system.

Isolation from the rest of the country, religious and cultural differences and the self-consciousness of their elites, small in number but intense in conviction, have fed one upon the other. The process has been aided, at least until recently, by the semi-feudal structure of French-Canadian society and role of the Roman Catholic Church, always conscious of its position.

Historical Base

This self-image of a conquered and maltreated minority has some strong historical bases and any self-respecting French-Canadian intellectual can reel off the string of past events, all of which he considers "defeats" similar to the one suffered in 1763; the hanging of Louis Riel in 1885; the difficulties over the educational rights of French-Canadians in Manitoba in the 1890's; Canada's involvement in the Boer War; the schools question in Saskatchewan and Alberta in 1905.

Canada's participation in a naval program with Great Britain in 1909-1910, Ontario's rule 17 which limited the teaching of French in the schools in that province; conscription in 1917 and 1944. The list is endless.

Then there is always the attitudes and the practices the French-Canadian (especially the intellectual and the professional) perceives not only in his own province but throughout Canada: the fact that bilingualism is confined to Quebec and that outside of a few enclaves around Cornwall, in northern New Brunswick, Ontario, Alberta and in St. Boniface in Manitoba, French is just another foreign language, that the federal civil service is not really a friendly place for him; that, in his own province the top-most positions of power and influence in the economic structure are held by "Les Anglais"; and that, in terms of economic development, his people lag behind other Canadians who, in some cases, are living in areas less well-endowed by either nature or location than is his own province.

It is not surprising, then that for some French-Canadians, democracy in itself is

First Over the Line

In the storm between the calms, City of Victoria trophy winner Adios, Seattle Yacht Club, makes the most of winds which varied over the weekend from downright wonderful to downright non-existent. Carl Jensen's sloop picked up speed sometime during the night, stormed around the Swiftsure marker (HMCS Beacon Hill) and fled home under spinnaker. Elapsed time 30:12:48.

Sloop Thetis Wins But Protest Filed

By MONTE ROBERTS

A veteran contender in the Swiftsure Ocean Yacht racing classic, R. L. Regan's masthead sloop Thetis sailing out of Seattle Yacht Club, appears to be the winner of the main trophy, based on corrected time.

She was first boat home in BB Class to win the class trophy, and saved her time to edge out bigger class A and AA boats which finished ahead of her.

However, a protest has been filed against the Thetis, and will be considered by the Pacific International Yachting Association committee in Vancouver.

Precedent would indicate the protest will be disallowed. The nature of the protest has not been revealed.

First boat home, in the official overall time of 30 hours 12 minutes 48 seconds, was Carl Jensen's big sloop Adios, also a well-known figure in many Swiftsures. But she was beaten in AA Class on corrected time by another Seattle Yacht Club entry, Robert Coe's Sea Fever.

The A class trophy went to another sloop, Odusa sailed by E. H. Zahn, Corinthian Yacht Club, with a Maple Bay entry, Cormorant, second.

Thetis, of course, is the BB winner as well as Swiftsure winner. Despite a determined battle by Dana Ramsay's Royal Victoria entry Condor—a first time contender—R. B. Gregory's plucky little Cirrus won the B class for Tacoma Yacht Club.

The shorter C Class race, to Clallam Bay and return, was won by Henry Vogel's Aida, Royal Vancouver, followed by Maia V of West Vancouver.

FIVE MISSING ON SWIFTSURE 1962 ENTRY

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The yacht Morning Star reported Sunday she was sinking fast with five persons aboard and an extensive search of Bahamian waters failed to turn up any sign of survivors.

Three planes and a U.S. Navy ship criss-crossed the blue waters 250 miles southeast of Nassau for hours without success. An all-night search under flares was planned.

Someone on the yacht came on the Nassau marine telephone about 4 p.m. He said the craft was taking on water fast and would sink within 15 or 20 minutes.

The 98-foot ketch was entered in last year's Swiftsure race but was was late in arriving at Victoria and did not start. She several times has been first boat home in the Trans-Pac race running from San Francisco to Honolulu.

HONG KONG GETS RAIN; MORE NEEDED

HONG KONG (AP)—A 10-hour rain hit this drought-stricken British colony today and reservoirs netted more than 80,000,000 gallons of water. Officials estimated the .91-inch of rainfall was sufficient for two days' consumption by the colony's 3,500,000 residents. Hong Kong needs at least 50 inches of rain before the dry winter months set in. Residents have been receiving four hours of water supply every four days since Saturday.

'Inspiring Example To All of Us'

News of Pope John's passing was wirelessed to Bishop de Roo of Victoria aboard the RCN frigate HMCS Beacon Hill soon afternoon today.

The bishop, who sailed early today for Tofino and a tour of Vancouver Island's West Coast missions, issued this message:

"From the human point of view, Pope John's death at this time is a tragic loss. However, he has been an inspiring example to all of us in the courageous manner in which he has accepted his suffering.

"By offering his sufferings and death for the Church and for peace, he has made a magnificent contribution to God's plan for the revitalization of society.

"We shall all pray that the work begun by the late Pope will be brought to completion in our time."

Pope John honored him with the personal gift of a bishop's ring and, noting his youthfulness, referred to him as "Our Benjamin."

Solemn requiem mass for the Pope will be conducted in St. Andrew's Cathedral Tuesday at 11 a.m. by Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the diocese.

Prayers have been offered in all Roman Catholic churches during the Pope's illness and were intensified when his condition became serious.

Montreal Police Nab 8 In Raid on Terrorists

MONTREAL (CP) — City police are holding eight men suspected of being members of a terrorist group known as le Front de Liberation Quebecois.

This was disclosed at a press conference today by Police Director J. Adrien Robert and confirmed what other police informants said Sunday night.

But he declined to identify the men or disclose details of the detentions. "If we disclose more information quickly, it may compromise our investigation," he said.

Mr. Robert added that most of the detained men are French-speaking Canadians in their late teens or early 20s. He declined to disclose the nationality of those who are not French-Canadians.

LED BY BELGIAN

Reports in Montreal newspapers say the leader of the group is a 33-year-old Belgian who got training in revolutionary tactics in Cuba since he settled in Canada 15 years ago. The Star attributes its information along these lines to an unnamed police informant.

Mr. Robert said it is too early to say whether the FLQ had any connection with Communists.

Further arrests and detentions were possible. He estimated the size of the FLQ at possibly fewer than 20.

Mr. Robert said if any of the men are held criminally responsible for the lone death as a result of bombing activity they "most likely" will be charged with murder, but this

BOTH SIDES MUM ON TOPICS

Columbia Teams Open Talks

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Liberal government today opened negotiations with the B.C. government on Columbia River development. Both sides promptly agreed to extend to two days the originally scheduled one-day conference.

When the discussions broke up for lunch, B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin agreed in their descriptions of the conference so far.

"Very useful discussions," Mr. Bennett said. "Very friendly. I am very pleased so far."

"The discussions were very useful," Mr. Martin said. "They were approached by both sides with a sense of co-operation and common purpose."

NO DETAILS

Neither side, however, would discuss any detail of problems that might be in the way of an agreed B.C.-federal scheme for Columbia development in co-operation with the U.S.

When asked what was the main differing point, Mr. Bennett said he would rather make note of the "points we are agreed on." He did not say what these points were, however.

Following the lunch break and oral question period opening today's sitting of the House of Commons, the discussions continued for the balance of the afternoon. They were to continue Tuesday morning.

BIG TEAMS

The talks, initiated by Prime Minister Pearson, opened at 10.30 a.m. (EDT) in the prime minister's office. Accompanying Mr. Bennett were B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, and co-chairmen of B.C. Hydro, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside and Dr. Gordon Shrum. With Mr. Pearson were Mr. Martin, Resources Minister Arthur Laing, Forestry Minister John Nicholson and Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary, Jack Davis, Liberal MP for Coast-Capilano.

After 40 minutes in Mr. Pearson's office, the group left Mr. Pearson to resume their talks in an East Block conference room, while Mr. Pearson kept other appointments.

Then, two hours later, Mr. Bennett emerged to tell reporters how pleased he had been with the discussions, including those with Mr. Pearson. Asked if any new ground had been broken, Mr. Bennett said, "all ground is new ground."

He said the "spirit was of the best," both in the prime minister's office and later. There had been "constructive headway."

Mr. Martin, standing beside Mr. Bennett in the glare of TV floodlights, was asked if he saw an early end to Columbia discussions and an early start on the project.

"We are getting along very well," he said. "When the conference is over I will be able to answer more definitely. This is a very important problem and we are trying, each of us, to meet a common objective."

suspec[illegible] their eyes, it means [illegible] the rule of the majority against the minority—the preponderance of numbers as against rights.

Since most of the province's rights were established before democracy in its 20th century form became a reality in Canada, the entire constitutional system by which this country has ordered its political life has for a long time been subject to question.

A good rule for English-Canadians to recognize, too, is that Confederation is not looked upon by the French as merely a legal document passed by the British Parliament in Westminster (and therefore another symbol of conquest) but as a solemn compact between the two historic "races" in Canada.

Therefore, as one of the "charter groups" of this country, the French feel they have special claims upon it. Agree with this or not, this is one of the most important facts of Canadian political life.

All Influenced

Obviously, much of the foregoing represents attitudes which are consciously held and articulated by a small minority. Many are outside the mainstream of the hum-drum existence which is the characteristic of every society, not only the French-Canadian. But all French-Canadians are somehow influenced by it.

While they may deplore extremism of all kinds, they also can look with a certain sympathy born of intense ethnic identification upon the efforts of even the most irresponsible of the Separatists or "Nationalists."

Undoubtedly, many will pooh-pooh the present agitation in "La Belle province" as being merely another in the long line of manifestations of "La Dualite Canadienne." However, these recent events are different for two very basic reasons.

In the first place, this questioning of the manner in which Confederation has worked itself out for French-Canadians has reached the highest circles of public life.

Discussing the subject of French-English relations in an interview last week, Quebec's renowned Natural Resources Minister Rene Levesque laid it on the line:

Just a Bargain

"Confederation isn't sacred, you know. It is just a bargain made 100 years ago. It has become a bad bargain. Sometimes the only thing you can do with a bad bargain is to get out of it. And that can be done democratically."

Secondly, contrary to previous experience, the discontent voiced in various circles of French-Canada does not revolve around one specific event—such as conscription or an "autonomy" bill—but around a whole complex of economic, political and social factors which are now all coming together to create a crisis not only for Quebec but for Canada as a whole.

Probably what underlines this crisis more than anything else is the resolution passed in the Quebec legislature last week calling for a provincial commission to examine "the needs of French-Canadians" under a new constitution. It is clear that Canada is at another one of its crossroads.

The succeeding articles of this series will try to analyze just what the elements of this emergency and what some of the possible remedies might be.

CANADIANS PAY TRIBUTE

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Vanier, Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker paid tribute to Pope John.

Gen. Vanier said:

"The people of Canada share the sorrow of the whole world at the death of His Holiness Pope John XXIII.

"There is universal mourning. Indeed it is not only a loss for Christianity but for all humanity who recognized in the Holy Father a heart open to all, a shepherd of a fold with open doors.

"John XXIII was a great Pope; in spite of years, young in action, firm of purpose and a leader whose authority was unquestioned.

WAS CLOSE FRIEND

"I mourn a friend with whom I was intimately associated for nearly nine years when he was dean of the diplomatic corps in Paris. The heads of mission realized very quickly that their dean was a consummate diplomat with a keen intellect, innate tact, and a fine political sense. But Monseigneur Roncalli was much more than just diplomat; to all it was obvious that he was deeply spiritual in his outlook and life.

"Although the pontificate of John XXIII was short, his accomplishment was great. He succeeded in creating a climate of brotherhood in the world and won the confidence of all men of good will. He spread the reign of God which is the reign of truth, of justice and of peace.

MEMORY ENGRAVED

"The memory of John XXIII will live. It will be engraved on the hearts of man in letters of love."

Mr. Pearson's tribute:

"May I, on behalf of the government and people of Canada' express my deep and profound sympathy on the death of His Holiness Pope John XXIII.

"During the relatively short period of his pontificate his holiness won the admiration and deep respect of peoples of all religious faiths . . ."

Mr. Diefenbaker's tribute:

"The passing of Pope John XXIII has brought sorrow to all Christendom. His devotion to and the influence he exercised in the cause of world peace had made him in a few short years one of the most outstanding Popes in modern history.

"In the four and a half years since he became Pope he had become a world voice for peace and social betterment for all mankind."

SECOND-HAND STORE CROSS FOR BURIAL

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) —Pope John said Sunday he wants to be buried wearing a pectoral cross which he bought in a Milan second-hand store in 1926, a Vatican spokesman said.

Msgr. Angelo Roncalli, as the Pope then was, saw the cross in a store in a side street a year earlier.

The owner asked 1,000 lire, which the future Pope did not have with him. He said he would call again later.

It was not until a year had passed that the priest returned to the store for the cross.

ceased to be secretary of state on the Pope's death.

It was Cardinal Aloisi Masseja, in his capacity as cardinal chamberlain, who formally certified the death of Pope John. He then took possession of the apostolic palace and sent emissaries to take possession of other papal properties around Pope, including the basilica of St. John Lanteran and the papal summer residence at Castel Gandolfo south of Rome.

But Cardinal Aloisi Masella did not move into the papal apartment, following a procedure established by Pope Pius XII. The cardinal ordered the papal apartment sealed, to be left empty until a new pope moves in.

TAKES OVER POST

During the interregnum, the office of secretary of state—normally the highest Vatican post under the pope—will be filled by the secretary of the College of Cardinals. He is a 58-year-old Sicilian, Archbishop Francesco Carpino.

The Pope's three brothers and sister were with him when he died. Just minutes before the death announcement came the Vatican press office had said they and the Pope's confessor, Rt. Rev. Alfredo Cavagna, and Cardinal Cicognani had been in the apartment following from there the mass in St. Peter's square.

The extraordinary mass was celebrated on an improvised altar placed outside the basilica under the balcony from which Pope John had given his first blessing the evening he was elected Pope, Oct. 28, 1958.

The Vatican press office said those in the Pope's apartment, overlooking the square, followed the mass and "united themselves spiritually with the people in the square."

Many Faiths Prayed For Pope of Peace

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — With uncommon unanimity, men of many faiths throughout the world Sunday watched ailing Pope John XXIII struggle with death, prayed for him and praised him as a man of peace in an angry age.

In large gatherings, in small groups or in private—on both sides of the iron curtain—Roman Catholics and non-Catholics turned their thoughts and hopes to the humble Italian tenant-farmer's son who dedicated his reign as Roman Catholic pontiff to peace on earth and good will toward men.

Protesants and Jews joined Catholics in prayers for him. Communists joined capitalists in praise of him.

Speaking in England's ancient Canterbury Cathedral, the archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, described Pope John as a man who had captured the imagination of the world.

"The hearts of Christians everywhere go out to one man—a great Christian of our time," said Dr. Ramsey, the highest-ranking prelate of the Church of England.

PRAY IN MOSCOW

A dozen Catholics gathered in the afternoon in Moscow's St. Louis of the French church to pray for the Pope. The church was briefly opened between masses. It is usually kept locked.

After radio broadcasts of the arrests Sunday night, the switchboard operator at police headquarters received a call that the building would be blown up.

There was no indication that the person who made the threat tried to carry it through.

FLQ terrorists have claimed in mimeographed statements to the press that they want to win Quebec's independence through violence. They have claimed responsibility for a series of bombings and other acts of sabotage in Montreal, starting with the tossing of Molotov cocktail incendiaries at Montreal armories March 8.

CALLED MAJOR BREAK

Mr. Robert told the press conference in his large office that the detention of the eight men is "a major break" in the investigation. Some 35 newspaper, radio and television reporters fired questions in French and English at Mr. Robert who answered in either language.

With Mr. Robert were two Crown prosecutors and six city detectives working on the team assigned to crack the FLQ.

Mr. Robert said the eight men were picked up Saturday night and early Sunday morning singly and in groups, adding:

"We tracked down thoroughly about 500 sources of information. It was just one good detail which really enabled us to break the case, and it came more or less unexpectedly."

Dynamite, detonators, alarm clocks and various types of wire were seized by police during the raids. There were 150 sticks of dynamite seized during the police raids.

TECHNIQUES TAUGHT

By JOHN HALL

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—About 25 Negro high school and college students sat in a semi-circle in a corner of a large auditorium, intensely watching a "white lunch counter" — two small tables and two chairs.

David Dennis, 22, of Jackson, a field worker for the Congress of Racial Equality, conducted a class on non-violence for the youths, who would take the places of other Negroes arrested at lunch counters downtown.

James Wooten, 16, a Jackson Negro high school student, asked for a cup of coffee. The "waitress," Mrs. Willie Robinson, 26, of Taylorsville, Miss., gruffly replied, "sorry, but we don't serve Niggers in here."

The "white agitator"—CORE worker George Raymond, 20, of New Orleans—rushed Wooten, slammed him to the floor, beating him on the shoulders and kicking at his face.

"No, no. You got too many places open," Dennis interrupted. "You could get a judo chop on the back of your neck. Curl up, pull your knees up, crouch up. Let's try it again."

By the third try Wooten rolled smoothly to the ground, pulling himself into a tight ball, with his hands clasped protectively behind his neck. "That was good," Dennis said, "any questions?"

"Look man, what if this agitator has a knife?" one asked.

"Well, if he has a knife there's very little you can do," Dennis said. "You can try to run," he added.

"When you fight the individual you're not touching his sin. This is something that has grown up in him since he was a little boy. He's been told to say 'Nigger, Nigger' all his life.

"You, there, what good can violence do at this time? Why is it so important to use non-violence?" the Negro teacher asked.

A hand in the back shot up. "Mainly because we're trying to play on his — the white man's conscience," a young Negro said.

"Rimht. It's a fight of the righteous against the sinner, and you are trying to fight one sin, not the individual," Dennis said.

The class moved to lessons on how to picket and participate in mass marches. Dennis told them non-violence did not demand they stop defending themselves, only passivity for "a demonstration with a specific goal."

Russ Will Let Cuba Make Sugar Profits

NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviet Union has allowed Cuba to divert 1,000,000 tons of sugar to the world market this year to take advantage of rising prices the New York Times reports.

As a major concession to Premier Castro, the paper says in a dispatch from Washington, Cuba was allowed to sell sugar to 18 countries in Europe, Africa, Asia and Latin America for an estimated $140,000,000 U.S. in foreign exchange.

The newspaper says this was the largest amount of convertible hard cash the Havana regime has taken in since the United States cancelled the Cuban sugar quota in 1960.

These earnings, it says, represent perhaps one-fourth of what Cuba normally received from the United States in the days of the quota.

CONSIGNED

Since 1961, Cuba's entire production has been consigned to the Soviet bloc under a barter arrangement.

Trade informants were quoted as saying the Soviet concession was negotiated secretly last December in Moscow by a Cuban economic mission and Cuba received an average of 7.22 cents a pound for the 1,000,000 tons from her crop.

The Times reports that trade quarters said countries receiving the Cuban sugar were led by Morocco with 274,000 tons, followed by Japan with 160,000 tons, Britain with 130,000, Egypt and Italy with 80,000 each, Canada with 65,000, Iraq with 60,000, Finland with 45,000 and Chile and Ceylon with 20,000 each.

B.C. Fishermen Lobby Against Pacific Pact

OTTAWA (CP)—A delegation from the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.) began a new effort today to have Parliament take up the issue of Japanese fishing in north Pacific areas for herring and halibut.

The group began a lobby of individual MPs in an effort to get a Commons debate on the subject and to have the Commons fisheries committee study recent government action on the North Pacific Fisheries Treaty among Japan, the United States and Canada.

Early this month the government announced, in face of protests from the union, that it accepts recommendations of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission to permit Japan to fish for herring west of the Queen Charlotte Islands and for halibut in the eastern Bering Sea.

The west coast fishermen conducted a campaign against acceptance of the recommendations during the last Parliament. Following the change of government April 22, the fishermen met Fisheries Minister Robichaud on the question.

A union spokesman said Mr. Robichaud left the impression the Liberal government would refer it to the Commons committee before taking any action. Acceptance of the commission recommendations was announced May 8.

The union group plans to meet the New Democratic Party caucus today and see Mr. Robichaud Wednesday. Attempts are being made to have an all-party meeting of B.C. MPs and union representatives.

'Wrongly Freed' Woman Sent Back to Prison

MOSCOW (AP)—A convicted woman spy has been sent to prison for another 16 years after protests from newspaper readers that she was wrongly released under a 1956 amnesty.

A Soviet weekly newspaper, Nedyelya, quoted the prosecutor-general Saturday as saying the woman, Nanetta Sevyastyanova, was sentenced in 1947 to 25 years in prison. She was found guilty of acting as a Nazi agent inside a Ukrainian resistance group and causing the execution of three of its members.

The prosecutor, who was sent protest letters from readers following an earlier article on the case, said it was not possible to sentence her to death in 1947 because the death sentence did not then exist.

They booked him on a felony charge and released him on $1,000 bond.

Cold War Issues Mixed Up In World Food Conference

WASHINGTON (CP) — A vast army of scientists, scholars and statesmen representing a world plagued by increasing hunger and rising food surpluses opens a two-week conference Tuesday.

Results could be important for Canadian farmers and for the Canadian treasury. For the men who planned this world food congress already agree that the turbulent undernourished areas, particularly in eastern Asia, require huge new sources of food and that the industrialized countries with unsold stockpiles in their bins should do more to aid their fellow men.

But the reported biggest need of all — to be able to tackle this problem on a global scale and under global co-operation — is likely to go unresolved as the estimated 1,000 delegates express their views and proposals. Here, as in other places, the cold war intervenes.

Communist China has one of the biggest food and population problems. But because Red China is not a member of the United Nations, it has not been invited to attend. And yet a lot of congress discussion will dwell on China's 700,000,000 population and the Chinese struggle for food.

SHOWS LITTLE INTEREST

Russia, preoccupied by political problems at home, has shown little interest in the gathering which is designed to stimulate action by nations and governments by generating public concern. Decisions of the delegates are not binding on their governments.

In contrast, India has shown deep interest and yet at the same time is equally concerned about developing a huge and expensive defence machine to ward off any new Red Chinese military threat. These two countries with the world's population problems are devoting huge sums for military might that otherwise may help ease hunger pains.

And ironically, the United States which has managed to build large grain and other surpluses—described by India as a magnificent natural blessing—is attempting to persuade American farmers to produce less because surpluses are piling.

President Kennedy; Sir Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, president of India, and U Thant, UN secretary-general, will set the theme of the talks with opening day speeches.

Pope John XXIII

MEMBERS OF THE ROMAN Catholic faith see in the death of Pope John the passing of a man who brought to his exalted office the priestly attributes of his humble beginnings, a man whose kind and neighborly spirit surmounted the enforced protocol that surrounds the head of their church to warm and charm all who met him.

The rest of the world recognizes that here was a man who, achieving international prominence in the closing years of his life, exerted a powerful influence for Christian unity and international co-operation which should help substantially to mould events as the world struggles to find stability in a nuclear age.

Moving vigorously and actively, Pope John made new approaches to the Communist world and elicited a measure of respect from the Kremlin and rapprochement with Russia which held great promise.

This was a man who, while committed to religious leadership, was at the same time a statesman of world stature who based his appeal for improved conditions on the basic premise of the inherent dignity and sanctity of the individual. On that basis he sought unity in Christendom and understanding in the rest of the world with marked preliminary success. Through the Ecumenical Council, whose calling was a highlight of his short reign, he sought also to reconcile with the twentieth century the age-old dogmas of his church.

These were high endeavors by a man in high position. But by most of those concerned, Pope John will be remembered as the parish priest who in taking on new honors never lost his old ones, but maintained the warmth of true humanity to the end.

Two Sets of Laws for Addicts?

MR. R. C. HAMMOND, Canada's narcotic control division chief, says that 10 per cent of the drug addicts in this country are professional people and of these, three-quarters are in the medical profession.

Few of the professional people are prosecuted for possessing narcotics, he adds, and even when arrested the charge against them is usually the less serious one of falsifying or obtaining a prescription illegally.

The Toronto Globe and Mail uses these statistics and the confession of what amounts to a double standard in Canada's legal action against drug users to argue an interesting case for a change in the law for addicts.

On the basis of the Hammond statement, the addicts in the medical profession — about one-thirteenth of the total in Canada—not only escape the more rigorous court penalties for illegal possession of narcotics but, acquiring drugs through legal channels, pay for them only a fraction of what the so-called "criminal" addict is charged on the black market. For a few cents, instead of as many dollars, the preferred class can obtain sufficient narcotics to meet physical requirements.

At this price, the medical addict can presumably preserve a condition of physical competence and comfort sufficient to allow him to carry on his regular work. He is not, as is the ordinary addict, forced into crime to acquire the approximate $10 a day required by the average person dependent on illicitly sold narcotics.

The Globe and Mail asks: "If the 10 per cent of addicts who belong to the professions are able to maintain their habits while otherwise living within the law, what would happen if narcotics were made legally available to the other 90 per cent?" Some, it suggests, would cease to be a criminal problem. They wouldn't have to steal—and usually they have to steal items worth six times the value at which they can dispose of them to a "fence"—to meet the demands made upon them by their addiction.

There are certain qualifications which must be applied to this argument. Addicts among professional people, it is to be assumed, are probably better educated and more intelligent than others suffering from the habit. They could be expected to hold their use of narcotics down to a minimum — not allowing the craving to build up demands for constantly rising doses.

Moreover, criminal addicts would not necessarily cease to be criminals if legally accessible and relatively cheap narcotics were made available to them.

On the other hand, if they steal only to buy their supplies at the inflated prices of peddlers, then the reason for such crime would be removed or greatly reduced.

The Globe and Mail leaves an implied question that deserves a considered answer: If professional people suffering from drug addiction can obtain inexpensive narcotics, use them and still be otherwise useful citizens, why couldn't other addicts, with similar access to supplies, lead relatively normal lives in spite of addiction?

Jobs for the Handicapped

"A GOOD, STEADY JOB IS THE most important thing in a man's life," in the opinion of Mr. George Gray, volunteer managing director of Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped. Mr. Gray speaks from experience. In his annual report to the Rotary Club on 1962 operations of Goodwill in this area, he demonstrated what this project has meant to unfortunate persons who would otherwise have been denied gainful employment.

The local program was, in the beginning, a dream of Mr. Fred Blakeney, a courageous victim of multiple sclerosis. Five years ago he appealed to Victoria Rotary for organizational help and under the initiative of Dr. Reginald Wride it was assumed as a club project. Shortly thereafter Mr. Gray took over as president and managing director, enlisted a number of fellow Rotarians as directors, and applied the management know-how which ensured the success of the venture.

During the past year, employment grew to 140. Sales reached $191,750. When Rotary ways and means chairman Kenneth Oliver presented Mr. Gray with a cheque for $8,000 a few days ago, the new building fund was increased to $115,000. At the same meeting, it was reported that the Rotary Club of Duncan had successfully opened a branch of Goodwill in that community.

This is remarkable progress. It is compounded of a public willingness to support the organization by providing the "raw materials" which are refurbished and re-sold; able and dedicated management; and, most importantly, positive proof that handicapped people can do a good job.

Incident Off Ecuador

THE REPORT OF ECUADORIAN warships herding 18 United States fishing boats into the harbor of Salinas for allegedly "poaching" in Ecuadorian waters should draw notice in this country.

Ecuador claims fishing jurisdiction 200 miles out from its coast. The United States recognizes only the three-mile limit. The action of the South American country has drawn a prompt response from the United States consul who, accompanied by the chief of the U.S. naval mission, asked that the boats be freed.

The incident is one for Canada to note as it moves to extend its fisheries jurisdiction 12 miles out to sea. This is a modest proposal compared to Ecuador's claim to fisheries authority 200 miles out. The same principle is nevertheless involved.

If other nations, particularly the United States, accept only the three-mile limit, how does Canada intend to enforce its prohibition of alien fishing less than 12 miles from shore?

Probably Canada is not now concerned with enforcement. A new element has entered the international discussion of the proposed 12-mile fisheries limit through Britain's swing toward that suggestion. If others follow Britain's course—and Canada's action of recent date could stimulate that trend—it should be possible to attain for the 12-mile limit a majority large enough to carry the plan at the next international convention on the Law of the Sea. At the last such meeting, the Canadian proposal, while winning support from the majority of delegates, failed by one vote to pass.

Perhaps Mr. Pearson is working for that extra vote — or several extra votes — when the question once more comes before the appropriate gathering of maritime nations.

"Leave the navigation to me, he said . . . I know these Victoria waters like the back of my hand, he said . . ."

Mr. Snifkin Conserves His Energies

ONLY as a matter of public duty, you understand, and at some cost of private humiliation, I propose to solve the problem of countless Canadian householders. From one end of the nation to the other, as the summer cottages re-open, like sickly perennial blossoms, their owners are grappling with the problem of fire wood, almost always the wrong way. But there is a right way, revealed at last by my neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin who, after his discovery, should rank with Edison and Marconi.

Hutchison

When Mr. Snifkin and I ventured into the jungle for the first time this year to inspect our adjacent properties we found seventeen Douglas fir trees, none less than three feet in girth, prostrate across our joint path. Last winter's hurricane had selected us for its special victims.

SEVENTEEN trees, enough wood to build as many houses or cook our food for as many years, confronted us with nothing less than a major crisis, but nothing can shake Mr. Snifkin.

After we had wormed our way through the debris and crawled on hands and knees to his cottage, Mr. Snifkin called a council of war. We must, he said, be brave. Like Churchill in a similarly desperate situation, Mr. Snifkin spoke with eloquence, and at some length, about our finest hour which, it seemed to me, would last all summer. I had not allowed for Mr. Snifkin's genius.

The important thing in such an emergency, Mr. Snifkin warned me, was to avoid panic, to oppose the brute force of nature with man's superior intelligence and to keep calm. He kept calm by lighting his pipe and producing a reliable stimulant from his secret cache. Then, like a Napoleon on the eve of battle, he laid down our plan of campaign. The man's courage at this moment of disaster was inspiring.

FIRST, he said, we must inspect our weapons. The arsenal of seven-foot saws, double-bitted axes, sledge hammers and wedges assembled at the end of the trail looked impressive but as I surveyed that vast tangle of trunks and branches my heart fell. What could two old men do against such massive wreckage? It was enough to frighten Paul Bunyan. All in good time, said Mr. Snifkin.

The next step, he explained, was to consider the engineering aspects of the problem. When seventeen trees of the Pacific coast variety, like those in the movies, are sprawled and interlocked some twenty feet from the ground, the engineering problem is formidable.

Attacked in the wrong places, they are likely to crush the attacker. To find the right places, to keep the saws from binding, to apply the wedge at the strategic point and escape the descending giant—this task must daunt any man less experienced than Mr. Snifkin.

HE considered it for a long time, from all angles. The prodigy, he emphasized, [illegible]t be performed in the best tradition of the western forest. It would require all those ancient hand skills that are now largely lost in the degenerate age of chain saws. It was a job for true woodsmen. We would conquer or fail alone, on our own resources.

Yet Mr. Snifkin hardly moved from his seat on a recumbent trunk. He just sat and thought. Our energies, he said, must be conserved for the grand strategy.

More planning went into it than into the construction of the CPR. Mr. Pearson's new brain trust at Ottawa will never approach the living economy of Canada more systematically than Mr. Snifkin approached those dead trees. He was meditating, he said, a scientific breakthrough which would be disclosed at the proper time.

FOR the next three weeks the battle plan slowly matured in Mr. Snifkin's mind. He soothed my impatience in the meantime by allowing me to chop off the smaller branches and drag them to a distant place for safe burning next winter. I was exhausted by these labors but Mr. Snifkin still conserved his energies. While I was permitted to use my muscles, he would use his brain.

I had never fully grasped the power of that mighty instrument until I drove up to the camp yesterday and found three men, with chain saws and a bulldozer, stacking the last of the wood in a square mountain of some thirty cords, all split in twelve-inch lengths, ready for the stove. Mr. Snifkin had used his head and cheque book with astounding effect.

His share of the bill came to $50. Mine was twice as large but that, as Mr. Snifkin argued, must be considered only fair, since the trees had fallen from my land upon his and he could easily have sued me for heavy damages.

Besides, in a final generous gesture, he gave me the remaining limbs, which I could chop up and remove at leisure, provided I left his property neat and clean before autumn.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Thorny Subject, but It Must Be Discussed

IN the back rooms of the White House, preparations are already being made for the President's European tour. In the usual Kennedy way, every sort of person imaginable is being asked what the President should say and how he ought to say it, in order to achieve the best results in Italy and Germany.

Alsop

The central problem is what to do about the scheme for the multilateral nuclear deterrent. By proposing this mixed sea-borne force armed with American nuclear missiles, the President sought to recapture the European initiative after the jarring setback of Gen. de Gaulle's veto on British entry into the European Common Market.

The subject is so thorny that it is not much discussed. Yet it is so important that it has got to be discussed. The question is whether the American initiative will or will not fail from half-heartedness.

To recapitulate briefly: after making his public proposal, the President sent Special Ambassador Livingston Merchant to explain the multi-lateral deterrent to the Europeans. In Germany, which has become the key country in Europe and in NATO because of Gen. de Gaulle's intransigence, Merchant was given a warm, yet critical welome.

German Defence Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassel asked particularly insistent questions about the control arrangements for the new co-operative, mixed-manned nuclear force. The American scheme called for a control committee, in which each contributing nation would have a veto on the use of the new nuclear force.

Von Hassel pointed out first of all that if the American veto were retained, the creation of the new force would in no way dilute the effective American monopoly on nuclear power. But he gave vastly more importance to another point.

He drummed home the probability that with a one-nation-one-veto system, Labor leader Harold Wilson would quite soon have a veto as British Prime Minister. In that case, von Hassel remarked, heavy investment in the new force would hardly be justifiable.

Von Hassel's arguments were not—and still are not—easy to answer. With sensible moderation, however, he did not ask for any immediate change in the control arrangements, which would have required immediate, drastic amendment of the McMahon Act.

Instead, he asked for a personal commitment by the President to recommend control by majority vote of the control committee, after the new force had been built, organized, manned, and operationally tested at sea. This request is the problem the U.S. policy-makers have since been wrestling with.

The wrestling has been complicated by three highly curious factors. Even at the outset, the President made his proposal with qualified enthusiasm. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who had little share in the original initiative, has also placed the main emphasis on avoiding Congressional trouble arising from excessive tampering with the McMahon Act.

Finally, Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara is a high and dry non-proliferationist (the new word of art for those who wish to retain the U.S. nuclear monopoly at all costs). He therefore wants the U.S. veto kept in the scheme. The wrestling has therefore produced a compromise.

Somewhere along the line in Europe, and almost certainly in Germany, the President will do a re-take of his remarkable Philadelphia speech, on the theme that the U.S. wants Europe as a fully equal partner. He will point to the multilateral deterrent as the germ of a European deterrent, as it would be if majority control were adopted. But he will only commit himself to alterations of the control arrangements when Europe is "truly united," rather than when the force is operational.

Given the hard fact of Gen. de Gaulle, Europe is not likely to be truly united while President Kennedy is in office. The question therefore is whether this high-sounding compromise will satisfy the Europeans, and especially the Germans.

Will the Germans really want to spend something like $200,000,000 a year on a force over which Harold Wilson will probably have a veto?

For fear of seeming to demand nuclear weapons for themselves, the Germans have not again posed the question von Hassel asked Merchant in Bonn. The German Defence Minister was silent on the subject in his talks with Americans in Ottawa, and so was Minister Heinrich Krone on his exploration trip to Washington.

Rather complacently, therefore, the Kennedy policy-makers are saying the Germans have changed their minds. Yet they have done nothing of the sort, as was indicated in an interview given to a German journalist in Ottawa by Minister von Hassel. Hence the question posed above is still pretty worrying.

And if the scheme goes sour because the answer to the question turns out to be negative, the Kennedy policy-makers could hardly give a more glittering present to Gen. de Gaulle.

Debris In Orbit

Manchester Guardian Weekly

WHEN the Americans announced their plans for a high-altitude nuclear explosion last summer their scientists claimed that its effects would be short-lived and harmless. Dr. James Van Allen, the leading authority on the radiation belt that surrounds the earth, forecast that its consequences would disappear within a few weeks or a few months. Another leading American authority on high-altitude radiation, Professor S. F. Singer, said that the effects of the so-called "rainbow bomb" would be "predictable, small, and harmless." Both were wrong.

The radiation belt created by the bomb is now expected to last for several years. It has damaged or put out of action a number of satellites.

Warning Given

Other scientists had given warning of the dangers of the experiment, Sir Bernard Lovell called it (in advance of the event) "one of the most clumsy and dangerous experiments ever devised." He has had no reason to change his opinion since.

Two weeks or so ago the Americans put into orbit a satellite which has distributed round the earth a band of fine copper filament (inaptly known as "needles"). This is intended to act as a reflector for radio transmissions. One of its probable effects is to interfere with radio astronomy, though there is disagreement among scientists about this too.

Too little is known. That has been the heart of the argument for the past several years. The point is made again in Sir Edward Bullard's report from a scientific group on space research which was published last week.

"Serious adverse effects, both on scientific research and other space activities (e.g. communications or meteorological satellites), could result from further high-level nuclear tests above the one-kiloton range, or from other experiments in outer space, which might be undertaken by any country. The effects of such experiments may, in some circumstances, be difficult to predict."

Environment Altered

No harmful effects to human health have followed these experiments in space (so far as anyone can judge at this stage), but the earth's environment has been altered by adding charged particles (the product of a nuclear bomb exploded in space) to the radiation belt trapped by the earth's magnetic field.

The Bullard report suggests that future experiments in space should be first discussed by an international group of scientists who would be asked to advise on how the experiment should be carried out without interfering with other scientific research.

Protests and representations to American scientists engaged in some of these experiments have had no effect. There is therefore the need for some more formal international organization. On moral grounds the claim of one country to interfere with the earth's environment regardless of the views of others is questionable, to say the least. On the other hand the harsh facts of world politics will make it difficult to persuade either the Americans or the Russians to forego experiments of importance to their defence.

Defence Angle

The American high-altitude test is believed to have been designed to investigate the potentialities of anti-missile weapons above the atmosphere. The "needles" belt could be of importance to military communications. It is hard to imagine that such experiments can be subject to mutual arrangement while there is no agreement on atmospheric tests.

Yet at this early stage in rocket and satellite technology the price of unilateral experiment is becoming alarming. Sir Bernard Lovell sees what he calls "the proliferation of orbiting debris" already interfering with the study and exploration of the universe. Wisdom is falling dismally far behind man's technical skill.

As Our Readers See It

Happy In the Service

May I add a word to the recent correspondence re the Commissionaires?

I joined the Corps when I was 65 years of age and remained with it until my 73rd birthday when I was let out owing to reduction of staff where I was working.

The work was very easy and more or less interesting and in spite of the fact that we were not paid extra rates for overtime I was quite contented. This may have been due to the fact that I knew that a man of my age would never find another job.

It's true that we had no protective organization and I saw many men fired but I never saw a man let out except for good and sufficient reason—in fact I thought at times that the Corps Commandant was rather over-lenient.

It is also true that we did not actually belong to the armed forces but the feel of that uniform with the old First World War ribbons did make one feel that you were once more a soldier and saluting seemed to come naturally. In the course of his long military service Cpl. Clarke must have done an awful lot of saluting. Why his sudden aversion to this simple act of courtesy?

It has been stated that many of the Commissionaires are drawing big service pensions. If this is the case I never met any of those men.

Personally I would not like to see the Corps become unionized and I would remind my ex-comrades that these union organizers who are taking such a benevolent interest in your welfare are working for big salaries. It takes money to join a union—money that is going to come out of your pay cheques. This will mean that a higher rate will have to be charged for your services and this in turn will mean fewer jobs.

If you have a grievance go and talk it over with your commandant and adjutant at their Victoria office. You will always get a kindly and respectful hearing.

YOUR HEALTH By Dr. WALTER ALVAREZ

Cures for Hiccups

All my life I have been subject to spells of hiccups, and so I am much interested in the subject. I have virtually always been able quickly to stop my hiccups simply by sipping water. By swallowing repeatedly, one can reverse the waves of muscle contractions that are coming up the gullet, and can drive them down again through the digestive tube. Sometimes slowly eating some dry toast will work well.

Alvarez

When I was a small child, I can remember that I often got the hiccups after laughing too heartily at something. When we children got to laughing uproariously, Mother would say, "You had better stop that, or first thing you know, you will have the hiccups."

Once in my childhood I got an attack of hiccups that no amount of sipping water would stop. Then my old Scottish nurse said she felt she ought to warn me that she had caught me in some mischief or other, and when my mother came home from a trip, it would be her unpleasant duty to tell what I had been up to. This puzzled me greatly, and I began asking Mrs. Black just what she had found out. Finally, she laughed and said, "You've lost your hiccups," and I had—she had scared them out of me!

I am reminded of a time during the First World War when a certain Bill Smith, a soldier on the Argonne front, got an attack of the sort of hiccups which keeps a man in torture day and night for a week. About the time that the poor fellow was nearly frantic with loss of rest and sleep, a huge bomb exploded nearby and threw dirt all over him. When they dug him out they found that his hiccups were gone. After that whenever a big bomb came over, the soldiers would say, "There goes Bill Smith's hiccup cure!"

In the worse cases of hiccups, I suspect that a virus has irritated the "phrenic nerve" which runs from the neck down to supply the muscle of the diaphragm (midriff), or perhaps it affects the muscle of the diaphragm. We doctors know that after some operations there is enough irritation of the lower surface of the diaphragm so that the poor patient suffers much from hiccups.

I know that after my big abdominal operation three years ago, my greatest suffering was due to hiccups which lasted two or three days. Fortunately, my good surgeon, Dr. Mayo, gave me several big doses of a barbiturate, so that I could sleep and rest, and when I finally woke, the hiccups were gone. I know that several times in the past, when I saw a man with the type of hiccups that are likely to keep going for a week or 10 days, I have been able quickly to stop his torture with a big dose of a strong barbiturate.

Sometimes a person will get hiccups when he has become constipated. What has happened is that the distended part of the lower bowel is sending off waves of muscle contractions which were running up even as far as the back of his throat, thus causing the hiccups. The minute the person's constipation is relieved, he will have no more hiccups.

LONDON LETTER By WALLACE REYBURN

England's 92,000 'Drunks'

LONDON — Liverpool, it seems, is the worst place in England for hard drinking. Last year more than 11 out of every 100 people there were convicted of drink offenses.

Reyburn

This puts Liverpool well and truly at the top of the black list. Manchester, in second place, had 5.14 convictions per 100, and London followed with 4.5.

The soberest spot in England was Cambridge, with a figure of merely 0.29 per 100, and the runners-up for sobriety were the two Lancashire seaside resorts of Southport (0.34) and St. Helens (0.4).

But the overall picture for the whole country shows that drunkenness is up.

The total of 92,000 convictions was the highest it has been since the Roaring Twenties. One has to go back to 1920, during the binge that followed the end of the First World War, to find a comparable figure.

The temperance people of course blame the new Licensing Act which came into force last year. The United Kingdom Alliance says the extension of pub hours in 1962 is "proving disastrous to the nation's sobriety."

The publicans, however, say that extension of pub hours doesn't make people drink any more.

Their experience shows that people have a certain amount of money to spend on drink and when the time of staying open was extended by half an hour in the evening folks merely postponed their regular nightly visit to the pub by half an hour.

This fact of people being on a drink budget is borne out of the "off licenses" (liquor stores).

Under the new Licensing Act they are no longer restricted to pub hours. They may now be open all through the day while the shops are open, plus continuing through the evening until the pubs close.

But no liquor stores are availing themselves of the chance to stay open from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. They know they just wouldn't do any more business.

HOME GARDEN By HILDA BEASTALL

Three Flower Shows Planned

June is traditionally the month of roses, weddings and flower shows. The season already bears indications of meeting its quotas in all departments.

Hilda

We have three flower shows scheduled.

The first is at Shawnigan Lake on June 5, Wednesday of this week; the second is the Victoria West Flower Show at St. Saviour's Parish Hall on Saturday, June 15; and the third is the two-day Victoria Horticultural Society's summer show at the Curling Rink, June 21 and 22.

These shows will keep local exhibitors happy, judges busy, and the general gardening public can gain useful information by attending.

The one at Shawnigan Lake on Wednesday opens at 2:30 p.m., providing an afternoon of relaxation in pleasant surroundings.

Newcomers to this southern tip of Vancouver Island will be amazed at the difference in the season between Victoria and vicinity and Shawnigan Lake.

Late spring flowers will be featured, and in a scattering of the earliest summer blooms, roses will predominate. Members of the Horticultural Society are probably already tearing their collective hair at the earliness of the roses here, and wondering what they will have to show by June 21 and 22.

Perhaps the easiest way to gather useful information at the shows is to take along a garden notebook. Into it go the details of any plant which catches the interest.

Put down not only the name, unless you are possessed of a phenomenal memory, but a description and any other details gleaned from talking to other people, either visitors or exhibitors.

Flower shows are friendly places and gardeners are eager to talk about plants, so don't hesitate to ask questions or to comment on or criticize what you see.

It is a form of visual learning.

SYNOPSIS—Rain fell over the north coast this morning and in the valleys of the southeast interior. Elsewhere skies were mostly sunny. The precipitation in the interior is shifting southward and gradual improvement in weather is forecast for these regions. The system causing the weather on the north coast is quite active but is being held to the north by a ridge of high pressure across the south coast. This ridge of high pressure should ensure mainly sunny and somewhat warmer weather for the south coast but onshore winds will maintain cloudy and cool weather over northwestern sections of the province.

Two Million Acres Sold on Oil Permits

OTTAWA (CP)—Petroleum exploration permits on more than two million acres of northern mainland Crown land were sold by tender, the northern affairs and national resources department announced. Two classes were involved.

British American Oil Co. Ltd. took four of 37 available individual permits on a cash bid of $165,000. Nine others also were sold.

Total cash paid was $236,163.12 and the acreage involved is 618,271.

Greater Vic Now Claims 154,104

Greater Victoria came out of 1962 with a net increase of 1,632 citizens, according to vital statistics filed by Metro Health Board senior medical officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

His annual report—first full year of operation for Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health—covers Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich, Central Saanich, Sidney, unorganized territories to Port Renfrew and the Gulf Islands.

Three areas, Oak Bay, Gulf Islands, and Sidney, recorded more deaths than births and most areas showed many more births than deaths.

Dr. Whitbread reports 3,565 births, 1,931 deaths and a total population of 154,104.

Gatherings Banned In Guiana Capital

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Meetings of more than five persons were banned Sunday in a square mile of Georgetown, capital of this British colony, after race riots between Negroes and East Indians.

Governor Sir Ralph Grey issued the decree on the advice of Premier Cheddi Jagan, an East Indian. Grey said he was satisfied that more serious breaches of public order were likely to occur.

Friction between Negroes and East Indians in this colony on the northern coast of South America reached fire point at funeral services Thursday for Home Affairs Minister Claude Christian.

The 575,000 population is split about evenly between the two races.

Jagan's austerity program touched off a general strike which has kept the situation here tense for weeks.

Canada's Role in World Hinges on Unity—Pearson

WINDSOR (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson says Canada has the power to make a unique contribution to the partnership of Europe and North America by the example of shaping this country's character.

The success of "this Canadian adventure" was not yet assured and its failure would be a tragedy. But success would give Canada the power to make "a unique and invaluable contribution to the Atlantic partnership between the old lands of Europe and the newer lands of North America."

"To make the most of that opportunity is, I believe, the high and solemn responsibility which we as Canadians owe the world."

Mr. Pearson placed twin themes of world responsibility and natural unity before the convocation of Assumption University Saturday as he received an honorary doctorate of laws.

FACES PROBLEMS

Canada faced problems of internal understanding arising out of varied origins, religion, languages and cultures. There also were problems of geography and economics.

He said Canada seemed to be in a phase in which regional needs of Canada are not just differences of economic interest are greater than ever but he was sure these would be overcome.

Canadians "know better than ever that the problems and the sum of a variety of local and regional and sectional problems and needs."

Labor-Management Harmony Common

TORONTO (CP)—There is much more harmony than disharmony in Canadian labor-management relations, Carl A. Pollock, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said today.

Addressing the association's annual meeting, Mr. Pollock said there is continuing improvement in these relations and the last year had seen no dispute of major proportions.

"We hear a great deal," he commented, "about what must be done to 'reconcile' the supposedly conflicting interests of management and labor; and industrial disputes of any kind receive much prominence.

HONORABLY KEPT

"You would never realize from this sort of thing that there are in force thousands of agreements, collectively bargained, which are honorably kept by both sides."

Mr. Pollock, who is chairman and president of Dominion Electrohome Industries Ltd., Kitchener, Ont., said the proposed establishment of an economic council of Canada and a Canada development corporation are obviously of great significance to the manufacturing industry.

MUST TAKE LEAD

"I believe very strongly," he added, "that we manufacturers must take the lead and ourselves do more planning if we are not to be 'planned' by others. We can play a key role in the formulation of national objectives and we must make very sure that our voice is heard within the appropriate bodies and particularly in the deliberations of the economic council."

Huge Ore Deal With Japan Moving Ahead

NEW YORK (CP)—Negotiations toward closing a huge Canadian-Japanese iron-ore deal took another step forward today with announcement that Canadian mine interests plan to buy about $200,000,000 worth of transportation and mining equipment in Japan.

Ataka New York Incorporated, a subsidiary of a major Japanese firm in the iron and steel import—export business, said plans call for the equipment to be bought by Jubilee Iron Corporation, for its O'Keefe-Star Lake Mine in Quebec province, and Canadian Javelin Limited for its Julian Lake deposits in Labrador.

Plans also call for construction in Japan of a fleet of 18 22-knot ore-oil carriers for Javelin. The $100,000,000 fleet of 45,000-ton ships would be used by Javelin to deliver high-grade iron ore pellets from Seven Islands and Port Cartier, Que., to Japan via the Panama Canal. The ships would proceed on around the world, bringing Near Eastern oil to North America.

Craigmont Net Profit Takes Drop

VANCOUVER (CP)—Craigmont Mines net profit for the last quarter dropped more than $1,000,000 from the same period a year ago, an interim report showed Friday.

In the three months ended April 30 this year, net profit was $777,056.

Estimated net earnings for the period are 15 cents a share, compared with 49 cents for the same three months last year.

Price to Govern Japan Wheat Sales

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ryuji Katoh of the Food Agency of Japan says Japan will be importing more wheat this year than in 1962, but whether it will be Canadian wheat depends on the price.

He said that last year Japan imported 1,170,000 metric tons of wheat from Canada, almost half of the total imported by the country.

He said Canadian wheat excels all others imported by Japan for bread making, but that last year Canadian and United States wheat prices were almost the same.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto Closes on Upside

Prices rose at Montreal with moderately heavy trading in industrials. Motors and selected issues paced an uneven advance in New York.

AT TORONTO losses in a ⅛ to ¼ range went to Dominion Bridge, Union Gas, Bell Telephone, Texaco Canada and Calgary Power.

On the upside, Canadian Tire A and U.S. Ford each jumped a point, the latter touching a new 1963 top of 56, CPR gained ⅝ and Canadian Utilities rose ½.

Denison and Falconbridge led the base metals rise with gains of ½ each. Craigmont dropped a point to 16⅝ on fairly heavy turnover.

Chrysler and United Air Lines were up about 2 apiece.

Steels were unchanged to fractionally lower. Weekly steel production declined. Sugars also were down as sugar commodity futures continued to fall sharply.

Among Canadian issues, Aluminium Ltd. was up ½ and Canadian Pacific advanced ⅝. Distillers Seagrams and Walker Gooderham each dropped ⅛ and Granby Mining was off ¼.

Prices were irregularly higher on the American Stock Exchange. Brazilian Traction lost ⅛, Scurry Rainbow ¼ and Fargo Oil 1/16.

AT MONTREAL Canadian Pacific Railways was heavily traded, moving a trend set earlier in the day.

Trans-Canada Pipe Line rose ¼ to 29½ and Massey Ferguson gained ⅛ to 14¼. Asbestos Corporation climbed ¼ to 26½ and Price Brothers was up ⅛ at 38¼.

In the mining issues, losses outnumbered gains. Midepsa dropped 18 cents to $1.70 and Mount Pleasant was down three cents to 63 cents. Silver Summit was down four cents at 76 cents.

AT VANCOUVER trading was light. Can. Am. Pete. was down at .20 and Ft. St. John at $1. Peace River Pete. dropped to .24½ and McKinney Gold to .19. New Indian was down at .19, while Silver Standard rose to .34. Western Mines dropped to $4.40.

GARFIELD WESTON
. . . staff problem

Supermarket Chain Stops Work in U.K.

LONDON (CP) — The Observer says Canadian Garfield Weston has suspended all work on supermarket property now under construction in Britain.

The paper says the decision affects some 100 supermarket sites now under development.

It quotes Weston as saying he is "deferring taking on any more stores until training programs are further advanced."

"The problems of manning our stores and training our staff have just caught up with us. We haven't got the fund of people trained here that we can get in the United States."

Weston imported a large number of potential Canadian managers nearly two years ago. Many of them have returned to Canada.

Weston's supermarket chain is usually called the biggest in Britain. He has recently moved into France and has stores in West Germany, Italy and other countries apart from his North American interests.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices moved narrowly in quiet trading near the close today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

No overseas trade was reported as a result of the Whitsuntide holiday on the continent.

'Tiger' Crawford Stops Wakeham

Mainland Pro Singes Uplands With Hot 65

By ERNIE FEDORUK

They rubbed the oxidation and dust of time off an eight-year-old trophy last week and it arrived at Uplands Golf Club sparkling like a newly-minted silver dollar.

But the trophy, by comparison, didn't look half as bright as the pleasant and capable 30-year-old professional from Vancouver who picked it up Sunday.

Lyle Crawford proved to one and all there was no rust in his system with a birdie-sprinkled round that beat Victoria's Bill Wakeham 4 and 3 in their battle for the B.C. match play trophy donated in 1955 by The Daily Times and the Vancouver Province.

If there were any doubts that some after-effects of his recent bout with hepatitis still lingered, they were knocked cockeyed by the booming drives and accurate irons that featured Crawford's sparkling five-under-par round.

LYLE CRAWFORD
. . . a worthy winner

Only Second Look

Crawford's 65, coming on only his second look at the well-groomed course, ties the unofficial Uplands record shared by Gordie Pellow, Dick Munn and Ron MacLeod. The official record is 67, held by Laurie Kerr of Colwood.

Although Sunday's match officially ended on the 15th green, they played it out to the 18th for the benefit of the large gallery. Wakeham, whose card included two bogeys and two birdies, scored 36-34—70. Crawford was 34-31—65.

If Crawford had a good day, so did the YM-YWCA building fund and junior golf, which will share the net receipts. Approximately $500 was raised as a result of the match.

The exact figure will not be known for a few days. Expenses were kept to an absolute minimum. Prizes—a ring for Wakeham and a $50 cheque for Crawford—were donated by The Times.

An Annual Affair?

Inter-city competition may have also benefited from Sunday's match. Eric Whitehead, Vancouver Province columnist, indicated that the mainland paper may agree to co-sponsor the match on an annual basis along with the Times.

Whitehead presented the Times-Province Trophy to Crawford while publisher Stuart Keate of The Times made the token presentations to both golfers.

In an unexpected goodwill gesture during the presentation ceremonies, Crawford presented two dozen golf balls to Uplands president Bob Williams.

The gift, made on behalf of the B.C. Professional Golfers' Association, will be used by the club to add to the prize lists of "some junior competition."

'My Finest Hour'

Nothing, however, could detract from Crawford's round. Not even this self-confession:

"Bill caught me in my finest hour. That was my best round in two years."

Crawford consistently outdrove Wakeham but more impressive was his iron play. His accuracy was such that Wakeham won only two holes—the second and 13th.

Crawford took only one bogey, on the second when he hooked his drive into the trees near the sixth tee and didn't recover too well.

After that, Wakeham didn't have a chance. Crawford birdied the sixth, seventh, 11th, 14th, 15th and 17th holes. He missed other "sinkable" birdie putts (under 10 feet) on the eighth, 10th and 13th holes.

It was a good match.

Let's have another.

CLEVELAND TAKES TWO

The Word Is Out—Yanks Hate Lefties

Memo to American League managers:

If you want to beat New York Yankees, save your lefthanders for the world champions.

And if you need proof of that statement just take a look at what Jack Kralick and young Sam McDowell of Cleveland Indians did to the Yankees Sunday.

Kralick, who seems to have regained his 1962 form since being traded by Minnesota Twins, stopped the Yankees on two hits in the opener as the Indians won, 5-0, McDowell, the 20-year-old flame-thrower from Pittsburgh, beat the champs in the nightcap, 7-2.

The Yankees have lost only 17 games thus far this season in 43 starts but eight of those setbacks have been to southpays, including one to the departed Bo Belinsky, who had just that lone victory over the New Yorkers this season in eight decisions.

Kralick, who won 12 games for the Twins in 1962 including a no-hit, no-run game over Kansas City Athletics, gave up a single to Clete Boyer in the third inning and a single to Mickey Mantle in the seventh.

Joe Adcock's three-run homer in the sixth inning decided the issue for Kralick over Bill Stafford. It was Jack's fourth victory in nine decisions and third since coming to the Tribe on May 2.

Second-place Baltimore Orioles failed to gain ground, though, as they bowed to Los Angeles Angels, 8-2. Third-place Chicago White Sox climbed to within 13 percentage points of the lead by splitting a doubleheader with Boston Red Sox, winning the nightcap, 10-0, after dropping the opener, 11-9. In other games, Detroit Tigers shaded Minnesota Twins, 7-6, and Washington Senators won their second straight, 6-4, over Kansas City.

In the National League, San Francisco Giants defeated St. Louis Cardinals, 6-4; Cincinnati Reds downed Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-2; Houston Colts nipped Milwaukee Braves, 3-1 in 17 innings; New York Mets swept Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-1 and 4-3, and Philadelphia and Chicago split, the Phils taking the opener, 5-2, and the Cubs the nightcap, 3-2.

GARY SMITH

3RD STRAIGHT WIN

Gary Has Firm Grasp on Title

Runner up was Noel Pumphrey of Gorge Vale with a 74-78—152. Urban Allan of Colwood was third with 77-77—154.

Allan was low net winner with Jay Wilson runner up.

The first ten in this tournament will form a team to play Vancouver in an intercity match taking place later in the summer.

Smith and Pumphrey also earned trips to compete in the B.C. Junior Championships in Vancouver.

City juniors will have a chance to compete in the Canadian Junior championship August 27 to 30 at Royal Colwood.

Sole Canuck Defeated At St. Andrews

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Labron Harris Jr., the U.S. amateur champion, won his first match in the British amateur golf championship today.

He defeated Paul Costé, a fellow American, 1 up after a bitter struggle which was not ended until the 18th green.

Harris, 21, had to shoot a 73, one over par, to edge Coste, 40, who finished in 74. Coste is the American principal of the U.S. Air Force school in Chateau Roux, France.

Their match was the first of 80 contests today with 40 more first-round matches Tuesday morning. Eight of the victorious U.S. Walker Cup team, including Harris, and defending champion Richard Davies of the U.S. were entered.

The only Canadian in the tournament, Robert Goodwin of Winnipeg, was eliminated by Davies, 6 and 5.

PERSISTENCE BRINGS $100 FINE FOR SACHS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Eddie Sachs, Detroit auto race driver, paid a $100 fine to the U.S. Auto Club and closed out one of the controversies of the dispute-riddled Memorial Day 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

A USAC official said Sunday Sachs apologized for continuing in the race Thursday after brushing a railing. He crashed a short time later on another part of the track.

The rules require inspection of a car after it has contact with any object.

Sachs did not withdraw his charges that race winner Parnelli Jones should have been stopped for leaking oil from a split tank. Jones and Sachs fought with fists Friday after an argument about the oil.

COLUMBUS WINS

Goal on Penalty Sidelines United

Columbus and Vancouver Firefighters will fight it out for the Pacific Coast Soccer League championship next Sunday.

The Vancouver sides advanced to the final with shutout victories at Callister Park at the weekend. Columbus, getting second-half goals from Gogie Stewart and Sigi Gohringer, posted a 2-0 shutout victory over Vancouver Canadians Sunday.

HOT GOALPOSTS

Columbus had the edge in play from the opening whistle and hit the goalpost three times before counting its first goal.

Saturday, Firefighters scored on a penalty kick 12 minutes after the start of play to defeat Victoria United 1-0.

Ferrier Scores Hot 61

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Jim Ferrier, 48-year-old former PGA champion, shot a tournament-record 61 while Julius Boros and Dow Finsterwald captured the 54-hole lead with 13-under-par 200s Sunday in the $50,000 Speedway Festival golf open.

Ferrier had 11 birdies, went over par once and had six pars for 31-30-61 in the par-smashing frolic on the 6,467-yard par 35-36-71 Speedway course.

It was the lowest tournament round of the 1963 PGA tour and only one stroke off the PGA record of 60.

Australian-born Ferrier, at 201, is among the main contenders in today's final round of the chase for the $10,000 first prize.

Boros, 43, the 1952 National Open winner, rolled to the front with a 30-35-65 for his 200. Finsterwald dropped an eight-foot eagle-three putt on the last hole to round out a card of 33-31-64.

Tied with Ferrier in second place at 201 was Tommy Aaron.

The lone Canadian still in the tournament is Jerry Magee of Toronto who added a 69 Sunday to previous rounds of 69 and 70, for a 208 total.

Saanich Sides Boxla Losers

Victoria City squads each collected an even dozen goals as they defeated Saanich rivals in a pair of Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association games at Stevenson Park Saturday.

City peewees took a 12-8 victory and the bantams nipped Saanich 12-11.

Scoring and this week's schedule:

Annual NHL Parley Opens

MONTREAL (CP) — The rules committee starts off the National Hockey League's annual meeting today, with expectation that changes will be minor.

Later, during the three-day meetings, the club owners are expected to stipulate that Stanley Cup playoffs will start the Thursday following the usual Sunday windup of the regular schedule late in March, instead of starting the post-season series on Tuesday.

Tugmen Still Wallow In Stormy Boxla Sea

Tugmen are running into stormy weather in the Senior "B" Lacrosse League.

The Tugs head out of port for the fifth time tonight and they'll still be looking for their first win of the campaign when they tangle with Nanaimo at Memorial Arena at 8:30.

They gave it a good try Sunday at the arena but again had trouble when they got within shooting range and dropped a 7-3 decision to Jokers.

Jokers, who climbed into a first-place tie with Nanaimo, and two goals each from Fred Doig, Norm Parker and Whitey Wakelyn and a single from Dave Gale.

Standings:

Houston's Brawn Sinks Sooke, 2-1

Big Gordie Houston's muscles rescued pace-setting Esso Imperials Sunday in the Heywood Avenue Senior Softball League.

Houston stepped to the plate in the bottom half of the ninth inning with bases loaded and Sooke holding a 1-0 lead over the Imps.

He swung, and blasted a shot far into left-centre field. It was caught, going only for a sacrifice fly, but before Sooke could get the ball back to the plate, two runners had scampered home to give Imps a 2-1 verdict.

Houston's big wallop ended a pitching duel between Sooke's Glen Bullen and Glen Langset. Bullen struck out nine, Langest 10 and each yielded only four hits.

Late Rally Gives Baby Rocks Victory

Nipped in overtime by New Westminster in their previous start, Shamrocks ran into a tough struggle at Vancouver Sunday before squeezing out a 10-7 triumph over Vindex.

Trailing after only six seconds, the Rocks pulled into a 1-1 tie only 30 seconds later. They were behind again at 3-1 before making it 3-3 at the end of the opening quarter.

Victoria again slipped back by two goals but climbed into 5-5 deadlock at the half and were in front 7-6 going into the final period.

Ross McDonald knotted the count for Vindex before the Rocks pulled away on two tallies by Bill Munroe and one by Rod Kilduff.

Goalie Bob Fisher, playing his first game of the season, proved the big difference on defence, making several key saves.

Kilduff paced Victoria with three goals, Munro and Nirmal Dillon each scored twice and Dod Nesbitt, Dave Collett and Dave Woodley each added one goal.

Shamrocks, who play Chilliwack next Sunday afternoon at Memorial Arena, have now won two of their three starts.

Smith's Whiskers Just Too Short!

Racing fans at Western Speedway have been getting a full quota of thrills from modified sportsmen cars this season.

They got another heart-stopper Saturday as the modifieds joined stock cars on the weekly program.

This one was supplied by Jack Milner, who caught Al Smith at the pay-off line to take a photo-finish victory in the main event.

The whisksr-thin win wrecked a bid for a sweep by Smith, who had taken the trophy dash and first heat.

Brian Wilson, bidding for his second straight clean sweep in the stock car races, also saw his hopes ruined in the main event.

Winner of the trophy dash and first heat, Wilson was forced wide by one of several collisions in the main and had to settle for a second-place finish behind Jim Berry.

Results:

SHAWNIGAN LAKE CREWS . . . . . . STROKE UP VICTORY STORM

They May Be Inhospitable, but Can They Row!

By BOB BELL

Shawnigan Lake School turned out to be poor hosts at their second annual invitational rowing regatta Saturday at Shawnigan Lake.

They wouldn't let anyone else win.

Crews from the sponsoring school won seven of the nine events they entered, and even managed to win a race in which they didn't have a crew—senior eights.

Members of Vancouver, Lake Washington and Kelowna Rowing Clubs divided themselves into two eight-man crews, chose a cox, and engaged in a quarter-mile duel for the sheer enjoyment of it after the regular program.

The crew led by Shawnigan Lake School junior Julian Blake won over the team coxed by Vancouver's Frank Chow.

This gave Shawnigan their eighth win—unofficially.

In junior eights, Shawnigan displayed the form they hope to show on an upcoming European tour by out-stroking Greenlake Rowing Club of Seattle.

The winners will leave for Europe in July to represent Canada at the Henley and other regattas on the two-month tour.

Ted Nash, Olympic silver medal winner and Pan-American games competitor from Lake Washington Rowing Club won the senior sculling event easily over Ken Taylor of Vancouver.

The Lake Washington club picked up another win in senior doubles as Nash teamed up with Gary Baines to defeat Taylor and Tom Gray from Vancouver.

The regatta, sanctioned by the Canadian Amateur Oarsmen Association, ran into difficulties in the morning with a stiff breeze across the lake, but the wind died by noon, leaving excellent rowing conditions over both the 1,500 and 2,000-metre courses.

Complete results and times:

Senior eights — Julian Blake, S.L.C. (cox); Frank Chow, Vancouver (cox). No time.

JOHN FERGUSON
. . . four goals

There could be trouble waiting for Victoria Shamrocks Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

Due to tangle with the Irish in an Inter-City Lacrosse League argument is Nanaimo, beaten in two previous appearances here this season.

Playing at Nanaimo Saturday in their first game under new coach Buddy Dumont, the Coaltowners performed with new zing and punch. They staged a spectacular second-half comeback and just fell short in a free-wheeling 15-14 battle with powerful New Westminster.

Trailing 11-4 at the half, Nanaimo started to roll when Dumont replaced Gerry Shires with Alf Shuker in the Nanaimo goal.

His athletes had cut the deficit to 12-11 with five minutes remaining when Westminster broke loose for three straight tallies. But Nanaimo rebounded again for a three-goal splurge and almost forced the game into overtime.

FERGUSON SHINES

Rugged John Ferguson, one of the top prospects to make life miserable for Shamrocks Wednesday, had another big night. Ferguson scored four times and assisted on one goal.

Tom McVie added three goals for Dumont's crew, Terry Davis and Bill Russell each got two and former coach Arnie Dugan, Don Morelli and Al Fearon chipped in with one each.

Police 'Steal' One In Carnarvon Loop

Oak Bay Police may be accused of a bit of baseball larceny after Sunday's action in the Carnarvon Pony League.

They didn't get a hit but managed to "steal" a 3-2 victory over Porters.

Pitcher Paul Kraeling, troubled by his own wildness and fumbles by his mates, didn't yield a hit but gave up one Oak Bay run in each of the first three innings.

Brian Lucas, taking over in the fourth, snapped handcuffs on the Police but Bob Rimmer, tossing a four-hitter, held on for the win.

*Jokers beat Rotary 2-0 in an*other pitchers' battle Sunday.

Minor Hockey Group Honors Veteran Trio

Three veteran officials were honored at the annual meeting of the Victoria Minor Hockey Association.

Presented with life membership pins in recognition of long and valuable service to the association were Doug Fletcher, Ivan Temple and Jack Woodley.

Presentations were made by Hank Klassen, who was returned to another term as president.

Also elected were: Vice-president, Bob Reid; secretary, L. G. Huck; treasurer, Stan Ward; directors, Don Thomas and Woodley (two-year terms), Al Trigwell, Bus Morgan (one-year terms); chairmen of divisions, Bert Hickman, Ed Wittchen, Art Boyer, Al Leatham and George McPherson.

The treasurer's report disclosed that despite operating costs of almost $9,000, the association finished the recent season with a surplus of $155.

TRANSPORTS ON TOP

It's Easy to Find Reason for Climb

It's easy to explain why Transport Workers have forged to the front in the Senior Amateur Baseball League.

They have been getting the best pitching in the circuit in recent games.

Transports got a pair of mound gems at Royal Athletic Park Saturday, tripped Independents by 3-1 and 4-0 scores and stepped into the lead, half a game in front of IAA Athletics.

Les Brice served up a four-hitter to pitch Transports to victory in the first of the two seven-inning tussles. Jim Moody homered for the winners in the first frame. Independents came back to even the count in their half of the inning but were blanked the rest of the way by Brice.

Brent Siddons took over from there. He made it 13 successive scoreless innings for Independents as he fashioned a neat four-hit shutout.

Independents will be trying to crack the scoreless string at Athletic Park Tuesday, when they tackle last-place Builders at 6:15.

Bays Top Threat To Cowichan Side

If any club is going to keep Cowichan from grabbing the Victoria and District Cricket Association title, Oak Bay appears the most likely prospect.

Cowichan chalked up its fifth straight victory Saturday, trimming Albions by 86 runs, but the Bays stayed in close pursuit Sunday with a 98-run win over Alcos.

In Sunday's second match, Nanaimo downed Five C's by 24 runs. Nanaimo, sparked by G. Wolfendon's 27, scored 83 and then dismissed the C's for 59.

Jack Sparks was the big man in Oak Bay's impressive triumph, scoring 60 not out. D. Clarke added 39 as the Bays ran up 151 runs for four wickets and then held Alcos to 53.

Only Alco batter to appear comfortable against the bowling of W. Tait, A. Wright and G. Odgers was John Moss, who scored 36 not out.

CITY SNIPERS IN B.C. MEET

More than two dozen Victoria trigger experts were at North Vancouver's Blair Range today, preparing for Tuesday's start in major matches in the 79th annual B.C. Rifle Association prize meeting.

Riflemen were competing today in service conditions events, but shooting for main honors, topped by the Lieutenant-Governor's prize and the grand aggregate award, gets under way Tuesday.

Vicettes Gain Series Split

Victoria Vicettes split a doubleheader with Vancouver Fairmonts Sunday in women's exhibition softball at Central Park.

Fairmonts edged Vicettes 4-3 in the first game, as Janet Shultz turned in a three-hit performance for the mainlanders.

Vicettes came back in the second game to best Fairmonts in the last inning, 14-13, with the winning run scored on a walk.

'Rematch or Else—' Johnson's Manager

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Hollering he was "robbed," Pat Olivieri, manager of Harold Johnson, today demanded a rematch for his dethroned light-heavyweight champion with Willie Pastrano.

Pastrano won the championship Saturday night in the boxing upset of the year with a split 15-round decision over Johnson. The fight was televised nationally.

"I'm not saying that the underworld dictated the decision," said Olivier. "But the betting was 5-1 and 6-1 for my boy and the underdog won. What do you think?"

There was no verbal or written rematch agreement, said Pastrano's manager, Angelo Dundee. Olivieri said he would ask Emile Bruneau, chairman of the World Boxing Association championship committee, to give Johnson a rematch with 90 days.

WHERE WERE THEY?

"If they don't do it," said Olivieri, "I'm going to the Kefauver committee. I'll have those two judges and the ref pulled in to see where their minds were during the fight."

The Kefauver committee, a Senate judiciary subcommittee, has investigated the racketeering aspects of prize fighting among other things.

Referee Jimmy Olivas scored the fight 69-68 and judge Harry Kraufe 69-67, both for Pastrano. Judge John Romero had it 69-68 for Johnson. The Associated Press had it 70-69 for Pastrano.

In Philadelphia, Al Klein, a member of the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission who saw the fight, said he will endorse Olivieri's request for a rematch because "it was such a disputed decision . . . I'm not in the habit of *quarreling with of*ficials . . . But there was a feeling among people that Johnson won."

"I'll take a few days rest and then talk over my future plans," the 27-year-old Pastrano said.

It was 7-5 that Pastrano would not last the route against the 34-year-old champion from Philadelphia who had not been whipped in almost eight years.

GOOD BATTLE

But Pastrano outboxed and outfoxed Johnson in a fight that was that far better than many anticipated.

There was a mixed reaction from the crowd when the close decision was announced. But Pastrano got a roaring salute from the 4,000 fans and a deluge of messages from his home town admirers in North Miami Beach, Fla., and New Orleans, his birth city.

There were no knockdowns, but Johnson nailed Willie with right smashes in the fifth and 13th rounds that made his knees sag. Pastrano, the game's most talented hit-and-run specialist, escaped each time and carried the action back to a highly frustrated Johnson.

"I thought I won. He wouldn't fight," said the gloomy Johnson. "I've never seen a challenger run away and still win the fight. If I'd stopped in the middle of the ring and hadn't chased him there would have been no fight. Pastrano threw that little flicking jab and the people would go wild. But it didn't hurt me."

ANY DAY IS GOOD DAY

Pope John on Death—"Any day is a good day to be born and any day is a good day to die . . . I always think of that other shore and submit to the will of the Lord, whether He decides to keep me here or call me to Him."

PEACE ON EARTH—Pope John XXIII signs his encyclical "Pacem in Terris" (Peace on Earth) in his Vatican library. (NEA Radio-Telephoto.)

SCHOLAR, DIPLOMAT

Busy Mind of Pope Covered Many Topics

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John, a scholar in his priestly days and a Vatican diplomat before he became pontiff, commented on a wide range of topics.

His words reflected his concern for the state of the world and its people. Often they revealed quick wit and basic humility. Here are some examples from his addresses and writings:

On peace — "Seized by anxiety for the good of all, we feel it our duty to beseech men, especially those who have the responsibility of public affairs, to spare no labor in order to ensure that world events follow a reasonable and human course. . . . Universal peace is a good that interests all men without distinction. To all men, therefore, we have opened our soul." (1963 encyclical Pacem in Terris.)

"Let them (the world's leaders) give ear to the anguished cry of 'peace, peace' which rises up to heaven from every part of the world, from innocent children and those grown old, from individuals and communities." (October, 1962, diplomatic audience.)

On disarmament — "Justice, then right, reason and humanity urgently demand that the arms race should cease; that the stockpiles which exist in various countries should be reduced equally and simultaneously by the parties concerned; that nuclear weapons should be banned; and that a general agreement should eventually be reached about progressive disarmament and an effective method of control."
(1963 encyclical Pacem in Terris.)

On Christian unity — "The Catholic Church considers it her duty to work actively so that there may be fulfilled the great mystery of that unity, which Jesus Christ invoked with fervent prayer." (Address opening Vatican ecumenical council, October, 1962.)

On his concept of the papacy —"We ask no more than that you may always and on every occasion be able to write down as our single and true title of honor: He was a priest before God and before the people, a true and sincere friend of all the nations." (To journalists, October, 1962.)

On racial equality — "Our sorrowing gaze turns also to the other children of God everywhere, suffering because of race of economic conditions . . . or through limitation on the exercise of their natural and civil rights." (1960 Easter message.)

On sports — "Sports have a place of merited significance amounting to a most valid coefficient for the harmonious development of man. There is wisdom in the ancient aphorism 'mens sana in corpore sano' (a sound mind in a sound body)." (January, 1963, audience.)

On a godless society — "The most fundamental modern error is that of considering the religious demand of the human soul as an expression of feeling or of fantasy, or a product of some contingent event and should be thus eliminated as an anachronism and as an obstacle to human progress." (1961 encyclical letter "Mater et Magistra".)

On the United Nations and similar agencies — "It is a characteristic of the modern world that there do in fact exist at international level institutions which devote themselves to the task of making law respected and of restraining violence. It is everyone's duty to ensure the success of their efforts." (December, 1962, diplomatic audience.)

On interpreting the Bible too literally — "The last judgment will be in the valley of Josaphat. I have been there myself, and I don't see how everyone will fit." (1959 general audience.)

To surgeons — "Remember the human in his totality, both body and soul, one mortal and the other immortal. . . . Keep a Christian attitude toward the ill, seeing in them the image of the suffering Christ." (May, 1960, audience for doctors.)

To journalists — "At one time, when I was young, I had a deep desire to be like you—a journalist. But each goes his own way, and here I am today. Yours is one of the best forms of dealing heart to heart with people. Always, always keep the truth on high." (January, 1963, audience.)

On authority — "Even the Pope has to obey. He has many advisers, monsignors and such." (At a boys reform school, November, 1962.)

On world population and birth control — "To seek a remedy to this very grave calamity (widespread hunger) there cannot be any adoption of erroneous doctrines and harmful methods and lethal limitation of offspring. . . . Earthly goods must be better distributed." (December, 1959, consistory.)

On family size — "Don't be afraid of the number of your sons and daughters. On the contrary, ask divine providence for them so that you can rear and educate them to their own benefit and to the glory of your fatherland here on earth and of that (fatherland) in heaven." (1958 address.)

On travel — "I especially like to travel by plane. You can see so much of the world in a short time. . . . I hope to travel some more." (After his October, 1962 pilgrimage across Italy, first papal train trip in a century.)

On daily toil — "It is in fact a high mission. It is for man an effective and intelligent collaboration with God the creator, from Whom man has received the goods of the earth, to cultivate them and make them prosper." (May, 1961, audience.)

On gossip — "The tongue is an organ between nose and chin which sometimes is used disproportionately. Hold it." (December, 1958, audience.)

On automation — "(Its negative effects) should not be borne exclusively by the workers or by certain groups of workers . . . (but rather should) weigh equally, or even more heavily, upon the investors of capital and, when opportune, even upon all members of the political community, since all in the final analysis benefit by such changes of automation." (October, 1961, audience.)

Two Cigarettes Daily After Lunch, Dinner

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John XXIII was the first Pope to smoke cigarettes.

He had two every day, one after lunch and another after dinner.

The cigarettes and coffee topped off simple meals which usually included soup, meat, vegetables, salad and fruit.

Another pope who smoked was Pius XI. But his taste was for the "Toscano," the strong twisted Italian cigar, rather than the cigarette.

Pope Spoke Out On Immorality, Scanty Dress

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With all his easy-going manner and joviality, the Pope had a reputation for speaking plainly when he thought the situation warranted. He held stern views on morals.

When he was Patriarch of Venice, he expressed disapproval of his clergy watching television, saying the programs on the Italian state network were lax and suggestive.

As patriarch, he took note of scantily-clad foreign tourists visiting his archdiocese and commented acidly:

"People need not come to Italy in furs and woolens; they can come dressed in that modern American silk, fresh and soft, which is a veritable refrigerator at low cost. Italy, on the other hand, is not on the equator, and even there, by the way, lions wear their coats and crocodiles are lined with their most precious hides."

He told churches to forbid entrance of persons in shorts or other brief attire.

Of gambling, he once said: "Gambling to begin with is a most grave disorder in itself and deplorable, and to be condemned wherever it may be practiced, even in secret."

Pontiff Held Nights Best for Working

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There was no time, Pope John XXIII thought, like the quiet night hours for getting work done.

So he often broke up his six hours of sleep to work at his desk. Frequently he retired at 8 p.m. and awoke at midnight. Then he worked until 6 a.m., when he returned to bed for a two-hour nap before starting his regular day.

However, he usually did not retire until 10 p.m.

But then he was up at 4 a.m. for an early start at the day's work.

Pope Knew Six Foreign Tongues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Long service in the Vatican diplomate corps gave Pope John a knowledge of seven languages. In addition to Italian and Latin he was fluent in Turkish, Greek, Bulgarian and French and was acquainted with Russian.

He had lived in Bulgaria, Greece, Turkey and France. Early in his Pontificate he took up the study of English so as to be able to talk with the many visitors who understood only that language.

Usually he used Italian or French.

SHADOW OF ALPS

Tiny Village Was His Home

VATICAN CITY (AP) — For Pope John XXIII, home was Sotto il Monte, a tiny village nestled in the shadow of the Alps.

There, most of his close relatives remained, never quite getting used to the idea that Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli had gone away to the big city and eventually become Pope.

The day before his coronation Nov. 4, 1958, his sister Assunta, carried to Rome a gift of homemade sausages.

"His stomach has always been delicate," she explained. "and God knows what kind of food they will give him here."

Assunta, who then was 74, journeyed to Rome for the coronation with three brothers, 18 of the Pope's nephews and nieces and 20 more distant relatives. All came from Sotto il Monte, about 50 miles from Milan and a hamlet with a name —meaning "under the mountain"—describing its location.

The three brothers—Zaverio, then 75, Alfredo, then 69, and Giuseppe, then 64—each carried a heavy cardboard suitcase.

"We brought along provisions to last out our stay here," Giuseppe said. "We have been told that city food is not as good as ours."

CONTRAST WAS SHARP

The next day, in the great Basilica of St. Peter's, the Pope's relatives had places of honor for the coronation services. They were dressed in their Sunday best. But it was the rough country clothing of the peasantry, and the contrast with the bejeweled Roman nobility present was sharp.

It dramatized Pope John's origin—as a countryman, the son of a sharecropper.

Giuseppe had recalled the Pope's background on the night he was elected pontiff a week before the coronation.

Sitting around a kitchen table in Sotto il Monte, Giuseppe told reporters:

"My father was not a rich man, and we did not have plenty of food. I remember sometimes when Angelo — he was a young man then and I was a child—was able to lunch on a dish of cornmeal and fried egg. He had the egg and I had to content myself with cleaning up the dish. But we were always healthy."

More than four years later, in 1962, when the Pope fell ill with a stomach disorder and serious anemia, Giuseppe remembered the good health and remained optimistic.

"The Pope has a health of iron," he said. "Of course at his age one cannot always be as well as a youth of twenty."

KEPT IN TOUCH

The brother also mentioned that once he became Pope, John XXIII no longer had the time to write his family personally but kept in touch through his secretary.

"When we want to see the Pope," said Giuseppe, "we turn on the television set."

Pope John was one of 12 children. At the time of his election only Assunta, Zaverio, Alfredo and Giuseppe were still alive. Their father, Giovan Battista Roncalli, died in 1935 at the age of 81. Their mother, Marianna Mazzola, died in 1939, when she was 84.

At the time he became Pope in 1958, John had 40 nieces, nephews, great nieces and great nephews. Almost all lived in Sotto il Monte.

NUCLEAR QUESTION

Positive Signs Of Goodwill

VATICAN CITY — On the possibility of nuclear warfare, Pope John said: "We cannot believe that the terrific energy now under the control of man will be released for the world's destruction. For, side by side with elements of fear and apprehension, there are positive signs of good will that is constructive and productive of good." (1961 Christmas message.)

On science — "Whether it be question of the investigations of the scientist or the skill of the technician or the courage of the operator, the church applauds this growing mastery over the forces of nature. She rejoices at all progress, present and to come, which enables man to perceive more clearly the infinite grandeur of the creator." (Diplomatic audience in December, 1962.)

Sergeant Pope Threw Bishop Snappy Salute

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For a moment he was not Pope John XXIII, but Sergeant Roncalli of the Italian army again.

That was one day when he received Italian prelates attending a meeting of the Italian episcopate. Among those present was Bishop Arrigo Pintonello, chief chaplain of the Italian army who wore the insignia of a general.

Pope John walked among the Bishops, letting each one kiss his ring. When he came to Bishop Pintonello, he suddenly snapped to "attention," saluted and said with a smile:

"Sir, Sergeant Roncalli at your command." As a chaplain in the medical corps in the First World War he had a sergeant's rank.

ECUMENICAL COUNCIL MADE HISTORY

Christian Unity Pope John's Main Aim

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Angelo Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli was elected pope in the autumn of 1958 some observers thought his reign would mark time. He was then almost 77 years old.

But the Pope, John XXIII, the name Cardinal Roncalli adopted, promptly ended such notions. This son of an Italian sharecropper embarked on his own dynamic course as Supreme Roman Catholic Pontiff and established himself as "the Pope of Unity."

He encouraged a new spirit of brotherhood. The theme of eventual Christian unity was emphasized repeatedly through his reign, and the Roman Catholic Church entered into its closest contacts with Protestants since the Reformation 400 years ago.

A precedent - breaker, he studded his reign with landmarks in every area of papal activity. And no landmark stood higher than the great worldwide Council of Roman Catholic bishops.

The Ecumenical Council was his major undertaking, a bold venture that other popes only had contemplated since the last Ecumenical Council at the Vatican in 1869-1870.

Church Renewal

Pope John conceived the idea within three months of his coronation. He set a goal of internal church renewal, pledging to prepare his own church first before pursuing the elusive goal of a united Christianity. He plunged energetically into council planning and asked his bishops in every part of the globe to send ideas.

And, finally, he opened the council in solemn grandeur Oct. 11, 1962, with 2,500 prelates arrayed as a legion of white before his throne in St. Peter's Basilica.

For two months the council fathers labored through their initial session, their words and feelings attentively heeded by Pope John.

More than once he added his own voice from outside the council hall to remove an obstacle, to simplify a procedure, to speed things up—all the while insisting on free expression for the bishops.

Council Impact Great

As the first stage of the council drew to a close in December 1962, a host of projects still lay untouched and tangible achievements were minute. But Catholic bishop and non-Catholic observer alike agreed that far more important was the spirit and impact behind the mere fact of the council itself.

By its very existence, even if it were dissolved without further action, it had already spanned the first great chasm dividing Christianity.

Not since the Reformation had representatives of the Roman Catholic Church and of non-Catholic churches met together with such goodwill at such high level. A few days after the council opened, the Pope received non-Catholic observers in a unique audience. He shunned his throne. It stood empty on a raised platform. Instead, he sat on a chair on the same level as the others, ranged around him in a circle. He promised to "hasten the hour" when all Christians would be united.

The heavy burden of setting up a council did not keep energetic Pope John confined to his studio in the Vatican palace. When the council was but a week away he boarded a train at dawn and embarked on a 16-hour rail pilgrimage across Italy to pray at shrines in Loreto and Assisi.

The 400-mile journey was the first train trip by a pope in 100 years. It carried the Pontiff to hundreds of thousands of small-town people in the distant countryside who never dreamed of seeing him anywhere but in Rome.

The Italian farmer's son with a love of travel added a more significant page to papal history that day than a spectacular train ride would indicate.

Papal Seclusion Ended

The long pilgrimage was the final break from a fading idea that the papacy is a self-imposed imprisonment, keeping a pontiff perpetually within quick reach of the 108-acre Vatican State.

The seclusion began in 1870 when Italian nationalists wrested Rome from papal rule to make it the capital of modern Italy. The march of troops into the Eternal City 92 years ago also brought the last council, which had proclaimed papal infallibility, to an abrupt close.

Even after the Lateran Pacts of 1929, no one put the new accord between the Vatican and Italy to the full test until Pope John.

Following the papal election of 1958, Italians strolling the streets of Rome became somewhat used to seeing twin police motorcycles clear the way for a black Vatican limousine. Inside would be the smiling white-robed figure of Pope John—out in the city to visit a jail or reform school, encourage an aged friend or comfort an ailing bishop in a hospital.

If the cardinals were caught by surprise by the Pope's announcement of an Ecumenical Council in January, 1959, they must have been at least mildly startled even earlier at the swiftness of his decisions.

Pleaded for Peace

Less than a day after he was chosen ruler of the Roman Catholic Church, Pope John delivered a radio plea for world peace. He made so many further appeals for peace that a Vatican functionary who kept track said Pope John spoke out on the subject more often than his predecessor, Pius XII, who was known as "The Pope of Peace."

Just before Easter 1963 the Pope issued an encyclical entitled "Pacem in Terris" (Peace on Earth). Its broad appeal for all basic human rights drew a response from governments around the world and from spokesmen of other faiths.

The United States government, which never had commented on a papal pronouncement, called it an "historic encyclical."

The encyclical, divided into five parts, considered the relations among men, their rights and duties as citizens of the state, the conduct of affairs between nations, the world community and pastoral advice to Roman Catholics.

Appealing for disarmament, the encyclical declared:

"People live in constant fear lest the storm that every moment threatens should break upon them with dreadful violence . . . Even though it is difficult to believe that anyone would deliberately take the responsibility for the appalling destruction and sorrow that war would bring in its train, it cannot be denied that the conflagration may be set off by some incontrollable and unexpected chance. . . .

"Justice, then right, reason and humanity urgently demand that the arms race should cease; that the stockpiles which exist in various countries should be reduced equally and simultaneously by the parties concerned; that nuclear weapons should be banned; and that a general agreement should eventually be reached about progressive disarmament and an effective method of control."

Met With Russians

Among those at a general audience at which the Pope was notified of the prize were Alexei Adzhubei and his wife, son-in-law and daughter of Premier Nikita Khrushchev. The Pope saw the couple in a private audience later.

The meeting inspired speculation about a thaw in Vatican-Moscow relations. In the month prior to the meetings, observers noted a change which was extending even to satellite nations.

Within three weeks of his election as 261st Supreme Pontiff, John broke a 372-year-old tradition by increasing the size of the College of Cardinals to more than 70.

He called a consistory to create 23 cardinals for a total of 74. A year later, after four cardinals had died, he named eight more to give the college 78 members.

His third consistory in 1960 created another seven cardinals and brought the total to an unprecedented 85. He said he was keeping the names of three more cardinals "in pectore"—in his breast. The three were kept secret presumably because they live in Communist lands where added difficulty might have followed elevation to the purple.

Pope John returned the total to 85 by naming another four cardinals later in 1960 to replace vacancies from death. A March, 1962, consistory made 10 new cardinals and put the college at an all-time high of 87.

Americans Named

Pope John made cardinals of five American prelates—Archbishops Richard Cushing of Boston, John F. O'Hara of Philadelphia, Albert Gregory Meyer of Chicago, Aloisius J. Muench of Fargo, N.D.; and Joseph Elmer Ritter of St. Louis. Cardinals O'Hara and Muench died before Pope John.

Amleto Giovanni Cardinal Cicognani, who had been apostolic delegate to the United States for a quarter century, was Pope John's secretary of state, his closest administrator.

With an awareness of the growth of the half-billion-member Roman Catholic Church beyond Europe and the Americas, Pope John created the first African negro cardinal, the first Filipino cardinal and the first Japanese cardinal. For the first time all the races of mankind were represented in the College of Cardinals.

His action underlined his belief in the brotherhood of mankind at a time of racial tension. "Our sorrowing gaze," he said, "turns also to the other children of God everywhere, suffering because of race or economic conditions . . . or through the limitation on the exercise of their natural and civil rights."

Matching the importance of trying to move toward Christian unity through an Ecumenical Council, Pope John in 1960 instituted a unique secretariat for promoting unity. Like Pope Pius, John had ordered modernization of Bible studies. Aware of the great importance that Protestants place in scriptures, he named a German Jesuit Biblical scholar to head the historic unity secretariat.

Augustin Cardinal Bea, the man chosen for the job, arranged contacts with leading non-Catholic churchmen and invited them to the council. Pope John had said he wanted the observers "to follow the work of the council and to find more easily the path" that might one day reunite all Christianity with Rome.

Ecumenical Councils such as Pope John called are rare in Catholicism's 2,000-year history. "Il Papa del Concilio"—"the Pope of the Council," as Romans named him—saw in the 21st council he had gathered together the first promising change since the Reformation to heal divided Christendom.

The first council, in 325, set the date for Easter. The third, in 431, declared Mary the mother of God.

One of the most important was the 19th, or Council of Trent, which lasted 18 years, from 1545 to 1563. It examined and condemned the beliefs of Martin Luther and tightened the flagging discipline of the Roman Catholic Church itself.

Priest First of All

Pope John was, first of all a priest in the purest sense of the word. When he was Patriarch of Venice, he always showed a willingness to receive anyone who wished to see him. He explained that "I must think that whoever calls on me might also be coming to confess his sins."

His election to succeed Pope Pius XII took place on October 28, 1958, and he went to work energetically almost the minute he emerged from the solemn conclave of cardinals.

The announcement of his election came in the evening. The next morning, moving with unprecedented speed, he addressed a radio message to the world. This was a plea for world peace.

He directed the appeal, on the first full day of his pontificate, to "the rulers of all the nations in whose hands are placed the fate, the prosperity and hopes of the individual peoples."

In taking up the cause of world tranquility, he carried on the campaign of his predecessor, who was known as "the Pope of Peace."

His 12-minute address, delivered in Latin before the Sacred College of Cardinals, was relayed over several national networks to many countries. Thus, in effect, it was delivered to the entire world.

Address Commended

He called on the world's leaders to channel man's genius into paths of peace. He said the people did not ask for "those monstrous means of war discovered in our time, which can cause fraternal massacre and universal slaughter."

The people asked instead, he continued, "peace in virtue in which the human family can live freely, flourish and prosper—tranquility and concord from which alone can rise a true prosperity."

President Dwight D. Eisenhower wrote the Pope that "I share with you the fervent desire for a peaceful solution of the momentous problems which beset mankind." (The Soviet press commented favorably on the Pontiff's address.)

When Eisenhower was on a tour of 11 countries in late 1959 he visited the Vatican and was received in private audience by the Pope.

Pope John, speaking in English, said he rejoiced that the United States, under Eisenhower, was "striving so actively . . . toward the lofty ideals of a loyal and effective concord between nations."

The Pontiff, who had been studying English for a relatively short time, apologized for his pronunciation. But Eisenhower congratulated him and said his pronunciation was excellent.

Other Callers

An unprecedented event occurred in the winter of 1960 when Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, then Archbishop of Canterbury, and Pope John held an hour-long conference at the Vatican. Never before had a primate of the Church of England visited a supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic Church.

Both the Anglican Church and the Vatican stressed the cordiality of the meeting. As expected the somewhat guarded communique made no mention of movement toward greater unity in the Christian faith.

The Vatican communique referred to the Archbishop's visit as one "of homage and courtesy." The Archbishop said the meeting could lead to a lessening of the 500-year-old coolness between the two churches.

A few months later, the Pope and Queen Elizabeth II met as heads of church and state. The Pope hailed their meeting as a crowning manifestation of friendly relations between the Vatican and Britain.

It was Elizabeth's second meeting with a pope but her first as a reigning monarch and head of the Church of England. In 1951, when she was Princess Elizabeth, she was received by Pope Pius XII. In both instances she was accompanied by Prince Philip to the private meetings.

Longest Encyclical

Pope John's sixth encyclical, issued in the summer of 1961, was the longest in the history of the church—25,000 words in its English version.

In it, he urged wealthy nations to help backward nations to ease poverty and promote lasting peace. This aid should be sincere and disinterested to avoid imposition of a new colonialism, he declared.

"Probably the most difficult problem of the modern world," said Pope John, "concerns the relationship between political communities that are economically advanced and those in the process of development.

He called it "indispensable" that technical and financial aid be given by more advanced nations to those in the developing stage "in sincere political disinterestedness" to balance the differences between excessive production and misery and hunger.

The encyclical ranged over the broad spectrum of the world's 20th century social problems and reaffirmed the church's attitude on them.

The Pope urged employers to restrict profits and assure adequate wages for workers. And he said nations now have in their grasp the means "to prevent the recurrence of massive unemployment."

Pope John was the 262nd pontiff on the official list of sovereigns of the church when he was elected, but later became the 261st. Here's why:

The official Vatican yearbook for 1961 dropped from the list Pope Stephen II, an eighth century Roman priest who died two days after his election.

Footnotes in the new yearbook and in previous editions said his name did not appear on early lists of popes because he died before his coronation. It was the practice in the eighth century not to consider a man pope until his coronation.

The 1961 yearbook dropped Stephen II following a decision by its editors to go by the custom of the time in which he lived—that his pontificate had never started because he had not been crowned.

Of Peasant Stock

Pope John—who at 76 (he was within a month of 77) was older at the time of his election as pontiff than any pope in 228 years—moved with an energy that belied his age. (Clement XII was 78 when he became pope in 1730. He reigned for 10 years.)

His dynamism seemed to be a heritage of his robust peasant background.

The Roncallis had lived for centuries in the shadow of the Alps in Sotto Il monte, a north Italian village with a name meaning "Under the Mountain." There, on Nov. 25, 1881, Angelo Giuseppe was born in the old stone house which had been the family homestead for generations.

Of the 12 Roncalli children he was the fourth-born. But he was the oldest of the boys, and the apple of his father's eye.

It was a warm father-son relationship, and the Pope did not forget it. On his election, he said one reason he chose the name of John was that his father's name was Giovan Battista (John Baptist) Roncalli.

Life was hard for the Roncallis. Food often was scarce.

Angelo Giuseppe, as the oldest son, would have been a valuable asset on the farm. But he had a talent for study and a thirst for knowledge. The elementary school was eight miles away but through summer heat and winter snowstorms he walked every day.

His parents were devout Catholics. Pope John, on the night of his coronation, was to recall how he had gone, as a boy of 7, to a religious meeting on the shoulders of his father.

So, just after his 11th birthday, when he asked to enter a seminary, the future Pontiff's parents agreed. Most farm boys would have halted their schooling at that age, but the other Roncallis decided to work harder so that Angelo Giuseppe could be spared.

Entered Seminary

He started his studies at the Seminary of Bergamo, a city a few miles from Sotto Il Monte, in 1892. Twelve years later—on Aug. 10, 1904—he was ordained a priest in Rome's Santa Maria in Monte church. He celebrated his first mass in the Great Basilica of St. Peter's.

The qualifications of the young priest were immediately obvious to his bishop, Msgr. Radini - Tedeschi of Bergamo, and Roncalli became the prelate's personal secretary in 1905. He held this post until the bishop died in 1914.

At Bergamo the future Pope gained an early knowledge of the administrative structure of the Roman Catholic Church. He also gained experience as a teacher, giving a course in ecclesiastic history at the Bergamo seminary.

History had been his passion, and he started to indulge it.

Wrote on Subject

Bergamo is about 50 miles from Milan, and Father Roncalli journeyed there as often as he could to do research in the archives of the Milan curia and the Ambrosiana library. This Catholic institute then was presided over by Msgr. Achille Ratti, who was to become Pope Pius XI.

Out of Roncalli's research came the first volume of a history, "La visita apostolica di San Carlo Borromeo nella Diocesi di Bergamo nel 1575 (The apostolic visit of Saint Charles Borromeo in the diocese of Bergamo in 1575)." Later he was to write six more volumes, each about 600 pages long.

Saint Charles Borromeo, Archbishop of Milan and papal Secretary of State to Pius V in the 16th century, became a favorite of Father Roncalli, and when he was elected Pope, he chose the saint's feast day—Nov. 4—as the day of his coronation.

In World War I he served as a chaplain in the Italian army medical corps with the rank of sergeant.

Many Assignments

The war over, he returned to his province of Bergamo for a three-year term on the faculty of the seminary.

In 1921, he was summoned from his home province to begin a series of Vatican assignments which were to bring him praise from three popes.

First, Pope Benedict XV gave him the task of reorganizing the administrative machinery of the Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith which directs the worldwide missionary activities of the Church.

Pius XI, who succeeded Benedict in 1922, sent young Roncalli to many foreign missionary centres over the next four years.

In 1925, he was made a bishop and transferred to the Vatican's diplomatic service, in which he remained for 28 years. His first post was as apostolic visitor to Bulgaria. Then in 1934 he was moved to Turkey as apostolic vicar and delegate. At the same time he was made delegate to Greece.

He remained in the Balkans through the first years of the Second World War.

Then to Paris

Late in 1944, when his secretary was away for the Christmas holidays, a secret coded cable arrived in Ankara. Roncalli had to decipher it himself. When he did, he thought he had made a mistake. The cable informed him that he had been named papal nuncio to liberated Paris.

Vatican circles later said he rushed to Rome from Turkey and asked secretariat officials: "Are you mad? How could you think of asking me to take such a difficult post?"

It is said the official replied curtly that they had not thought of it—Pius XII had.

On New Year's Day of 1945, Roncalli presented his credentials to Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the French provisional leader. It was a difficult time. Many Frenchmen had questioned the Vatican's maintenance of diplomatic ties with Vichy France during the war.

As the new papal nuncio, Roncalli set about mending fences. He was a seasoned diplomat. He had the quality of joviality that distinguishes people from Bergamo province. The combination was a winner. Soon the Church-state difficulties were straightened out.

Cardinal In 1953

He had many friends in France, and when he was elected pope, Frenchmen remembered him with affection and spoke as if a French prelate had been chosen for the papacy.

He remained in France eight years, until Pius XII showed his recognition for Roncalli's work by making him a cardinal.

It was a Socialist, the then President Vincent Auriol of France, who conferred the cardinal's biretta on Roncalli, ending a diplomatic career which had taken him through every country in Europe and many in the Middle East.

Three days after he was made a Prince of the Church on Jan. 12, 1953, he was named Patriarch of Venice. (The old Venetian republic had a patriarch, and the tradition continued after Venice was absorbed into united Italy and became an archdiocese.)

A procession of gondolas carried Cardinal Roncalli through the Grand Canal, while thousands cheered, when he took over his see as patriarch. He told his flock upon arrival in Venice:

"I was born of poor parents. Providence took me from my native hamlet and led me to travel the roads of the world, from east to west, putting me in contact with most serious social and political problems . . . (but) don't look at your patriarch as a politician or diplomat—look at him as the servant of God."

He was to emphasize the prelate's duties as a "servant of God" through his years in Venice and afterward when he became Pope.

Cardinal Roncalli loved Venice. Often he walked the narrow twisting little streets of the city. He browsed about the city's bookstores. He traveled in north Italy, visiting historical sites. In the summer he returned to Sotto Il Monte for a few weeks vacation with his surviving brothers and sisters. They had remained on the farm.

Venetians learned to admire their patriarch. He often talked of charity and social rights for the human family. He ordered modifications in St. Mark's church to permit the faithful to get nearer to the saints' relics.

The bell tower of the church was restored and the cardinal—then 75—happily climbed the narrow wooden steps all the way to the top.

Many Reasons For Choosing Name 'John'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pope said there were many reasons why he had picked the name of John:

His father's name was John. He wanted to show his esteem for John the Baptist. His see as Bishop of Rome was the Basilica of St. John Lateran. He had been baptized in a church of St. John. He had been patriarch of the archdiocese of Venice, whose patron saint is St. John Mark.

Beyond these expressed reasons, Vatican sources said, it was likely he wanted to bring back into use the name which had been the most popular among popes but had been in disuse since the early 15th century.

At that time, Italian-born Baldassare Cossa took the name of John XXIII. However, he later was considered by the church as an anti-pope, or false claimant to the papal throne.

JOHN XXIII

263rd link in an almost 2,000 year old chain,
John XXIII earned the love of his people by his endearing
geniality and humour as well as the intensity of his Fatherly care.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Fisherman Drowns On Weekend Outing

ALERT BAY (CP) — A 45-year-old man was drowned during the weekend when he became separated from two fishing companions on Vernon Lake.

RCMP here, who are withholding the man's name, said he pushed off in a skiff at the southern end of the lake while two companions went to the northern end.

When the pair returned, they found the skiff floating upside down and no sign of their companion.

Police said there was no doubt the man drowned.

'Most Important Years' Outlined for Graduates

DUNCAN — Michael Lawrance, valedictorian at this year's graduation exercises for 104 Grade 12 students at Cowichan Senior Secondary School, addressed his classmates Friday on "the most important years of our lives."

Attending were more than 1,000 parents and friends of the graduating students.

Scholarships, bursaries and awards were presented to the following students: Wolfgang Schamberger, Jaycee award for highest standing in science presented by Gordon Doman, and the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company Ltd. scholarship for a student on university program presented by Ike Barber; Micheal Lawrence, union award of King's Daughters' Hospital Employees' Association presented by Mrs. Mary Young; Eileen Meyneil, Duncan Chapter bursary of the Registered Nurses' Association presented by Miss A. Jennings; Siegrfied John Szabo, Dogwood Chapter bursary presented by Mrs. John Lawrence; Allan Hugh Farmer, Duncan Rotary scholarship presented by Peter Bird; Calvin Mitchell Banks, Cowichan District Parent-Teacher Council bursary presented by Mrs. Pat Mason; Jolanda Naomi Deleeuw, Duncan Business and Professional Women's Club bursary; Gordon Harris, Cowichan branch of Royal Canadian Legion bursary presented by Ted Sutton; and Constance Gibson, MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company Ltd. scholarship for a student on general program.

Mrs. G. J. Morgan, 3557 Saanich Road, was named new president of Tolmie PTA at a recent meeting.

Other officers include: Mrs. J. Storey, secretary; Mrs. J. Wheeler, treasurer and Mrs. R. Justice, program chairman.

FIRST ISSUE OUT

Consumer Guide For Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — The first fearless step in testing brand-name products to determine the "best buy" has been takn by th Canadian Association of Consumers with publication of its opinions of portable electric drills, first-aid kits and so-called ASA tablets.

The association names the brands it judges best after laboratory tests and price considerations, and spells out shortcomings in others. The testing labs are not named but the CAC says they are well-equipped and headed by scientists.

Results are published in English and French in the first issue of Canadian Consumer, basically a 20-page version of Consumer Reports, published in the United States by the Consumers Union.

The Canadian booklet costs 60 cents. The CAC says it plans to publish the booklet six times a year, including in each issue the results of tests of at least two products.

'NOT SLOW ENOUGH'

The CAC tested one sample of each of 11 brands of portable electric drills. Among its findings:

"None of the drills tested was slow enough for really low-speed drilling — to drill holes in masonry, for instance, a speed-reducing adaptor would have to be used."

"The Consumers Association brought and tested 13 brands of three types of ASA—acetylsalicylic acid—tablets, and found all of them satisfactory, "with no apparent relationship between price and quality."

Prices ranged from one-fifth of a cent for Sunnybrook and Eaton's ASA tablets to 1.05 cents for ASA tabloid empirin.

Regarding first aid kits, the booklet states that a person can get "a better kit for less money" if he is prepared to assemble his own on the basis of recommendations by CAC medical consultants. Of 13 commercial kits examined, none contained ASA tablets or an antiseptic solution, known as aqueous cetavalon, both of which are recommended for inclusion in any such kit by the CAC consultants.

Tourist Plans Show Province U.S. Favorite

Even in the New York and Chicago areas, the survey showed, about 10 per cent of the people placed B.C. at the top of their interest list while in San Francisco the figure rose to 26 per cent—well ahead of all other provinces.

Sightseeing tops the list of vacation activities, followed by fishing. About 10 per cent of the New York and Chicago people questioned placed accommodation at the top of their interest list while the figure was only 7.5 per cent for San Franciscans.

The survey also showed the vast majority of people intended to travel by car — 84.4 per cent in Chicago and 79 per cent in San Francisco.

Very few people questioned worried about what kind of weather they would encounter on their holidays. Less than 1 per cent of the New Yorkers and Chicagoans listed weather as an attraction and only 2 per cent of the San Franciscans.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Francis E. Walter (Dem.—Pa.) died Friday in Georgetown University Hospital. He was 69. Walter was chairman of the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities.

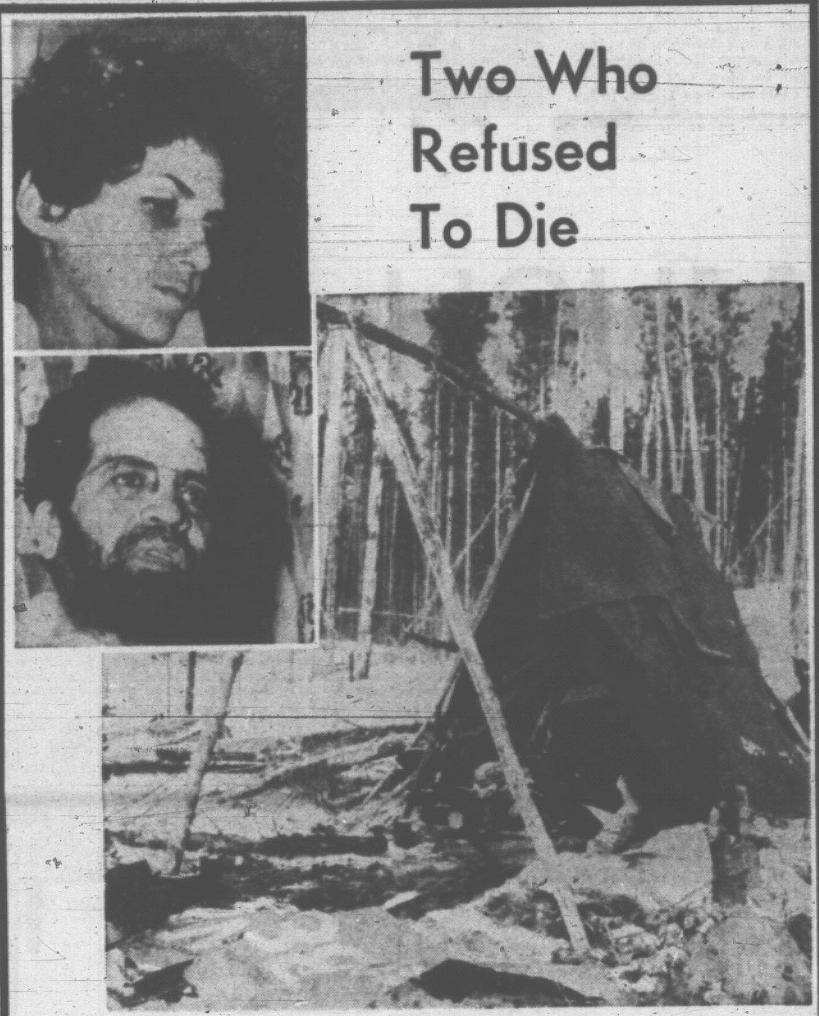
Two Who Refused To Die



Ralph Flores, 42, a Mexican-born U.S. citizen and Helen Klaben, 21, a pretty Brooklyn-born girl, struggling for survival and holding on to life with ferocious tenacity, miraculously emerged alive after a 49-day ordeal in the wilderness of north British Columbia in sub-Arctic winter conditions when their small, ill-equipped plane crashed last January. The dramatic story of the survivors is told in full for the first time to Thomas Whiteside, and through exclusive Canadian rights appears in the Times Weekend Magazine this Saturday.

Best Sailing Race Ever Observers 'Almost' Call It

By JOHN MIKA

It almost never got started.

But for the slow start, it almost finished in record time.

And it almost had a Horatio Alger winner.

But there were plenty of thrilling — and boring — moments for the spectators as well as participants.

Notes Show Drama

Saturday, 8:10 A.M.—Scores of yachts, tall masts bare, glided silently by in pairs, threes and fours moving under auxiliary power through the calm Inner Harbor heading for the starting line.

9:30 A.M. — Thousands of people and cars line the Dallas Road waterfront, aircraft and helicopters buzz overhead, power boats skip through the armada of sails, the starting gun barks—and everyone drifts with canvas limp under the warm sun.

12:30 P.M.—A splendid but heartbreaking sight with dozens of yachts spread out from Clover Point to Albert Head their white, red, blue, green, yellow and black sails presenting a tremendously colorful panorama—but no action. Crew members on all the yachts loll droopily on decks, crack half-hearted jokes as we pass and just sweat with frustration and heat.

Reflects Beauty

1:00 P.M. — Photographers aboard Sudbury repeatedly exclaim over beauty of the sails—all of them reflected perfectly by glazed surface of the sea, showing bars, stripes and patches of each colored sail.

3:45 P.M.—A slight breeze crinkles away the sails' reflections and lighter yachts have spread beyond Metchosin. Stormy weather raises a clear plastic jib sail and the laughter of her crew wafts hundreds of yards over the stilly scene.

Run Before Wind

4:10 P.M. — We're in The Race now and the race is really under way. Strong breeze and tide put bones in the teeth of Ladaro, Sulaire and Nimbus as they run before the wind.

Ladaro—first time in the Swiftsure and a virtual unknown—heeled right over on a starboard tack with one gunwhale awash and her crew hanging over the other shouting derisive war whoops back at the bigger eight-metre Sulaire trying vainly to catch them. Instantly, the underdog Larado became the darling of those watching from the Sudbury.

5:15 P.M.—Mighty Oriole, the biggest entry and crawling with RCN cadets, moved majestically under a white cloud of sail through The Race, passing some of the smaller yachts trailing the field. Sky clouding over and the wind kicking over some white caps.

6:30 P.M. — Breeze still strong and the whole field—sails from horizon to horizon—appears heading for the American shore.

8 P.M.—Off Sheringham Point with a good southwest wind and an ebbing tide Sulaire, Winsome III, Maredea; in centre strait Courageous and Oriole; on American side Sea Fever, Odios, Diamond Head, Troubador and gallant little Ladaro.

10 P.M.—It will be a clear night with a good breeze and it's obvious that Ladaro, with an eight-hour time allowance, will win the Swiftsure in her first time out if she keeps up the blistering pace.

5:30 A.M. SUNDAY — Bobbing crazily in the Pacific swell as we watch sails coming through pearly morning light to round RCN Beacon Hill, anchored at the Swiftsure ledge and also bobbing like a cork.

Breeze strong and first ship around the mark is Adios at 5:38 with a perfectly-executed turn around.

Almost immediately she set her tall spinnaker and grew smaller in the distance as she flew before a steady 20-knot westerly wind, not quite an hour ahead of Courageous which was next to round the mark.

Sub Under Sail

6:30 A.M. — Sulaire rounds Beacon Hill looking for all the world like a submarine under sail. Her sleek, narrow hull and clinging crew members in slickers and life vests completely disappear from view as she drops into each trough. The next moment she's heaved up on the crest of the wave, spewing salt water and showing her rounded hull and part of her keel.

7 TO 8 A.M.—Traffic out here at the edge of the open Pacific is busier than at Douglast and Yates at this hour on Sunday.

Yachts converge on Beacon Hill from both sides, coming 'round two and three abreast, criss-crossing beyond her and raising more spinnakers as they streak for home.

Within the hour more than 30 boats swept around the mark, yoyo-fashion on the heaving ocean swell. Some swung wide and others, trying to save every second, almost scraped the paint off Beacon Hill's stern as they sped by on a hard tack.

10 A.M.—Slowly overtaking Adios dead ahead as Sudbury II hisses through the sea at 10 knots. We've passed one beautiful yacht after another straining to get home. Skies alternately overcast and sunny. Wind steady. Sea Fever and Courageous off the stern, miles back.

And that's the way it ended as crowds on the Ogden Point breakwater cheered Adios over the finish line hours later.

Showers Sunday brought some relief to Saanich growers who feared lower yields from the strawberry crops due to the lack of moisture in May.

T. G. Michell, president of the Saanich Fruit Growers Association said the rain proved most beneficial, but more moisture within the next 10 days would do much to help the berries along.

"It's the warm winds with low humidity which dry out the fields," he said.

Meanwhile, the National Employment Service office would like people who want to work on berry farms this summer to register their names now at the NES form labor office.

TIMES STORY BRINGS OFFERS

Carr Fans Save Emily's Home

By LESLIE MILLIN

Emily Carr's last home will be saved from the wreckers.

The little house at 218 St. Andrews Street will be sold, and just who will buy it is uncertain.

But all the offers on the house, since The Times broke the story Saturday that it was for sale, have been made with the intention of preserving the house as a memorial.

Officials of the Canada Permanent Toronto General Trust Company, administrators of the "secret trust" of which the house is a part, confirmed today that "many" offers have been made over the weekend, and that offers are still coming in.

OWNER TO DECIDE

Decision on which offer will be accepted is up to the owner, believed to be Walter Koerner of Vancouver.

But since the highest bid will not necessarily be accepted — "We don't want an auction sale atmosphere," say trust officials — decision will likely be on a first-come-first-served basis that would put the house into the hands of the preservers.

Original asking price for the house was $7,000, and when the house was first put onto the market it was thought by trust officials to be almost inevitable that the historic home would be razed to make room for a high-rise apartment building.

USED AS SCHOOL

The ramshackle, multi-level house—basically a cabin, with lean-tos added—was the property of Emily's sister, Miss Alice Carr, who used it as a house and school.

Emily spent the last few years of her life there, prior to her death in 1945.

Alice lived on until 1953. After her death, the house was occupied successively by artists Jan Zach and Margaret Peterson.

News that the house might be torn down raised a storm among Victoria artists that turned to jubilation today with the news that the home is to be preserved.

CAN RECREATE STUDIO

Victoria Art Gallery curator Colin Graham called it "great news, just wonderful.

"The Art Gallery has photographs of the inside of the house taken when Emily occupied it, so that it would be fairly easy to recreate her studio."

Mr. Graham indicated that if the new owner wished to set the house up as an Emily Carr museum or shrine, it would be relatively easy to acquire some of the late artist's works for it.

MANY CURIOUS

There would be no shortage of people wishing to see the house.

Writer Howard O'Hagan, last tenant of the house, told The Times on Saturday that there was a regular flow of people who wanted to see the home.

On Sunday afternoon, curious Victorians visited the house in droves, at one time completely clogging narrow St. Andrews Street with their cars as they tried to get what many thought a "last look" at the Carr home.

'Pull Together Or Face Ruin

Mayor Hits Parochial Planning

Unless all of Greater Victoria pulls together the impact of increasing urbanization and fragmentized planning could ruin this area, Mayor R. B. Wilson warned today.

"It would be a tragedy—it really would—to spoil one of the most desirable parts of Canada through parochial planning," he said.

He said he was sure Victoria would do its part to prepare and carry out a plan for the good of the entire area.

DELEGATE RIGHTS

"I feel very strongly that the city should be willing to delegate some of its rights and privileges to the common good," Mayor Wilson said.

This would take the form of adoption of a community plan by the Capital Region Planning Board.

He said he was most impressed with the universal recognition at last week's Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Toronto that overall planning for an area was essential for a healthy community.

"There were a large number of people at the convention who voluntarily expressed the opinion that Victoria—meaning undoubtedly southern Vancouver Island—was one of the most beautiful places in Canada.

"That puts a very great responsibility on those of us in civic government here to see this area is not spoiled."

ANALYSIS

The mayor also said city council would analyze a list of capital projects to see which could be undertaken under a new federal plan for establishing a $400,000,000 civic loan fund "as soon as we know what kind of projects will qualify."

He said the city would have to wait introduction of the legislation in the Commons, then choose the projects it would undertake under the program, obtain provincial government endorsement and ratepayer approval for a money bylaw before any work could start.

ANTI-SMOKE APPEAL MADE TO BURNERS

Smoke committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow today appealed to apartment and office building owners and householders to join the anti-smoke campaign.

He pointed out firms like B.C. Forest Products have done their bit by installing expensive control machinery to reduce fly ash.

"But I know that a lot of apartment and office buildings take no precautions at all when burning their rubbish and consequently are getting to be as much of a problem as industry was," he said.

Ald. Edgelow said he had heard that government buildings also, specifically naming the post office, were creating a fly ash problem.

SPEAKER at the annual meeting of the B.C. Institute of Chartered Accountants June 14 will be J. O. Hemmingsen, vice-president, logging, for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd. Meeting will take place in the Tally-Ho Travelodge Hotel, June 13-14.

Archer Report Still Soaring Out of Reach

Public release of the Archer report on Greater Victoria policing is being delayed "out of courtesy" to municipalities involved, a spokesman for the attorney-general's department said today.

But who will release it?

City and provincial officials seem to have been playing a game of Archer report passing.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the report is a government document and the city couldn't release it.

The attorney-general's spokesman said the report was made at the request of city police commission and he didn't know who would make the release.

"I am sure the government would not unnecessarily delay the release," Mayor Wilson said. "I hope it is released as soon as possible."

The provincial spokesman said the report has been given to the city on a confidential basis and Attorney-General Robert Bonner is interviewing the other reeves one by one to give them the portions relevant to their police forces.

So far, he said, one municipality has been given the report.

Mr. Bonner is in Ottawa this week for Columbia River power talks.

There will be no public release at least until he has seen all the reeves.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me what the magnetic bearing of Green Mountain, near the Nanaimo Lakes, is from Empress Mountain at Sooke? What is the distance between these two mountains? D.G.H.

A. Green Mountain is west-north-west of Empress Mountain. They are 50 miles apart.

Q. What is Red Skelton's first name?

A. Richard.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Tray Converts to Table By Simply Unfolding Legs

By PENNY SAVER

"I've got an idea for Penny Saver," exulted Linda, who gets rather tired of Penny always knowing just where to go for every item she needs. Unfortunately for my ego, it was a good idea.

Object is a tray which can also serve as a coffee table. Tray is about 21x15 inches with deep two-inch sides and is made of silver alloy that won't tarnish. It features a design worked into the metal as are designs on copper. It is all hand-worked and comes from Mexico.

What makes it so special are the folding legs which come with the tray so that it can be placed on them and used inside or out with no worries about what to do when there are no tables near. It's good for TV dinners, too, Linda says.

Price for this size is $8.95. Larger version sells for $11.95. If you don't want it for yourself, it would make an excellent wedding gift or birthday present, as Linda's was.

Gift shop also carries unusual skirts which are hand woven in Guatemala. Basic colors of brown, navy and black are brightened with a riot of color in the bands of embroidery that cover bottom half of skirt. There is one with bright red background that is particularly pretty. All are $10.95 and come in waist sizes 24-32.

Perfect to go with skirts are peasant blouses which have hand worked cross-stitch designs or rows of hand-made lace circling neck line. All have elastic in neck and sleeves and fit any size.

Special now for bongo beaters are regulation size drums for $6.95 or $9.95 and children's size for $3.95. Store also has more expensive kind that player can tune which sell for $19.95.

Call Penny at 382-3131 if you are interested in Linda's idea or just the things I found for today!

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

New Experiences Might Offer a Pleasant Surprise

Lowman

It seems to me that adaptability, or the talent to adapt to changing circumstances, is not only one of the most rewarding characteristics a person could have, but one which is essential to survival.

This can make the difference between happiness and despair, between fun and hecticness, between success and failure, between prolonged youthfulness and premature aging. Usually the person who can adapt with grace to new circumstances is interested in new experiences and also concentrates on the good elements rather than the bad ones in any situation.

I must warn you, though, that this will get you into some difficult and humorous situations. Not long ago I invited a friend of mine to have dinner with me. She accepted but said, "Come on down to my apartment and we will go from there."

I did. A log fire was burning and we talked. The weather was very bad outside and so my friend said, "Why don't we eato here? I can fix don't we eat here? I can fix chicken wings."

I thought she was joking and she noticed my startled expression and said, "Oh, you don't like chicken wings? They have the most delicate flavor of all the chicken." I stalled with "Oh, no, I like them" but my stomach was churning under my girdle.

My friend is a very perceptive person. She took one look at me and said, "Haven't you ever eaten a chicken wing?" I had to admit "No." She immediately insisted that we go out for dinner but I insisted that I would like to try the wings. All the time I kept telling myself, "Now, Jo, you must be brave. Brace yourself because you will have to eat at least two or three to be polite." The only part of a chicken I ever had before was white meat or a drumstick.

This shows that adaptability pays because the wings were delicious. However they were prepared in a special way so that the bones were so crisp you ate them too. I have since learned that this is quite a gourmet item.

BE SMART—

All flipped coins are coming up heads this summer. For all casual wear adopt the Riviera scarf—a sheer lace, organdy, cotton or silk triangle to save your coif from random breezes. It could be plain and lovely, or fancied up with feminine flowers, bows or trims.

Irene
Gilbert

There are three points to this fashion story by Irene Gilbert. Two of them are in the cut of the pretend bib and tunic, the third is in the top-stitching detail that runs around every important seam an inch away from the edges. As is always a fact with an Irene Gilbert design, the cut is very much "couture," immediately noticeable in the modified A line of the body, the side panels that add pleasant shaping to the middle ground, and the manner in which she handles the sleeves. Although they have a kimono effect, the sleeves are set in, high under the arm for perfect fit and comfort. Pastels are still up there at the top for summer smartness but black is making strong inroads on their popularity. Whatever your color choice, the fabric can be linen, matelasse cotton, pique, sharkskin, shantung or even lightweight wool. Stitching might be matching or contrasting depending on your other accessories. From these corresponding body measurements select the size best for you. Our sizing is comparable to that used for better ready-to-wear.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Make New Arrangements!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a six-foot, 46-year-old baby. I can't get him out of bed in the morning. When the alarm rings, he shuts it off, puts his head under the covers, and goes back to sleep. Our arrangement is that when the alarm goes off he is supposed to shut it off, get up and put the coffee on, and then I get up and fix breakfast. Well, as I said, he shuts off the alarm and crawls back in bed again. If I try to get him up, he says, "Oh, my back," or "I didn't sleep a wink last night." What makes me angry is that, when he is going fishing, he can get up at 4:30 a.m. without any trouble, fix his own breakfast, and take off with no help from me. What do you think?

PLAIN MAD.

DEAR PLAIN: Your husband is a healthy, normal, six foot, 46-year-old comfort creature. When the alarm rings, YOU shut it off and fix the coffee. And bring a nice steaming cup to his bedside. If the aroma doesn't arouse him, one teeny-weeny drop on his nose will.

DEAR ABBY: When I had my last baby, I swore off having any more children. I am 27 years old, Abby, and I have EIGHT boys (no twins). Is it possible that there is something about the combination of my husband and me that can't produce anything but boys? Whose fault is this, anyway? My husband says it must be me because his first wife had two girls.

LONG ON BOYS.

DEAR LONG: You're short on facts. The sex of the children is determined by the HUSBAND.

DEAR ABBY: You mentioned that some of the wires a father should pull to get his son into a good college were TV, hi-fi and telephone. I couldn't agree more heartily. I am 18 years old and have been glued to the "nutty box" almost since its invention. I don't know how I ever tore myself away to go to school. For some fantastic reason I got grades that were good enough to admit me to an Ivy League university. Considering the stiff competition, it was a miracle. I will never let the TV or any other distraction control the lives of any children I may have.

JUST LUCKY I GUESS.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ESTHER: When a man says, "I'm sure of my wife," he means that he is sure of his wife. When a woman says, "I am sure of my husband," she means that she is sure of herself.

Don't put off writing letters. Send one dollar to Abby for her booklet, "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

Most of the exchange teachers from Great Britain who attended Saturday's garden party at Government House have been teaching on the mainland. Only exception is Alan Marsh, right, who has spent the past year at Esquimalt Junior High School. Also in the group are two other British teachers, Miss Grace Mackay, left, and Miss Rachel Wallace. They're seen comparing notes on "home" with His Excellency, the Rt. Hon. Viscount Amory, high commissioner of the United Kingdom. — Ryan Brothers Photo.

Teachers Taken on 'Last Fling'

By PAT DUFOUR

Thirty-three exchange teachers from the United Kingdom, United States and other parts of Canada were guests of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes at a garden party at Government House, Saturday afternoon.

For most of them it was part of a "last fling" before returning home after a year away. Those from Great Britain wasted no time in asking questions about "home" as they chatted with His Excellency, the Rt. Hon. Viscount Amory, high commissioner of the United Kingdom.

Mrs. Olive Glaves was delighted to meet an old neighbor, Brigadier R. Heathcoat-Amory. They live within five miles of each other in Yorkshire. They found they had still more in common when Mrs. Glaves confided that she had spent two years as the headmistress of an army school in Malaya.

The brigadier, his wife and daughter, Amanda were house guests at Government House.

Miss Mary Dixon, also from Great Britain, was still excited about a trip she had taken to Hawaii.

A descendant of Captain Cook on her mother's side, Miss Dixon had realized an ambition to see where the famed explorer's ship had landed. "I'm the only girl in the family. My three brothers are all in the navy and yet I'm the first to get to Hawaii."

One exchange teacher with an unusual hobby was Peter Dawson who hails from North London. He collects beer labels and has over 23,000 from a variety of countries including Russia where he has also taught.

His enthusiasm must be infectious for there are 230 members in the club, "Labologists of Great Britain" which he began in his native London.

One of the oldest teachers from England was W. H. Rider. With three grown-up children, Mr. and Mrs. Rider decided to take advantage of the exchange plan in order to indulge their yen for travel.

Most of the British teachers summed up their Canadian students as being, "More casual and friendly without being precocious."

Also invited to Saturday's party was Mrs. A. L. Henderson, Vancouver, president of the League of British Commonwealth and Empire, a group that takes an active part in the exchange program.

Capt. J. A. A. George, president of the Victoria branch of the Royal Commonwealth Society attended. Major-General C. R. Stein, national president, was another guest.

Other guests included Rev. J. A. Roberts, Mrs. Roberts and their daughter, Margaret; Dr. and Mrs. J. F. K. English, Mr. and Mrs. John Wade and Air Commodore V. H. Patriarche.

Bridal Showers

For Miss Platt

Gifts were in a wishing well when Mrs. George Girton and Mrs. George Johnson entertained at a shower in the Girton home on Burnside Road in honor of June bride-elect, Miss Judith Ann Platt. Corsages of yellow rosebuds were presented to her mother, Mrs. Hugh E. Platt and groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Earl Hemsworth. Present were: Mrs. J. Cox, Mrs. M. Nicholls, Mrs. R. Jackson, Mrs. E. Fuller, Mrs. C. Clark, Mrs. G. Wells, Mrs. T. Sadler, Mrs. W. McCaghey, Mrs. A. Bennett, Mrs. J. McCallum, Mrs. H. J. Whitehead, Mrs. G. Hartley, Mrs. G. Hancock, Mrs. V. A. Green, Mrs. M. Turnbull, Mrs. W. A. Johnson, Mrs. M. Taylor, Mrs. A. Jones, Mrs. Gordon Girton, and the Misses Margaret Girton, Jean Girton, Darlene Noble, Ann Rainsford and Susan Platt. Also invited but unable to attend were: Mrs. R. M. White, Mrs. H. Roach, Mrs. A. Hancock, Mrs. A. Pimlott, Mrs. J. Harper and Miss Cathy Frost.

Orchid Brooch

Mrs. Dallas McClung, the former Ann Burnett, was presented with an orchid brooch when she was honor guest recently at a bridal shower in the Cook Street home of Mrs. W. E. Roskelley. Her mother, Mrs. E. Burnett, and groom's mother, Mrs. H. McClung, received keepsake handkerchiefs. Gifts were concealed under the bouffant skirts of a bride doll. Refreshments were served from a lace-covered table and orchid lapel favors were given to each guest. Serviteurs were the Misses Rosalie and Sherilyn Roskelley, Janice Evans and Kathy Derry.

Invited guests were Mrs. L. Johns, Mrs. R. Roskelley, Mrs. J. Brandon, Mrs. K. Roskelley, Mrs. H. Evans, Mrs. L. R. Johns, Mrs. G. Douglas, Mrs. A. Lett, Mrs. S. Derry, Mrs. J. French, Mrs. D. McCartney, Mrs. J. Wright, Mrs. D. Lyall, Mrs. J. Boles, Mrs. L. Moillet, Mrs. J. Ferguson, Mrs. T. Gibbons, Mrs. V. Lomas, Mrs. F. Rasmussen and the Misses Joy McCartney, Sue-Ann Lomas, Joan Hoffman and Chris Campbell.

Send Gifts

Gifts for June bride-elect Miss Beverley Brice were sent from Vancouver by her grandmother Mrs. M. Jackson and her aunt Mrs. C. Unrau for recent shower given by Mrs. A. Bentley, Mrs. M. Vollet and Mrs. D. R. Allen in the Allen home on Kipling Street. Victoria guests presented Miss Brice with a pink carnation corsage and her mother Mrs. Jack Brice with red carnations. Gifts were in a decorated basket. Invited were Mrs. D. Smith, Mrs. F. Barron, Mrs. W. Dunaway, Mrs. D. Wheeler, Mrs. K. B. Guthrie, Mrs. H. Lindstrom, and the Misses June Bett, Wendy Bentley and Maureen and Judy Vollet.

Busy Round of Activities

Wives of delegates attending the annual meeting of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia, to be held at the Tally-Ho Travelodge Hotel on June 13 and 14, will be treated to a busy round of social activity as their husbands deal with the institute's business. Institute president is Mr. W. Gordon Holmes, Victoria.

On Thursday, June 13, they will be guests of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes at a coffee party and will also be taken on a tour of Government House.

That evening they will join their husbands for an evening of fun at Sooke Community Hall with highlights being a salmon barbecue, display of logger sports and dancing.

At conclusion of meeting the following day, a more formal evening of activity will be enjoyed when delegates and their wives attend a dinner and dance to be held at the Victoria Golf Club.

Receives Degree

Capt. and Mrs. H. A. Larsen, formerly of Oak Bay and now living at Lunenburg, N.S., attended recent academic convocation of Carleton University in Ottawa to see their daughter, Miss Karen Larsen, receive a bachelor of science degree with a major in biology. Miss Larsen, who is a graduate of the Royal Jubilee Hospital's school of nursing, will enter the University of Western Ontario at London, Ont., next fall and continue her studies for a master's degree.

Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Beattie have returned to their Lansdowne Road home after a 5½-month trip that saw them first visiting their friends and old home at Newport Beach, Calif. From there, they travelled to New York to visit their eldest son Douglas, who graduates this month from Columbia University. Mr. and Mrs. Beattie then went overseas, touring the United Kingdom and continental Europe. Highlight of their trip there was a visit to Zurich, Switzerland where they were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Ernst Hohl, whose 19-year-old son Peter stayed with the Beatties under the American Field Service exchange student plan. The Beatties' younger son Kenneth also returned home on Friday from Salem, Ore., where he is a student at Williamette University.

At Salt Spring

Bride-elect Miss Elsy Price and her mother, Mrs. A. R. P. Price, received corsages of pink rosebuds and lily of the valley when Mrs. C. D. Devine entertained at a tea in her Ganges home on Salt Spring Island. The bride-elect was flanked by arrangements of pink rhododendrons, blue iris and white lilac as she received an electric toaster and kettle. These were presented by Mrs. L. G. Mouat and Mrs. E. H. Newman on behalf of the guests. Mrs. F. L. Jackson presided at the refreshment table which was centred with pink and white dianthus and pink candles in crystal holders. Serviteurs were Mrs. Mouat, Mrs. Newman, Miss M. Scott and Miss June Mitchell.

Blind Help Crippled Children

Members of the White Cane Club celebrated the group's 17th anniversary by holding a birthday party at the Canadian National Institute for the Blind Building on Blanshard Street, to which they brought gifts of canned goods, afghans and cash to help the young patients of the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

President, Mrs. E. Watling, reported that members now totalled 85. This number included five of the 20 members who joined the club when it was formed at the old Prince Robert House.

Mrs. O. Simpson accompanied Mr. J. Smith, who sang several songs. Harold Alexander also sang and community singing was enjoyed.

It was announced that since 1952 the club has raised $2,758 to assist the blind in overseas countries and ophthalmic research.

Cocktail Party

Officers of the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment entertained at a cocktail party in the officers' mess at Bay Street Armory on Saturday evening. Guests included their wives and representatives of the three services.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jeff Hegedus, age 11, of Highland Park, N.J., for his question:

What Causes a Volcano to Erupt?

We cannot predict when a volcano will erupt. But we know more or less where to expect it. A volcano is part of a chain of volcanoes, a long curve of earthquake faults and growing mountains. The study of one volcano does not tell us much about what causes it. Modern science tends to take a global view of eruptions and other activities in the earth's crust.

The facts gathered during the IGY have given us our first global picture of the earth. We must, it seems, know a lot more about the over-all structure of the earth's crust before we can understand single events, such as an earthquake or a volcanic eruption. Many scientists think we must go even deeper for our answers.

Volcanoes erupt in the earth's crust—which is a layer of minerals from 20 to 40 miles deep. Below the crust is the dense mantle, reaching down some 1,800 miles. The mantle is under terrific pressure from the rocky layers above it; and the deeper we go into the earth, the hotter it becomes. The thin crust rests on the hot, dense mantle, and the mantle rests on the still hotter and denser core of the earth.

Some scientists suggest that volcanic zones are caused by convection currents deep within the earth. A small convection cell occurs in a pot of boiling water as hot water from the bottom rises up and cooler water at the top swings around to replace it. Vast convection cells may occur as heat from the earth's interior rises to the surface and cooler currents sink. Where two such currents meet and sink, we may get a weak area in the earth's crust—a volcanic belt of earthquake faults and growing mountains.

Volcanoes Eventually Die

The roots of a volcano are cracks and vents reaching miles down into the crust and perhaps into the mantle. Tensions in the weak zone build up to a critical point. The seething interior suddenly bursts through the pressure above it, and the volcano erupts.

Flaming gases, steaming smoke and searing cinders are thrown high into the air. The earth quakes with underground explosions. Rivers of molten lava flow down from the crater of the volcano. We have to know far more about the deep, underground causes of the earth's volcanic zones. Then perhaps we can predict when the pressures will build to a critical point, resulting in a volcanic eruption. If we knew enough to predict an eruption, people could be warned and removed from the disaster area.

A volcano will erupt and rest time after time, but at last it dies. Other eruptions may break out along the volcanic zone. The region remains restless through millions of years while new mountains are building. Then at last the entire volcanic zone becomes quiet.

NEW YORK—How to make your gal love you? Insult her.

Richard Burton calls Liz Taylor—in the presence of others—"Fatty." Dancers Augie and Margo, just back from London with Sammy Davis' troupe, heard Burton heckle Liz about her increasing weight by using that nickname. Liz, who was around her sumptuous Dorchester suite barefoot, "seemed to like being called 'Fatty'—it was more of an endearment," Margo said. (It surely wouldn't be treated as an endearment if I ever called my BW that!)

Sophia Loren's been offered $300,000 to do a TV special, "Sophia Loren's Rome," by Norman Baer and Phil D'Antoni, the chaps who—with the help of a phone call from Mike Todd Jr. —signed Liz Taylor to do TV from London. Sophia'd like to do it: It's short hours and long money."

Dinah Shore didn't let George Montgomery—or hardly anybody else—in on her plans to marry contractor Maurice Smith. The wedding revealed that Dinah's dtr. "Missy" (Melissa), now 15½ and taller than her mother, is a new Hollywood beauty. Dinah goes back to work Aug. 5, playing Harrah's Lake Tahoe. Dinah and her husband recently won a mixed doubles tennis title —in fact, their courtship was on a court.

Super-shapely June (40-20-36) Wilkinson got a pile of mail from males after asking me to hustle her some dates while starring in "Pajama Tops" at the Winter Garden. One piece of male mail noted that June prefers short, stocky men. The writer said, "I'm blonde but I'd dye my hair to have a date with you." June answered: Applicants must be natural brunettes. Only exception—Yul Brynner."

Then there's the "Tallulah Bankhead doll" (thought up by Mrs. Bert Bachrach, and it could be applied, to many many other female names): "You don't have to wind her up—and she starts talking."

Bob Preston confessed at the Emmy Awards how he happened to accept one for Kim Stanley: "A guy called me up and asked me to. I said, 'Aw, why don't you get somebody else?' He said, 'We can't.' Because he was so honest, I said I would."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL

Carol Burnett's co-star in "A Girl to Remember" may be Peter ("Li'l Abner") Palmer . . . Eddie Fisher'll ask that the Americana build a stage in its Royal Box before he opens June 11 . . . Jerry Colonna makes his first N.Y. cafe appearance June 12 at the Latin . . ., At the Voisin: Bobo Rockefeller and Gregg Dodge (talking about money?).

Edith Piaf quits her Paris hospital this week . . . Buddy Hackett slimmed down to 185 lbs., lightest since he was 17. (It may have cost him a film role, from a producer who wanted him roly and poly) . . . Uncanny rumor: That a vast new stadium now being built was just discovered not to have any washroom facilities . . . Actor George Hamilton's date at El Morocco was pretty Charlotte Ford . . . The "Greatest Story Ever Told" film, to be finished in July, won't be released till next Easter.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "My wife's going on a crash diet," reports Phil Foster, "—and I don't wanna be around for the landing."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Al Martino told Mike Connolly he's been staying up till midnight to listen to the late, late news—that's when his wife comes home from work.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Under our system, a jury consists of 12 people who couldn't exert enough influence to get excused," Vaughn Monroe.

EARL'S PEARLS: Conversation: "But I promised I would not tell it to a soul". . . "OK, then just write it on this piece of paper."

Bill (Jose Jiminez) Dana says he realizes the importance of autograph fans: "When I need sunglasses, I wear contact sunglasses—I can't afford NOT to be recognized." That's earl, brother.

Honor System By U.S. Customs

NEW YORK (AP)—An honor system experiment began today at the United States customs office at Idlewild Airport for foreign visitors and United States citizens returning from abroad.

They had only to fill out a simple identification form. Customs agents politely accepted their oral declaration as to whether they had exceeded allowances in purchases abroad.

This is the first time the system has been tried in the continental United States. If successful it will be applied to all the aerial gateways to this country.

The simplified form requires no listing of purchases except in cases where the maximum $100 has been exceeded or where purchases are being received after the arrival of the passenger.

The form, issued by the United States treasury and distributed by the air lines, says that baggage may be examined on entry into the United States. It adds that non-residents may make their declarations orally and that the same usually applies to returning residents of the United States.

U.S. LEADS IN MISSILES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon believes the United States now is substantially ahead of Russia in its production of nuclear missiles.

Paul H. Nitze, assistant defence secretary for international security affairs, said Sunday that one Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile or Polaris missile for submarine launching is being added to the U.S. deterrent force every day.

Nitze said: "We don't believe they (the Russians) are equalling that rate."

Berton Bluepencilled Out of Macleans Mag

TORONTO (CP)—Maclean's Magazine announced Sunday that a series of articles by Pierre Berton which have appeared in the fortnightly magazine for the last six months will end with the June 15 issue.

Publisher F. G. Brander said Mr. Berton's controversial article, Let's Stop Hoaxing the Kids About Sex, in the May 18 issue "while definitely a factor, was not the sole reason.

The article has been attacked publicly by several church and women's groups.

Mr. Brander's statement said the magazine has "experimented with Mr. Berton on a series of magazine columns called The Pierre Berton Page."

"After a period of six months or 12 articles we have decided to discontinue this feature."

From his home in nearby Kleinburg, Mr. Berton commented by telephone that the "dismissal" comes after heavy pressure from advertisers and from petitioners "threatening to stop buying the magazine."

CLAIMS 'PRESSURE'

"If I hadn't written that article, I would be still there," Mr. Berton said, although he understood from the grapevine "that the advertising department has been under heavy pressure as a result of previous articles."

Of Mr. Brander's statement, he said: "I am amused by it."

Mr. Berton noted that the announcement was made by the publisher and not by the editor of the magazine, adding: "The arguments I had were not with the editorial side. They were with the business side."

He said Maclean's had "hired me to write pieces in which I expressed opinions on various subjects, and when they didn't like the opinions they cut me off."

He understood that people connected with his nightly television show, The Pierre Berton Hour, on the CTV network "have also been under pressure."

"Frank opinions aren't always welcome in every quarter."

He said that if Maclean's had been making money, it might have been different, "but I have no doubt that there was some loss of revenue because of my articles."

Pioneer Seaman Dies at 95

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. Thomas Guns, who first sighted Burrard Inlet in 1883, three years before the city of Vancouver was established, has died at the age of 95.

He visited the port as an apprentice in the Scottish barque Highland Glen. His next trip here was as quartermaster on the new coastwise steamer Islander which left Glasgow in 1889 for Vancouver.

In later years he was first mate of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company's Yosemite, later taking command of the CPR tug Nitinat.

He was a member of the B.C. Pilotage Service when he retired in 1935.

'Organized Fascists' Alleged in Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A Jewish trade unionist blamed an "organized Fascist movement" Sunday for swastikas painted recently on Toronto synagogues.

He said the movement is linked with the Front de Liberation Quebecois, the Quebec terrorist group.

Max Federman, business manager of the fur workers' union, a division of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen (CLC), made the comments at a public conference called by the Borochov Movement—a Jewish labor, women's and youth movement—to discuss the sudden appearance of swastikas and anti-Jewish slogans.

"This is being done by an organized Fascist movement in Toronto," Mr. Federman said. "We also believe that this is a Nazi organization lined up with the ones in Montreal who are throwing bombs and challenging the Canadian government in the Province of Quebec."

Metropolitan Toronto Police Chief James Mackey called a special meeting Saturday of senior police officials to discuss the latest incident, when 10 swastikas and the German words "Juden raus" (Jews get out) were smeared Friday night on the walls of a midtown synagogue.

It was the fifth consecutive week in which synagogues have been desecrated.

UN Peacekeeping Funds Expected

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Prospects are good that the UN General Assembly will adopt resolutions to continue financing the world organizations peacekeeping operations. But no assembly action is expected to draw such funds from the Soviet bloc.

Secretary - General U Thant got a weekend progress report on the negotiations on the finance proposals from Chief S. O. Adebo of Nigeria, chairman of the assembly's 21 - nation working group on finances.

Adebo would give no details of the talk. But other diplomats said the situation is this:

The negotiations have drafted four resolutions—one to finance The Congo operation for the second half of 1963, another to finance the Middle East operation for the same period, a third to collect assessments owed for the two operations and a fourth to lay down general principles for financing future peacekeeping operations.

The resolutions, with wide sponsorship, probably will be submitted Wednesday or Thursday and come to a vote next week.

Some of the negotiating diplomats believe that only the 11-nation Soviet bloc will vote against the proposals.

The four resolutions are the result of compromises made in the negotiating body by five industrialized nations—the United States, Britain, Canada, The Netherlands, and Sweden—and five underdeveloped members—Argentina, Brazil, India, Nigeria and Pakistan.

MISTAKEN RESCUE BID KILLS HEROIC GIRL, 8

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Sandra Seymour, 8, was burned to death Saturday in an attempt to rescue a sister she thought was inside a burning house.

Burned too was Sandra's uncle Louis Manuel, 72.

The child had escaped with her five brothers and sisters, her parents and another adult, but in a hurried count it was thought one child still was missing.

She dashed back into the frame building, and died.

"She was a mighty courageous little girl," said an RCMP officer here.

There was no indication what caused the fire that destroyed the house.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MURRAY—In loving memory of my dear daughter, Marjorie, who passed away June 3, 1960.
In memories garden
We meet every day.
—Ever remembered by Dad.

SHIELD — In loving memory of Jeanie who passed away June 3, 1961.
Deep in the heart lies a picture of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
—Ever remembered by the family.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

One of the great weaknesses of bridge players is their unwillingness to pay attention to and remember the bidding.

North's two club response was Stayman and East's double indicated club strength and asked for a club lead.

When South showed four or more spades by two spade bid North jumped right to the spade game.

West opened the nine of clubs. East gathered in the trick with his ace and led another club for his partner to ruff.

West shifted to a diamond and declarer drew trumps; cashed all the diamonds, winding up in dummy and led the ten of hearts. East played low and after mature deliberation, South went up with the king and proceeded to lose his contract.

"I never seem to guess them right," complained South.

"It wasn't exactly a guess," said North. "If you had just bothered to remember the bidding you would know that East had dealt and passed. Then he had shown up with six clubs to the ace-queen-jack. If he had also held the ace of hearts he would surely have opened the bidding so you made a bad play not a bad guess."

RED
SIDING

Nature has endowed the giant red cedar of British Columbia with every quality a homeowner could ask for in a versatile construction material with its "built-in" weather resistance, insulation value, working ease and, above all, inherent beauty.

Western Red Cedar is the traditional choice of architects everywhere, for every application. The attractive grain and warm colors of this fine wood blend beautifully with any home style, modern or traditional—in any setting, urban or rural.

THE BREATH OF LIFE - Part 1

WHEN PROFESSOR MELVIN CALVIN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA WAS AWARDED THE NOBEL PRIZE FOR CHEMISTRY IN 1961 IT WAS FOR HIS UNRAVELING OF PERHAPS THE MOST IMPORTANT CHEMICAL PROCESS ON EARTH...
...PHOTOSYNTHESIS, THE "BREATHING" OF PLANTS, THE PROCESS WHICH SUPPORTS ALL LIFE ON EARTH EXCEPT A FEW BACTERIA. CHLOROPHYLL, IN THE GREEN LEAVES OF ALL PLANTS, ABSORBS SUNLIGHT TO START A FANTASTIC LIFE PROCESS.
PLANT LEAVES "BREATHE IN" CARBON DIOXIDE FROM THE AIR AND COMBINE IT WITH WATER FROM THE SOIL UNDER THE ACTION OF SUNLIGHT. THEY RETAIN THE CARBON AND HYDROGEN FOR THEIR GROWING AND "BREATHE OUT" OXYGEN. THIS IN TURN PROVIDES ALL THE OXYGEN WHICH THE TEEMING ANIMAL LIFE ON EARTH BREATHES.
THIS IS WHY PLANTS NEED WATER AND SUNLIGHT WITH THE CARBON DIOXIDE ALWAYS PROVIDED BY THE ATMOSPHERE. IN ONE YEAR ALONE THE PLANT LIFE ON EARTH EXTRACTS 200 BILLION TONS OF CARBON FROM THE EARTH'S ATMOSPHERE.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The taste of television viewers in other sections of Canada is not much different from that of Victorians, except we have a greater selection of channels and programs.

Stephen

It is this selection which has made us more discriminating in our viewing habits.

In fact, TV habits of Prairie residents today can be likened to our habits 10 years ago when we raised antennae 40 and 50 feet in the air to catch programs from Seattle outlets.

I've just returned from a short visit to the Prairies, where I observed our flatland cousins.

One noticeable fact was that personalities, both on radio and television, are like members of the family. Their histories, families and activities are discussed by city and farm dwellers at the drop of a hat.

Some of the personalities have taken advantage of the fact and are rolling in more money than they have experienced anywhere else in Canada.

Most Prairie areas have at least two TV outlets. Edmonton has a CTV station (CFRN) and a new CBC contribution. A cross-section of people questioned showed the majority preferred CBC programming.

How have Edmontonians reacted to television?

A typical comment came from a long-time resident, Mrs. William Kassian:

"When there was only one channel we watched TV all the time. In fact, even before the station went on the air, we were one of the first families with a set and invited relatives and friends over just to look at the lit tube. Now, we have two stations and we pick our programs. Really, there isn't too much but we like the football games."

One of Mrs. Kassian's favorite programs is CTV's Here's Looking At You with Richard Willis emanating from Toronto daily. Willis handles women's problems with a dry humor which can be infectious. (Channel 8 carries the show each afternoon.) But aside of this and the football games, her family leans towards shows of a light nature and documentaries.

One note of interest to Edmontonians now living in Victoria is Al Shaver has left Edmonton after a decade of sportscasting.

Shaver has moved to Montreal to manage a 72-lane bowling alley and do sportscasts for CKGM radio and CFCF-TV. Shaver got his start in 1952 when he took over sports broadcasting from veteran Gordon Williamson, now with CJVI.

Shaver is best known to Victorians for his work on Grey Cup Games and his ill-fated appearances with Calgary's Henry Viney on CTV's first football telecasts last season.

A final note: Most programs shown on the Prairies, aside from CBC shows, are from two to four weeks behind us.

A brand new home, beautifully designed, well built. A home that anyone would be proud to own. The private entrance leads to a large living room with corner fireplace, mondrian windows, brick planter and is designed for good furniture placement. The large dining room is divided from the living room by a screen with an Oriental motif. The family room is large and near the easy to work in kitchen. Off the family room is a sun deck. The three large bedrooms feature sliding door closets and they too are much larger than normal. The main 4-pce bathroom has a tiled tub enclosure and the powder room is magnificent. The vanity is L-shaped and there is a 12 sq. ft. plate glass mirror. The house is located in Gordon Head on sewer. We believe there is nothing to match this in Victoria. $95 P and I. $15,695.

4% Offer For Up-Island Pulp Workers

Some 2,500 pulp workers employed in four Vancouver Island mills from Nanaimo north would gain a 4 per cent wage increase if union membership accepts a negotiating recommendation.

The fifth Island mill — at Crofton — is not included in negotiations because of a split between the membership of International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers and the rival Paper Makers' Union.

Pulp-sulphite membership is employed in mills at Nanaimo and Port Alberni for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell Co. Ltd.; at Campbell River for Crown Zellerbach, and at Port Alice for B.C. Forest Products.

Union membership will be asked to ratify the recommendation reached in negotiating sessions with Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Institute.

It would provide for a new base rate of $2.18 an hour, and $3.08 for journeymen paper mechanics.

Representatives acted for seven primary pulp and paper mills in 2½ weeks of negotiation.

FLYING WHALE cost $1 million to build and it was strictly a gamble. California builder John Conroy created plane to carry space vehicles and missiles from California to Cape Canaveral. He made an old Boeing Stratoliner 16 feet longer and 21 feet greater in diameter, ending up with what he calls "the world's largest aircraft" and a fat contract. Plane weighs 45 tons.

Mother Wants Son Cleared Of 'Leprous' Commie Tag

A Lake Cowichan mother whose son was thrown out of the navy "like a leper" wants his name cleared of a Communist taint she fears may affect his whole life.

Gordon Knott, 19, was discharged from the navy in January, 1961.

It has taken his mother and father, Wally and Bea Knott, since then to find out the reason.

Mrs. Knott said today that Colin Cameron, the New Democratic Party MP for Nanaimo, has seen her son's "top secret" file in Ottawa.

"He told us it said 'Ernest Knott, Communist party member, related,'" she said.

NAMED IN HOUSE

Mr. Cameron mentioned the case in the House of Commons last week in a speech critical of RCMP security methods and says he will pursue it with the defence department.

"It was a real goof," Mrs. Knott said.

She said she is not mad at the navy, but the RCMP "can make mistakes sometimes."

Her family is not related at all to Ernest Knott, who now lives in Victoria, but was Communist candidate for Parliament in the 1953 election and ran against Mr. Cameron.

NO COMMIE LINK

Mrs. Knott said her husband had met the Communist candidate at the time, but did not know him and had no political connections with him or the party.

"We don't belong to any political party," she said.

Ernest Knott said the Lake Cowichan family is "definitely not related" and that it was a case of the RCMP getting the wrong man.

Mrs. Knott said none of the family or friends had been questioned about Gordon.

But she fears the story of his discharge may affect his chances of a good job in the future. Since the discharge he has been working as a logger.

COULD DAMAGE CAREER

"This branding business is bad," Mrs. Knott said. "If it isn't cleared up it could come out again in later life. It may mean Gordon couldn't get a government job. And people do wonder, you know."

She said her son was discharged at Halifax two weeks before he completed basic training at HMCS Cornwallis.

"He was given 2½ hours to get off the post."

She said the navy gave Gordon a new suit of clothes and packed him aboard a jet for B.C.

He was not told then the real reason for his discharge.

"They said it was one of three things — he was not capable, his family had asked for his discharge, or it was something on the family record.

"He was mystified."

HIGH MARKS OBTAINED

Mrs. Knott said her son had high marks and was thoroughly enjoying navy life. The family didn't ask for the discharge, either.

"Why would they do that? Why would they make like you're a leper?"

Mrs. Knott said the people she was really mad at were former defence minister Douglas Harkness, former associate defence minister Pierre Sevigny and former Nanaimo MP W. F. Matthews.

"They refused to tell us why Gordon was discharged."

As far as the RCMP and navy were concerned, she said, it must have all been a mistake.

But it's a mistake, she feels, that may have serious effects unless somebody puts it right.

Gordon's ambition after four years as a sea cadet was to make a career out of the navy.

Would he go back?

"I don't know—I can't really tell," he said.

PEACE APPEAL REJECTED

China Behind Hard Laos Line?

VIETIANE (AP) — Diplomats have detected Red Chinese influence in a virtual rejection by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao of an appeal by Britain and the Soviet Union for peace in Laos.

A broadcast from Pathet Lao headquarters at Khang Khay accused the United States of interfering on the Plaine des Jarres and said that unless it stopped "10 or even 20 appeals will bring no results."

As co-chairmen of the Geneva conference on Laos, Britain and the Soviet Union sent their appeal last week. It was delivered to the Pathet Lao Thursday.

Diplomats in Vientiane, the Laotian capital, said Sunday the Pathet Lao appeared to be taking the hard line of the Red Chinese who reject the Russians' cold war strategy of peaceful co-existence with the West.

The diplomats said the Soviet position on the Laotian crisis appears to have been overruled by the Red Chinese and the Communist North Vietnamese. Both these Laotian neighbors wield strong influence on the Pathet Lao.

EXTEND STRUGGLE

The Communist Chinese are carrying their ideological struggle with the Kremlin into Southeast Asia and the Far East. The Peking leaders believe that the Communist way to world supremacy is through violent revolution and a hard stand against the West.

Neutralist forces of Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma hold only a small patch of the plain, which controls the main routes from northern Laos to the south and Vientiane.

During the weekend, Souvanna charged that foreign troops had entered the fighting on the Pathet Lao side. He did not identify the foreign troops but they were believed by military men in Vientiane to be North Vietnamese.

PEKING (Reuters)—The Chinese Communist party newspaper People's Daily says allegation about Chinese troops in Laos are "intended to justify "further United States imperialist intervention" there.

The paper was commenting on Western press reports that the Canadian and Indian delegates to the International Control Commission for Laos recently asked the Laotian coalition government for permission to investigate the presence of Chinese troops in northwestern Laos. Communist Poland, third country represented on the commission, did not go along with the Canadian-Indian request.

The People's Daily says the delegates based their "fabrication" on Chinese personnel who had helped with a road-building project.

"Unfortunately, this clumsy trick of the Indian and Canadian delegates serves only to make them more ridiculous. Following the completion of the road-building project all Chinese personnel have been withdrawn.

'DRUNKEN SHEPHERD' ROADS GIVE U.K. WILD WEEKEND

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—A three-day Whitsun holiday weekend, cloudless skies and plenty of spending money today brought widespread chaos on Britain's already narrow and crowded roads.

"It's been the biggest motoring jamboree ever," said a spokesman for the Royal Automobile Association. It seems as if all the country's 10,000,000 vehicles are out on the roads at once.

"Put end to end, the traffic jams would stretch for more than 150 miles. The roads are swamped and nearing complete saturation."

The government is slowly building modern turnpikes, but the basic road system looks as if it was laid out by drunken shepherds following crippled cows.

Ironically, the worst tieup of all was on the 13 miles of Britain's newest highway, the M-2 opened only last Wednesday.

ROUTED AWAY

Conditions became so hectic that weary traffic constables directed traffic away from the turnpike and through the old bottlenecks at Rochester, Chatham and Gillingham.

At one point, traffic could neither enter nor leave the city of Clacton-on-Sea.

Sunday saw the great buildup as every Englishman, Scotsman and Welshman appeared to head his car towards the seaside.

At dawn today, thousands of drivers still had not reached the beaches.

By noon, thousands still headed for the coast—meeting other thousands trying to get back.

Britain's transport minister, Ernest Marples, proved he knew what to expect—he went to France and rode a bicycle.

DRIVE PLANNED

Building Unions Barring Negroes

WASHINGTON — Union leaders—who often have taken to the picket line to fight for social and welfare causes—now find themselves in the uncomfortable position of being accused of foot-dragging in the fight against racial discrimination.

The NAACP has singled out anti-Negro bias in the construction craft unions as a top-priority target in the drives for equal rights in northern cities.

Picketing in Philadelphia, NAACP leaders have warned, is only the first step; the protest will spread to Washington, Chicago, New York and other major cities.

The NAACP will be hitting organized labor where it hurts most, for it is in the construction industry that unions are most vulnerable to charges of racial discrimination.

RESISTED

There some old-line craft locals, proud of their closed-society traditions and local autonomy, have stubbornly resisted efforts by the federal government and the AFL-CIO leadership to persuade them to admit Negroes.

Up to now, the drive against job discrimination has centred on employers. In the construction industry, the unions also will have to answer because of long-standing practices between the craft locals and the contractors.

The problem isn't as simple as getting a Negro hired as a clerk in a store or as a worker in a factory.

In many building trades, the craft unions serve both as a training school and hiring hall. Negroes complain that they are frozen out of jobs because they can't join the unions or take apprenticeship training.

When a contractor needs five electricians or four plumbers, he calls the local union hall. The business agent then sends over the workers from the union list. If a local is all white, there obviously won't be any Negroes on the job.

On the union side, leaders say the Negroes can't hope for a dramatic breakthrough on construction jobs. They say there aren't that many qualified Negroes, and that it will take three or four years for Negro apprentices to complete their training.

Critics of the unions say that the AFL-CIO hasn't provided the leadership needed. AFL-CIO president George Meany has made speeches and declarations for civil rights. But some observers feel he could bring pressures to bear on recalcitrant locals, even with all the talk of local autonomy.

If labor can't put its own house in order, leaders of the civil rights movement feel, the federal government should step in.

Herbert Hill, NAACP secretary, thinks the showdown can come in Washington, where the movement spends vast sums on federal building projects. These contracts carry a non-discrimination clause, which legally applies to the employer.

Both the unions and the contractors have been buck-passing. The employers say they can't put Negroes to work if they are not referred by the unions. The unions say they have long waiting lists for membership and training.

HEY, FLYING PHIL HAVE YOU TRIED THIS?

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — Two policemen thought it strange when the indicator in their radar set failed to budge as "ears raced by."

So they got out of the cruiser and followed the cord leading to the radar unit back down the road.

Someone had snipped the cable in two.

Today in court, the two slightly red-faced officers will escort Robert Harry Condy to answer a charge of public mischief.

VANCOUVER FESTIVAL

Audience Warms To 'Spring Thaw'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver International Festival has staged four of this year's seven productions and, the way President T. N. Beaupre sees it, the score is one win, two draws and a loss.

The best of "Spring Thaw", based on the popular Toronto feature, played to two sellout crowds in the 650-seat Queen Elizabeth Playhouse, Saturday.

"It's an excellent production that has exceeded even our high expectations," Mr. Beaupre said.

The opera Macbeth played to a 60 per cent crowd of 2,140 at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

"We had a few bugs on opening night, but they were ironed out by the second production. The Saturday crowd was disappointing in size, but our Met people (there are Metropolitan Opera personnel in key roles) said it was the most enthusiastic they had ever seen."

Mr. Beaupre said: "Word-of-mouth advertising doesn't seem to be working, but this is a striking production and the basis on which we'd like people to judge our ability to put on a festival."

THEATRE HALF FILLED

The musical comedy "Floradora" played to a 50 per cent house at its first show.

"We had trouble opening night but have more than a week to fix it. It is the best example of local people at work and right now is the best-seller of our big-stage shows."

"Saint Joan" drew 60 per cent capacity opening night and a very small audience at the Saturday matinee.

"It's a fine play to begin with and this is a beautiful production of it. The set and the costuming are so good the actors will have a hard time living up to it. I can't understand the poor attendance—this is the best $2 entertainment value that Vancouver has even seen."

Still to come are "Peter Pan," followed by the comic opera "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "The Importance of Being Earnest".

THE MAN FROM THE DINERS' CLUB
Danny Kaye
Royal Theatre

Those who don't take their cinema too seriously will find plenty of broad-beamed fun in this crazy farce built around the intricacies of the credit card system.

But the story frame is pretty thin and leans heavily on Danny Kaye's whimsical comicalities for its laughs. Always a competent entertainer, he manages to distract attention from some obvious flaws in the general production and his facial contortions are as delightful as ever.

Danny is employed at headquarters of the famous Diners' Club, where his job is to check and approve applications for credit cards. He is nervous and upset by the fearsome electronic machinery that is set in motion every time he seeks information as to an applicant's financial status. And he comes close to getting fired when he okays a credit card for a pet dog.

This low standing with the management overshadows his imminent marriage to the boss' secretary, lovely Martha Hyer, and in a fit of nervous tension he signs a credit card for Telly Savalas, a mobster who is in trouble with the U.S. government for non-payment of income taxes.

Danny's frenzied efforts to steal back the card from Savalas lead to a number of hilariously unlikely situations, including an attempt to murder him in a health club called The Sweat Shop.

There is a battle in a steam bath leading to near asphyxiation and a desperate struggle for survival involving clubs, dumbells and other gymnastic weapons.

Highlight of the film is a beatnik party in which a bearded poet recites impromptu verse to an accompaniment of bongo drums while Danny crawls on all fours among the legs of the beatniks.

The expanding credit system is lampooned when Danny's boss rebukes him for trying to pay cash for his lunch in the firm's cafeteria.

"Where is your credit card?" thunders the boss. "Don't you know money is forbidden round here."

Cara Williams is amusing as an ex-strip-tease dancer who works as an instructor in the health club, provokingly garbed in tights and black panties, and Telly Salvas is ferociously funny as the mobster.

East Pakistan Death Toll Expected to Top 22,000

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP)—At least 22,000 persons died in in last week's cyclone in East Pakistan, according to incomplete official figures. Fishing nets were used in some areas to recover floating corpses.

Officials estimate at least 1,000,000 persons were left homeless by the cyclone, which battered the Chitagong area and 130 miles of coastal towns with 130-mile winds last Wednesday.

Full reports still have not come in from the interior and the offshore islands also battered by the 15-hour cyclone and the tidal wave. Telecommunications with those areas are down.

Persons who have toured the disaster area confirmed Saturday's statement by the governor of East Pakistan, Abdul Monem Khan, that material damage was higher than in the 1960 cyclone in which more than 14,000 persons died.

SWEPT EIGHT MILES

The tidal wave swept miles inland along the coast "razing every village in its path," informants said.

Relief supplies were being dropped by helicopter to offshore islands.

During the storm, winds reached 150 miles an hour and smashed 95 per cent of non-concrete constructions, twisted rail lines, blew away jetties, grounded three British vessels and sank countless smaller craft.

The islands in the southwest of the Bay of Bengal were worst hit. Patrols of the East Pakistan Rifles reached two of the islands Saturday and sent out an SOS for food and medicine.

One army officer told a reporter: "First, we must try and save the living. Then, we'll count the dead."

The East Pakistan government has appealed for outside aid.

Sainthood Set For Murdered Boys

FORT PORTAL, Uganda (AP) — Africa's first saints below the Sahara are expected to be canonized later this year in Rome.

They are the Uganda martyrs—22 Roman Catholic boys who, with 13 Protestant youngsters, died for the Christian faith between 1885 and 1887 in this middle-Africa country.

No exact date has been set for the canonization of the Catholic martyrs.

The story of the Uganda martyrs is one of the most stirring episodes in the annals of Christianity in Africa. It is also one in which both Roman Catholics and Protestants take pride.

The youngsters were slain shortly after the white man first came to Uganda and Central Africa. British explorers were followed by missionaries of both faiths, the Protestants arriving in Uganda in 1877, and the Roman Catholic missionaries, the White Fathers, in 1879.

The leading missionaries of the respective faiths were Alexander Mackay of the Protestant Church Missionary Society and Father Simon Lourdel of the White Fathers.

DIED FOR FAITH

Christianity had a small growth in the beginning. Because the kabaka wanted the missionaries near him, however, many of the pages in the kabaka's court became Christians. It was these boys who were to later die for their faith.

Then there came a time when the Christian missionaries lost favor with the kabaka and there were various persecutions against both faiths. A new kabaka, Mwanga, more cruel than his predecessor, ascended the throne. This kabaka was known for his vices and for his opposition to Christianity.

One day he ordered the pages in his court to commit acts which they felt were against the tenets of their new-found faith. The pages refused. To refuse the kabaka, an absolute ruler, anything, meant death.

Most of the boys were burned at the stake on June 3, 1886. Others met death by such means as clubbing and beheading, between 1885 and 1887.

Visitors to Uganda see shrines and churches erected near Namugongo and other areas in memory of the boys.

CADETS SHINE

Parents See Rainbows Get Awards

Hundreds of parents and guests were at Navy League headquarters on Robert Street, Sunday afternoon, when Capt. D. G. Padmore, RCN, inspected the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps and the Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenette Corps.

It was one of the captain's last duties before leaving for Halifax this week, where he will be commanding officer of HMCS Stadacona.

The inspecting party included Mrs. Pat Dufour, president of the Victoria Branch of the Navy League of Canada; Lt.-Cmdr. W. W. Bowditch, RCN, area officer for sea cadets; Denis W. Brown, the league's divisional president, and Lieut. W. W. Ross, RCSC, corps' commanding officer.

Capt. Padmore commended the corps on its smart oppearance and efficiency and summarized: "Yours was the first corps and branch to be formed in Canada. You have had great traditions handed down to you—live up to them."

PO Steve Anderson was awarded the Women's Auxiliary barometer for most efficient cadet. The deportment cup was received by PO David Nancarrow.

The Navy League cup for the most efficient ordinary cadet was awarded to OC Gary Long. The Dufour cup for academic excellence was also won by OC Long.

Mrs. E. Krueger presented the trophy for the most efficient able cadet to AC Ronald Hill. The award was in memory of her son, the late Stephen Krueger, who was an able cadet in the corps at the time of his death.

PO D. B. Bendall, RCN—a former petty officer in the corps—presented the Bendall Trophy for sports to the Athabaskan division.

The best all-round divisional award was also won by Athabaskan, members of the division receiving "pusser's dirks" from the Navy League.

LC Gudmund Gudmundseth received the Best Sportsman award.

PO Sherle Mason was judged most efficient wrenttte. Runner-up was PO Joan Marshall. Both were awarded merit badges.

Junior Tattoo Resounding Performance

More than 300 young bandsmen and marchers strutted through the Junior Tattoo held under sponsorship of the Vic-Van Isle Kipsmen Club in Victoria's Memorial Arena Saturday.

Colorful and musical, the sparsely-attended show was also noisy on occasion.

Participants in the Junior Tattoo were the North Vancouver sea cadet drum and bungle band, the Royal Canadian sea cadet honor guard, the North Vancouver schools band, the Canadian Twirlettes, the Vancouver Optimists junior pipe band, and the Madelaine Gressels highland dancers.

'Come Josephine' Replacing 'In My Merry Oldsmobile'

By MARGE GILROY

The Sunday drive will soon be as outmoded as the Sunday promenade. "Come, Josephine, in my flying machine" may again be a popular tune.

Sightseeing by air has proved to be so popular in Vancouver that Trans-Canada Air Lines is now providing the same service in Victoria—a 30-minute round trip for $3.

As well as giving an aerial view of Victoria and the Gulf Islands, the flight provides an opportunity for the land-locked to be initiated to air travel without really going anywhere. On Sunday 24 of the 45 passengers were first-flighters.

About half were children—the youngest being a two-year-old. For 10-year-old David Litt it was a birthday treat and he was accompanied by his sister Bryony.

Victor Scagliati, a seasoned air traveller, used the opportunity to introduce his wife and two small sons to the thrill of going by air.

Captain Joseph Dutchuk and first officer Trevor Bolitho started the tour with a close-up of Salt Spring and other Gulf Islands, then along the coastline of Victoria and out to Jordan River.

Circling slowly for the return trip, passengers had an opportunity to view Swiftsure stragglers.

At flight time the sun was shining in the Straits, the wind was right and the colorful sails billowed out like balloons.

Although it was a rather turbulent trip the carefully placed paper bags remained unsoiled.

Second flight of the day carried the remaining eight passengers. Among them was Christopher Jame Mandefield.

"I've worked with gas engines all my life," he said, as he looked very skeptical at the four-engine Viscount, "and I never saw one yet that didn't stop sometime."

Aboard the plane stewardess Doreen Anderson presented Mr. Mandefield with a door prize — a brightly colored beach bag.

As the engines warmed up Mr. Mandefield got into the spirit of things as he said: "This is the first time I've done anything exciting since I ran away from my ship because I didn't get enough to eat." That was 1900 in Australia.

DEFECTOR REWARDED

TOKYO (AP)—A Nationalist Chinese pilot has been rewarded with 2,500 ounces of gold—worth about $87,500—for defecting to Communist China with an American-made F-86F jet fighter, the New China News Agency said today.

A Peking broadcast monitored here said the pilot would be given the rank of major in the Communist Chinese air force. Other broadcasts said he landed somewhere in East China Saturday. He was identified as Capt. Hsu Ting-tse.

The Chinese Nationalists have said only that one of their pilots disappeared in a storm.

Child Dies in Fall, Youths Save Others

KAMLOOPS (CP) — RCMP praised the presence of mind of four Vancouver youths who assisted five children trapped on a canyon ledge near here after a sixth child had plummeted 150 feet to his death.

Robert Bruce Davidson of Vancouver and three companions were driving near Peterson Creek, a half mile south of here, when they heard 12-year-old Leslie Wallace shouting for help.

Leslie said her nine-year-old brother Derek had fallen over the cliff and that another brother and a sister and two Seattle children, Stephen and Sharon Dow, were trapped on a ledge on the cliff face.

One of the Vancouver youths drove here to call RCMP and fire department rescuers. Another went up the side of the cliff to keep the other children from falling.

Davidson and his other companion descended to the creek bed where they found the Wallace boy lying at the side of the creek.

Rescuers removed the other children to safety and Derek was taken to hospital by ambulance but was pronounced dead on arrival.

POLO TUMBLE GIVES PHILIP BAD BRUISE

LONDON (Reuters)—Prince Philip suffered a badly bruised right shoulder Sunday when he fell from his horse during a polo match at Windsor Castle.

Philip was thrown from his pony in a collision with three other horses and lay on the ground among their hooves for several seconds before remounting.

He played out the period, but then went to a hospital where he was examined in the casualty ward. Officials said he had no broken bones but suffered an extensively bruised right shoulder.

Philip drove himself to the hospital in his sports car. Before leaving the game, he had scored his team's only goal. The team was eventually beaten 3-2.

NEW GRAND CHAMPION

Pony Prince Trots Proudly

The stallion, owned by Gilbert Mowatt, was also winner of the "over 12 hands—over two years" section in breeding class.

About 300 spectators saw the morning and afternoon show with 15 divisions for competition.

First place winners also included:

Judge was Dick Gardner, White Rock.

The Crisis In Quebec

(The position of Quebec province within Canada's Confederation appears to be undergoing strange changes. There are strong "nationalist" feelings, some going so far as to propose withdrawal from Canada and setting up of a separate republic. What are the reasons? What may result? Peter Regenstreif, whose articles analyzing the last election campaign—with an extremely accurate forecast—appeared in the Times, starts a five-part series today seeking the answers to these questions.)

By S. PETER REGENSTREIF

Declarations that "Canada's last chance" has arrived.

A government elected in Quebec on the slogan "maitres chez-mous."

Indeed, the events of the past few months in the Province of Quebec point to political behavior patterns that are far more characteristic of "underdeveloped" areas than of a region of a supposedly "advanced" western society.

One of the most noteworthy aspects of Canadian society is the existence of a large, readily identifiable, minority of French-Canadians with its own language, religion and educational system. In fact, it is possible to analyze the course of this country's history simply in terms of French-English relations.

In attempting to explain any developments in Quebec, it is always a good rule to bear in mind just what that history is.

Since 1763, when the British wrested control over most of the territory now called Canada from France, the French living in the British "new world" have tended to feel that they were a conquered people. After uncertain beginnings, the colonial authorities made little or no attempt to interfere with the habits and practices of their new subjects.

Through Church

Instead, the British, heavily outnumbered, dealt with French-Canada through the Roman Catholic Church, the only remaining focus of recognized authority in the area.

While the British North America Act firmly and irrevocably guaranteed to the French, now a minority, their own religion, school system and code of law, and established both French and English as the "official" languages of the country a century later, the French have never lost their conviction that they were in constant danger of having their culture submerged and their autonomy revoked by what they considered to be pernicious English influences.

It is difficult to demonstrate how much of this attitude is based on fact and how much on fantasy. It is, as might be expected, a mixture of both. The point is, that this is an important part of the French-Canadian ideological system.

Isolation from the rest of the country, religious and cultural differences and the self-consciousness of their elites, small in number but intense in conviction, have fed one upon the other. The process has been aided, at least until recently, by the semi-feudal structure of French-Canadian society and role of the Roman Catholic Church, always conscious of its position.

Historical Base

This self-image of a conquered and maltreated minority has some strong historical bases and any self-respecting French-Canadian intellectual can reel off the string of past events, all of which he considers "defeats" similar to the one suffered in 1763; the hanging of Louis Riel in 1885; the difficulties over the educational rights of French-Canadiana—in Manitoba in the 1890's; Canada's involvement in the Boer War; the schools question in Saskatchewan and Alberta in 1905.

Canada's participation in a naval program with Great Britain in 1909-1910, Ontario's rule 17 which limited the teaching of French in the schools in that province; conscription in 1917 and 1944. The list is endless.

Then there is always the attitudes and the practices the French-Canadian (especially the intellectual and the professional) perceives not only in his own province but throughout Canada: the fact that bilingualism is confined to Quebec and that outside of a few enclaves around Cornwall, in northern New Brunswick, Ontario, Alberta and in St. Boniface in Manitoba, French is just another foreign language, that the federal civil service is not really a friendly place for him; that, in his own province the top-most positions of power and influence in the economic structure are held by "Les Anglais"; and that, in terms of economic development, his people lag behind other Canadians who, in some cases, are living in areas less well-endowed by either nature or location that is his own province.

It is not surprising, then that for some French-Canadians, democracy in itself is

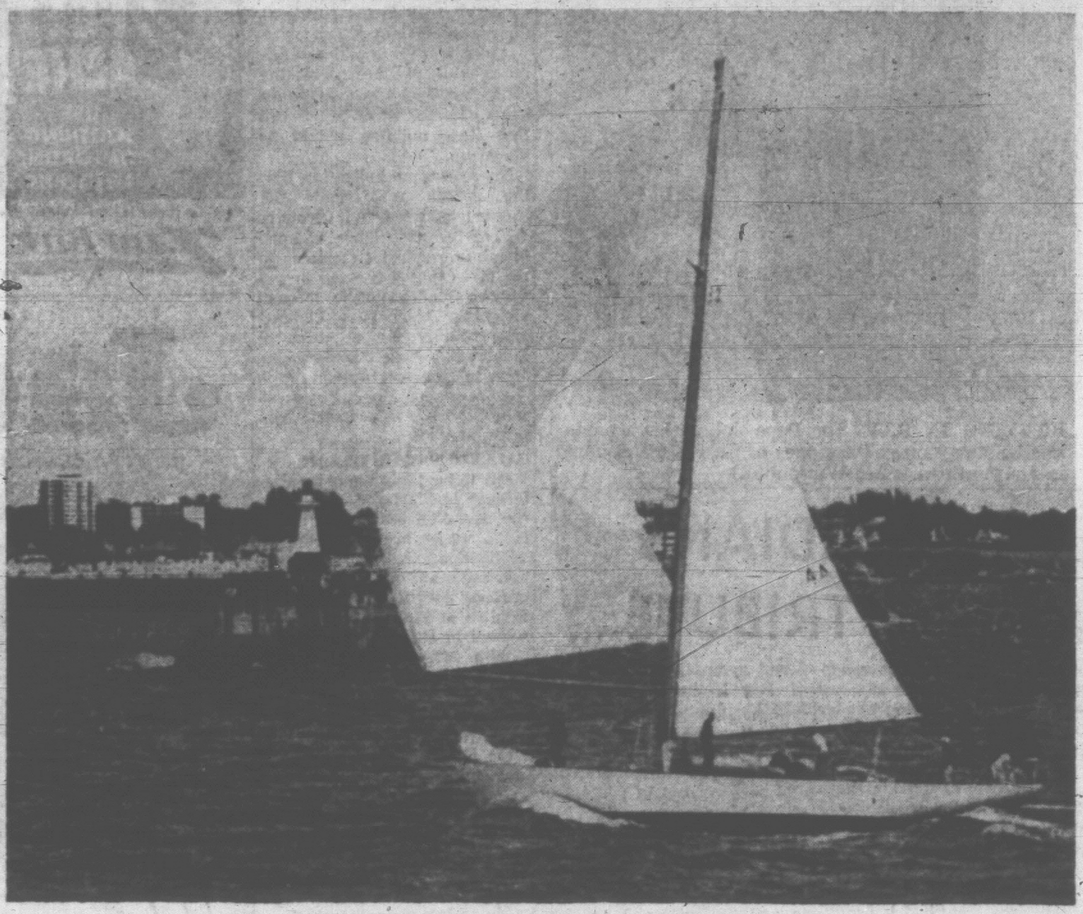
Pope Succumbs



First Over the Line

In the storm between the calms, City of Victoria trophy winner Adios, Seattle Yacht Club, makes the most of winds which varied over the weekend from downright wonderful to downright non-existent. Carl Jensen's sloop picked up speed sometime during the night, stormed around the Swiftsure marker (HMCS Beacon Hill) and fled home under spinnaker. Elapsed time 30:12:48.

Warm Simplicity Won Him Love Of All Faiths

(Times News Service)

VATICAN CITY—Pope John XXIII, spiritual leader of 500,000,000 Roman Catholics, died today at the age of 81.

He died on the fourth day of a dramatic fight against the disease from which he had suffered for more than a year—a stomach tumor, complicated since Friday by peritonitis.

The pope died at 7:49 p.m. (11:49 a.m. PDT), it was officially announced.

He died the day after Whitsun, feast of Pentecost, an occasion which was always very dear to him.

The Pope had reigned for four years, seven months and six days.

Death came only nine minutes after echoes of an extraordinary outdoor sunset mass in St. Peter's Square died away.

There at least 20,000 of all faiths and nationalities had joined in prayer for the dying Pope.

An announcement on Vatican radio broadcast the news to the world, first in Italian, in a calm but sorrowful voice.

His death also leaves up in the air recent Vatican contacts with the Communist regimes of Hungary and Poland.

It came just before President Kennedy, the first Roman Catholic president of the United States, had planned to call on the Pontiff.

Comparatively Short Reign

His comparatively short reign, his warm simplicity, his great concern for his fellow men of all faiths and his outspoken dedication to peace, Christian unity and social justice made him one of the most loved popes in the long history of the church.

His last days were spent in suffering relieved only when he fell into coma. Crisis had followed crisis and still his astonishing heart pumped life through his veins. His fever rose and so did his pulse rate. He was in what the Vatican called "atrocious pain." But he clung to a crucifix on his breast and suffered with fortitude. When he could, he concentrated on prayer.

High church dignitaries and his sister and three brothers—peasant folk from northern Italy—were in the palace when he died.

A grave relapse occurred two weeks ago and he suffered a final crisis last Friday when peritonitis set in.

The Pope's death automatically terminates the major undertaking of his reign—the second Vatican ecumenical council. One of his successor's first major decisions will be whether to continue the council. It has been in recess since Dec. 8 and was scheduled to resume Sept. 8.

Embassies and legations of the 50 nations which have diplomatic relations with the Vatican were immediately notified of the Pope's death.

CARDINALS TOLD

So were cardinals throughout the world who must come to Rome for the conclave to elect a new church ruler.

The conclave must start in 18 days. It could be sooner because of the speed of modern transportation.

But it cannot begin before a 15-day waiting period, including nine days of mourning.

The cardinals in Rome will gather as quickly as possible to take up the "interregnum," the period until a new pontiff is elected.

During the interim period, he is sort of an administrator, a "first among equals" in the College of Cardinals.

Sloop Thetis Wins But Protest Filed

By MONTE ROBERTS

A veteran contender in the Swiftsure Ocean Yacht racing classic, R. L. Regan's masthead sloop Thetis sailing out of Seattle Yacht Club, appears to be the winner of the main trophy, based on corrected time.

She was first boat home in BB Class to win the class trophy, and saved her time to edge out bigger class A and AA boats which finished ahead of her.

However, a protest has been filed against the Thetis, and will be considered by the Pacific International Yachting Association committee in Vancouver.

Precedent would indicate the protest will be disallowed. The nature of the protest has not been revealed.

First boat home, in the official overall time of 30 hours 12 minutes 48 seconds, was Carl Jensen's big sloop Adios, also a well-known figure in many Swiftsures. But she was beaten in AA Class on corrected time by another Seattle Yacht Club entry, Robert Coe's Sea Fever.

Thetis, of course, is the BB winner as well as Swiftsure winner. Despite a determined battle by Dana Ramsay's Royal Victoria entry Condor—a first time contender—R. B. Gregory's plucky little Cirrus won the B class for Tacoma Yacht Club.

The shorter C Class race, to Clallam Bay and return, was won by Henry Vogel's Aida, Royal Vancouver, followed by Maia V of West Vancouver.

FIVE MISSING ON SWIFTSURE 1962 ENTRY

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The yacht Morning Star reported Sunday she was sinking fast with five persons aboard and an extensive search of Bahamian waters failed to turn up any sign of survivors.

Three planes and a U.S. Navy ship criss-crossed the blue waters 250 miles southeast of Nassau for hours without success. An all-night search under flares was planned.

Someone on the yacht came on the Nassau marine telephone about 4 p.m. He said the craft was taking on water fast and would sink within 15 or 20 minutes.

The 98-foot ketch was entered in last year's Swiftsure race but was was late in arriving at Victoria and did not start. She several times has been first boat home in the Trans-Pac race running from San Francisco to Honolulu.

HONG KONG GETS RAIN; MORE NEEDED

HONG KONG (AP)—A 10-hour rain hit this drought-stricken British colony today and reservoirs netted more than 80,000,000 gallons of water. Officials estimated the .91-inch of rainfall was sufficient for two days' consumption by the colony's 3,500,000 residents. Hong Kong needs at least 50 inches of rain before the dry winter months set in. Residents have been receiving four hours of water supply every four days since Saturday.

'Inspiring Example To All of Us'

News of Pope John's passing was wirelessed to Bishop de Roo of Victoria aboard the RCN frigate HMCS Beacon Hill soon afternoon today.

The bishop, who sailed early today for Tofino and a tour of Vancouver Island's West Coast missions, issued this message:

"From the human point of view, Pope John's death at this time is a tragic loss. However, he has been an inspiring example to all of us in the courageous manner in which he has accepted his suffering.

"By offering his sufferings and death for the Church and for peace, he has made a magnificent contribution to God's plan for the revitalization of society.

"We shall all pray that the work begun by the late Pope will be brought to completion in our time."

Pope John honored him with the personal gift of a bishop's ring and, noting his youthfulness, referred to him as "Our Benjamin."

Solemn requiem mass for the Pope will be conducted in St. Andrew's Cathedral Tuesday at 11 a.m. by Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the diocese.

Prayers have been offered in all Roman Catholic churches during the Pope's illness and were intensified when his condition became serious.

Montreal Police Nab 8 In Raid on Terrorists

MONTREAL (CP) — City police are holding eight men suspected of being members of a terrorist group known as le Front de Liberation Quebecois.

This was disclosed at a press conference today by Police Director J. Adrien Robert and confirmed what other police informants said Sunday night.

But he declined to identify the men or disclose details of the detentions. "If we disclose more information quickly, it may compromise our investigation," he said.

Mr. Robert added that most of the detained men are French-speaking Canadians in their late teens or early 20s. He declined to disclose the nationality of those who are not French-Canadians.

LED BY BELGIAN

Reports in Montreal newspapers say the leader of the group is a 33-year-old Belgian who got training in revolutionary tactics in Cuba since he settled in Canada 15 years ago. The Star attributes its information along these lines to an unnamed police informant.

Mr. Robert said it is too early to say whether the FLQ had any connection with Communists.

Further arrests and detentions were possible. He estimated the size of the FLQ at possibly fewer than 20.

Mr. Robert said if any of the men are held criminally responsible for the lone death as a result of bombing activity they "most likely" will be charged with murder, but this

Columbia Teams Open Talks

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Liberal government today opened negotiations with the B.C. government on Columbia River development. Both sides promptly agreed to extend to two days the originally scheduled one-day conference.

When the discussions broke up for lunch, B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin agreed in their descriptions of the conference so far.

"Very useful discussions," Mr. Bennett said. "Very friendly. I am very pleased so far."

"The discussions were very useful," Mr. Martin said. "They were approached by both sides with a sense of co-operation and common purpose."

NO DETAILS

Neither side, however, would discuss any detail of problems that might be in the way of an agreed B.C.-federal scheme for Columbia development in co-operation with the U.S.

When asked what was the main differing point, Mr. Bennett said he would rather make note of the "points we are agreed on". He did not say what those points were, however.

Following the lunch break and oral question period opening today's sitting of the House of Commons, the discussions continued for the balance of the afternoon. They were to continue Tuesday morning.

BIG TEAMS

The talks, initiated by Prime Minister Pearson, opened at 10.30 a.m. (EDT) in the prime minister's office. Accompanying Mr. Bennett were B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, and co-chairmen of B.C. Hydro, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside and Dr. Gordon Shrum. With Mr. Pearson were Mr. Martin, Resources Minister Arthur Laing, Forestry Minister John Nicholson and Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary, Jack Davis, Liberal MP for Coast-Capilano.

After 40 minutes in Mr. Pearson's office, the group left Mr. Pearson to resume their talks in an East Block conference room, while Mr. Pearson kept other appointments.

Then, two hours later, Mr. Bennett emerged to tell reporters how pleased he had been with the discussions, including those with Mr. Pearson. Asked if any new ground had been broken, Mr. Bennett said, "all ground is new ground."

He said the "spirit was of the best," both in the prime minister's office and later. There had been "constructive headway."

Mr. Martin, standing beside Mr. Bennett in the glare of TV floodlights, was asked if he saw an early end to Columbia discussions and an early start on the project.

"We are getting along very well," he said. "When the conference is over I will be able to answer more definitely. This is a very important problem and we are trying, each of us, to meet a common objective."

Canada Boosts Planting

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has the capacity to grow a lot more of its own sugar—but it hasn't paid off in the past.

In fact, growers of sugar beets in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta usually have been recipients of federal aid.

In 1959, Ontario acreage plummeted because a Wallaceburg refinery was closed. It fell to about 14,000 acres from 33,000.

Agriculture department officials said Friday that Canada supplies about 15 per cent of its sugar consumption and that—as Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp indicated in the House of Commons this week—farmers are planting more sugar beets this year.

That results from high world prices for cane sugar, which set the pattern. For the second year in a row sugar demand has exceeded output internationally and this lies behind the upward surge of prices, now faltering.

Alberta, using irrigated land in the southern part of the province, is the largest grower.

TO INCREASE ACREAGE

Acreage this year may be 45,000 compared with just over 40,000 harvested last year. In Manitoba, 1962 was a bad year and the crop was harvested on 22,000 acres, although there may be 32,000 acres involved this season.

Ontario may harvest about 18,000 acres against 13,000 in 1962 and Quebec about 10,000—or just about the same.

Firm contracts with refiners are signed by sugar beet growers as early as January, well before the crop is planted. World conditions shape the price structure.

The world trade is a complicated operation. Only about one-third of the sugar produced gets into the international trade. About half that is governed by quotas and agreements.

Prices can come downward sharply as well as rise. Canadian growers are cushioned against this by an arrangement pinned to world raw sugar price levels. Federal payments are made if the average price received in Canada for home-grown beet sugar is below the international level.

No such payment is anticipated this year, because of high prices.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Labor Peace Nearer In Steel

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Hopes for labor peace in the United States steel industry sprouted higher last week.

And it was a week in which the sugar price bubble apparently collapsed.

It also was the anniversary of the Black Monday stock crash of 1962 but Wall Street ignored the occasion.

Optimism about the possibility of a steel labor settlement arose against a background of quiet talks between representatives of the United Steelworkers and producing companies.

Steel magazine said negotiators are on the verge of a settlement that would give the union an extended vacation plan in a one-year extension of the contract.

Iron Age Magazine reported a "strong possibility" of a settlement.

An agreement would avoid reopening the contract for wage negotiations. If there is a reopening the union would be free to strike 90 days later.

REDUCE PRICES

Leading sugar refiners began reducing prices for the first time since the upward spiral started in October, 1961. Their action came after an official of the agriculture department predicted a bursting of a speculative bubble in sugar prices.

The increases had caused boosts in the price of some foods using sugar and in retail prices.

The stock market took the anniversary of the 1962 crash—worst since 1929—in stride. It continued to remain in a consolidation phase after having more than made up its losses in the last year.

In the building field, contracts for future construction climbed to $3,982,605,000 in April from $3,860,460,000 a year earlier for a gain of three per cent.

LEVEL A RECORD

The cost of living in April remained at the record level of March. A decline in the price of meat, poultry and fish was offset by an advance in the cost of fruits and vegetables. The labor department said indications are that the consumer price index will remain at current level for several months.

As a result of the advance in the index from Jan. 15 to April 15, about 1,000,000 workers in the automobile industry will get a one-cent hourly wage increase this week.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Changing Trend Grows In Housing Demands

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Gordon Bell

"Who's going to live in all these new apartments in Victoria, the high-rises and the garden courts, and all the other new housing that is being built?"

That's a question asked frequently around town these days and, while the multiplication of housing locally seems to be running far ahead of demand, there's no doubt that the people who are putting up money to finance them expect demand to catch up eventually.

The demand will come not so much from growth in population of Victoria—although that is a factor—as from a changing type of population and a changing trend in housing requirements.

Some research on Canadian housing published in the latest issue of the Bank of Montreal's Business Review points out that apartments are proving popular, because of space and cost, to young families with no children or one child, to older couples whose children are no longer living at home, and to non-family households.

The significant fact brought out by the bank's study is that the number of people in these groups has been growing rapidly, with non-family households alone increasing at an average rate of 24,000 a year, double the rate of increase 10 years ago.

In Victoria, of course, the demand for apartments by older couples and non-family households is bound to be reinforced by this area's growing popularity as a retirement centre.

Most real estate experts will agree that right now—taking into consideration apartments newly-built and solidly-projected for the Victoria area—there is an overbuilt situation.

Vacancy rates are definitely moving up in Victoria and they will probably continue to climb for the next year or so until there is a levelling-off in construction.

All this is anticipating the increasing change in the population "mix" outlined in the bank study. And this, of course, is the job of the men who control the huge amounts of mortgage money which has been flooding into Victoria to finance all the new projects.

Plans to build even more high-rises and garden courts in this area may seem far-fetched to the "man-in-the-street" when space in completed buildings is going begging.

But it's a sure bet that the construction will come to a halt only when the money runs out—when the decision-makers in Toronto and Montreal, in London, Paris, New York and Geneva and other places where there are large amounts of capital, come to the conclusion that there has been enough apartment building in Victoria to satisfy demand for about 10 years ahead.

So far there has been only the broadest hint as to where Shawinigan Industries Ltd. plans to invest its liquid assets, estimated at around $27.1 million.

Shawinigan president John A. Fuller last week told a meeting of Montreal investment men that while he could tell them nothing specific, the company planned to enter "fields wherein Shawinigan's skills and technical talents can contribute to management growth."

The company would try to get a few relatively important holdings rather than many small interests, he said.

"We do not intend to operate as a holding company. We are looking for companies in which we can invest and take an active part in management," he added.

Mr. Fuller said he felt the company had an attractive future and that it retained the experienced management which built up Shawinigan Water and Power to the country's largest privately-owned electricity firm.

In addition to its liquid holdings, Shawinigan has a one-third interest in Shawinigan Chemicals Ltd., $800,000 invested in Shawinigan Engineering and $600,000 in Shawinigan Buildings.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Quiet, Selective Buying Featured

By GARY COOPER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets crept slowly ahead on quiet and selective buying last week.

A few major industrials advanced rather sharply, pulling the Toronto index to another record high on Friday.

With financial news almost nonexistant, investors had little to go on. Nor did Wall Street provide any leadership.

At Toronto, the industrial index—a compilation of 20 selected issues—advanced 2.21 on the week to a new all-time high of 647.96. A rise of 2.67 Friday wiped out a fractional deficit created in earlier sessions.

Although daily volume, hovering around the 3,000,000-share mark, were unimpressive, a few major industrials stood out.

Index stocks such as Distillers Seagrams advancing two points and CPR and Canadian Celanese rising healthy fractions were influential in the climb into record territory.

Refining oils and pipelines, closing on a mixed note, were among the more active issues.

Foods tended to ease slightly, taking a lead from sugar refineries. One exception in the group was Loblaw, which recorded a new 1963 top on moderate turnover.

UTILITIES ACTIVE

Certain of the utilities group featured fairly heavy turnover, including CPR and Consumers' Gas, both advancing fractionally on the week. Most others, such as B.C. Power and Shawinigan, remained steady.

Papers did fairly well on the basis of a report that the industry showed an increase, in April of 4.8 per cent in the production of ground pulp wood over the previous month. Among these, Great Lakes Paper was active and moved to a new high for the year.

Most motors were on the upswing with Chrysler and General Motors both advancing to new highs on modest trading.

Steels and construction issues were mostly lower and dull.

Base metals investors steered away from speculatives again last week and senior issues took over the spotlight. The big producers were generally stronger.

There was little activity or price fluctuation among western oils. Even the more active penny issues such as Quonto and Northcal showed only modest change in price.

Huge Ore Deal With Japan Moving Ahead

NEW YORK (CP)—Negotiations toward closing a huge Canadian-Japanese iron-ore deal took another step forward today with announcement that Canadian mine interests plan to buy about $200,000,000 worth of transportation and mining equipment in Japan.

Ataka New York Incorporated, a subsidiary of a major Japanese firm in the iron and steel import-export business, said plans call for the equipment to be bought by Jubilee Iron Corporation, for its O'Keefe-Star Lake Mine in Quebec province, and Canadian Javelin Limited for its Julian Lake deposits in Labrador.

Plans also call for construction in Japan of a fleet of 18 22-knot ore-oil carriers for Javelin. The $100,000,000 fleet of 45,000-ton ships would be used by Javelin to deliver high-grade iron ore pellets from Seven Islands and Port Cartier, Que., to Japan via the Panama Canal. The ships would proceed on around the world, bringing Near Eastern oil to North America.

Craigmont Net Profit Takes Drop

VANCOUVER (CP)—Craigmont Mines net profit for the last quarter dropped more than $1,000,000 from the same period a year ago, an interim report showed Friday.

President John D. Simpson said the decrease resulted from milling lower-grade ore.

In the three months ended April 30 this year, net profit was $777,056.

Price to Govern Japan Wheat Sales

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ryuji Katoh of the Food Agency of Japan says Japan will be importing more wheat this year than in 1962, but whether it will be Canadian wheat depends on the price.

He said that last year Japan imported 1,170,000 metric tons of wheat from Canada, almost half of the total imported by the country.

He said Canadian wheat excels all others imported by Japan for bread making, but that last year Canadian and United States wheat prices were almost the same.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Prices at Lower Levels

The stock market at Toronto hovered at lower levels today with all sections off fractionally with the exception of base metals, which were up half a point.

Prices rose at Montreal with moderately heavy trading in industrials. Motors and selected issues paced an uneven advance in New York.

AT TORONTO losses in a ⅛ to ¼ range went to Dominion Bridge, Union Gas, Bell Telephone, Texaco Canada and Calgary Power.

On the upside, Canadian Tire A and U.S. Ford each jumped a point, the latter touching a new 1963 top of 56, CPR gained ⅝ and Canadian Utilities rose ½.

Denison and Falconbridge led the base metals rise with gains of ½ each. Craigmont dropped a point to 16¾ on fairly heavy turnover.

Chrysler and United Air Lines were up about 2 apiece.

Steels were unchanged to fractionally lower. Weekly steel production declined. Sugars also were down as sugar commodity futures continued to fall sharply.

Among Canadian issues, Aluminium Ltd. was up ½ and Canadian Pacific advanced ⅝. Distillers Seagrams and Walker Gooderham each dropped ⅛ and Granby Mining was off ¼.

Prices were irregularly higher on the American Stock Exchange. Brazilian Traction lost ⅛, Scurry Rainbow ¼ and Fargo Oil 1/16.

AT MONTREAL Canadian Pacific Railways was heavily traded, moving a trend set earlier in the day.

Trans-Canada Pipe Line rose ¼ to 29½ and Massey Ferguson gained ⅛ to 14¼. Asbestos Corporation climbed ¼ to 26½ and Price Brothers was up ⅛ at 38¼.

In the mining issues, losses outnumbered gains. Midepsa dropped 18 cents to $1.70 and Mount Pleasant was down three cents to 63 cents. Silver Summit was down four cents at 76 cents.

AT VANCOUVER trading was light. Can. Am. Pete. was down at .20 and Ft. St. John at $1. Peace River Pete. dropped to .24½ and McKinney Gold to .19. New Indian was down at .19, while Silver Standard rose to .34. Western Mines dropped to $4.40.

GARFIELD WESTON
. . . staff problem

Supermarket Chain Stops Work in U.K.

LONDON (CP) — The Observer says Canadian Garfield Weston has suspended all work on supermarket property now under construction in Britain.

The paper says the decision affects some 100 supermarket sites now under development.

It quotes Weston as saying he is "deferring taking on any more stores until training programs are further advanced."

"The problems of manning our stores and training our staff have just caught up with us. We haven't got the fund of people trained here that we can get in the United States."

Weston imported a large number of potential Canadian managers nearly two years ago. Many of them have returned to Canada.

Weston's supermarket chain is usually called the biggest in Britain. He has recently moved into France and has stores in West Germany, Italy and other countries apart from his North American interests.

A total of 1,430 emergency cases were treated at St. Joseph's Hospital in May, hospital officials reported today.

Out of this total, 776 patients needed minor surgery, while 547 were treated for medical reasons. Cases involving fractures numbered 37.

A 25-foot cruiser with four adults and two children aboard drifted for four hours in the Straits of Juan de Fuca Saturday evening.

The boat, owned by Lieut. J. T. Holland, RCN, 883 Royal Oak, sent up distress signals which were spotted by a passing Japanese ship that sent word to B.C. Pilotage Authority.

Shortly after 8 p.m. a Pilotage vessel took the pleasure craft in tow about three miles off Brotchie Ledge.

Showers Sunday brought some relief to Saanich growers who feared lower yields from the strawberry crops due to the lack of moisture in May.

T. G. Michell, president of the Saanich Fruit Growers Association said the rain proved most beneficial, but more moisture within the next 10 days would do much to help the berries along.

"It's the warm winds with low humidity which dry out the fields," he said.

By JOHN MIKA

It almost never got started.

But for the slow start, it almost finished in record time.

And it almost had a Horatio Alger winner.

But there were plenty of thrilling — and boring — moments for the spectators as well as participants.

Notes Show Drama

Saturday, 8:10 A.M.—Scores of yachts, tall masts bare, glided silently by in pairs, threes and fours moving under auxiliary power through the calm Inner Harbor heading for the starting line.

9:30 A.M. — Thousands of people and cars line the Dallas Road waterfront, aircraft and helicopters buzz overhead, power boats skip through the armada of sails, the starting gun barks—and everyone drifts with canvas limp under the warm sun.

12:30 P.M.—A splendid but heartbreaking sight with dozens of yachts spread out from Clover Point to Albert Head their white, red, blue, green, yellow and black sails presenting a tremendously colorful panorama—but no action. Crew members on all the yachts loll droopily on decks, crack half-hearted jokes as we pass and just sweat with frustration and heat.

Reflects Beauty

1:00 P.M. — Photographers aboard Sudbury repeatedly exclaim over beauty of the sails—all of them reflected perfectly by glazed surface of the sea, showing bars, stripes and patches of each colored sail.

3:45 P.M.—A slight breeze crinkles away the sails' reflections and lighter yachts have spread beyond Metchosin. Stormy weather raises a clear plastic jib sail and the laughter of her crew wafts hundreds of yards over the stilly scene.

Run Before Wind

4:10 P.M. — We're in The Race now and the race is really under way. Strong breeze and tide put bones in the teeth of Ladaro, Sulaire and Nimbus as they run before the wind.

Ladaro—first time in the Swiftsure and a virtual unknown—heeled right over on a starboard tack with one gunwhale awash and her crew hanging over the other shouting derisive war whoops back at the bigger eight-metre Sulaire trying vainly to catch them. Instantly, the underdog Larado became the darling of those watching from the Sudbury, her pell mell run.

5:15 P.M.—Mighty Oriole, the biggest entry and crawling with RCN cadets, moved majestically under a white cloud of sail through The Race, passing some of the smaller yachts trailing the field. Sky clouding over and the wind kicking over some white caps.

6:30 P.M. — Breeze still strong and the whole field sails from horizon to horizon —appears heading for the American shore.

8 P.M.—Off Sheringham Point with a good southwest wind and an ebbing tide Sulaire, Winsome III, Maredea; in centre strait Courageous and Oriole; on American side Sea Fever, Odios, Diamond [illegible], Troubador and gallant little Ladaro.

10 P.M.—It will be a clear night with a good breeze and it's obvious that Ladaro, with an eight-hour time allowance, will win the Swiftsure in her first time out if she keeps up the blistering pace.

5:30 A.M. SUNDAY — Bobbing crazily in the Pacific swell as we watch sails coming through pearly morning light to round RCN Beacon Hill, anchored at the Swiftsure ledge and also bobbing like a cork.

Almost immediately she set her tall spinnaker and grew smaller in the distance as she flew before a steady 20-knot westerly wind, not quite an an hour ahead of Courageous which was next to round the mark.

Sub Under Sail

6:30 A.M. — Sulaire rounds Beacon Hill looking for all the world like a submarine under sail. Her sleek, narrow hull and clinging crew members in slickers and life vests completely disappear from view as she drops into each trough. The next moment she's heaved up on the crest of the wave, spewing salt water and showing her rounded hull and part of her keel.

7 TO 8 A.M.—Traffic out here at the edge of the open Pacific is busier than at Douglast and Yates at this hour on Sunday.

Yachts converge on Beacon Hill from both sides, coming 'round two and three abreast, criss-crossing beyond her and raising more spinnakers as they streak for home.

Within the hour more than 30 boats swept around the mark, yoyo-fashion on the heaving ocean swell. Some swung wide and others, trying to save every second, almost scraped the paint off Beacon Hill's stern as they sped by on a hard tack.

10 A.M.—Slowly overtaking Adios dead ahead as Sudbury II hisses through the sea at 10 knots. We've passed one beautiful yacht after another straining to get home. Skies alternately overcast and sunny. Wind steady. Sea Fever and Courageous off the stern, miles back.

And that's the way it ended as crowds on the Ogden Point breakwater cheered Adios over the finish line hours later.

'Pull Together Or Face Ruin'

ANTI-SMOKE APPEAL MADE TO BURNERS

Smoke committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow today appealed to apartment and office building owners and householders to join the anti-smoke campaign.

He pointed out firms like B.C. Forest Products have done their bit by installing expensive control machinery to reduce fly ash.

"But I know that a lot of apartment and office buildings take no precautions at all when burning their rubbish and consequently are getting to be as much of a problem as industry was," he said.

Ald. Edgelow said he had heard that government buildings also, specifically naming the post office, were creating a fly ash problem.

SPEAKER at the annual meeting of the B.C. Institute of Chartered Accountants June 14 will be J. O. Hemmingsen, vice-president, logging, for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd. Meeting will take place in the Tally-Ho Travelodge Hotel, June 13-14.

Mayor Hits Parochial Planning

Unless all of Greater Victoria pulls together the impact of increasing urbanization and fragmentized planning could ruin this area, Mayor R. B. Wilson warned today.

"It would be a tragedy—it really would—to spoil one of the most desirable parts of Canada through parochial planning," he said.

He said he was sure Victoria would do its part to prepare and carry out a plan for the good of the entire area.

DELEGATE RIGHTS

"I feel very strongly that the city should be willing to delegate some of its rights and privileges to the common good," Mayor Wilson said.

This would take the form of adoption of a community plan by the Capital Region Planning Board.

He said he was most impressed with the universal recognition at last week's Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Toronto that overall planning for an area was essential for a healthy community.

"There were a large number of people at the convention who voluntarily expressed the opinion that Victoria—meaning undoubtedly southern Vancouver Island—was one of the most beautiful places in Canada.

"That puts a very great responsibility on those of us in civic government here to see this area is not spoiled."

ANALYSIS

The mayor also said city council would analyze a list of capital projects to see which could be undertaken under a new federal plan for establishing a $400,000,000 civic loan fund "as soon as we know what kind of projects will qualify."

He said the city would have to wait introduction of the legislation in the Commons, then choose the projects it would undertake under the program, obtain provincial government endorsement and ratepayer approval for a money bylaw before any work could start.

TIMES STORY BRINGS OFFERS

Carr Fans Save Emily's Home

By LESLIE MILLIN

Emily Carr's last home will be saved from the wreckers.

The little house at 218 St. Andrews Street will be sold, and just who will buy it is uncertain.

But all the offers on the house, since The Times broke the story Saturday that it was for sale, have been made with the intention of preserving the house as a memorial.

Officials of the Canada Permanent Toronto General Trust Company, administrators of the "secret trust" of which the house is a part, confirmed today that "many" offers have been made over the weekend, and that offers are still coming in.

OWNER TO DECIDE

Decision on which offer will be accepted is up to the owner, believed to be Walter Koerner of Vancouver.

But since the highest bid will not necessarily be accepted — "We don't want an auction sale atmosphere," say trust officials — decision will likely be on a first-come-first-served basis that would put the house into the hands of the preservers.

Original asking price for the house was $7,000, and when the house was first put onto the market it was thought by trust officials to be almost inevitable that the historic home would be razed to make rom for a high-rise apartment building.

USED AS SCHOOL

The ramshackle, multi-level house—basically a cabin, with lean-tos added—was the property of Emily's sister, Miss Alice Carr, who used it as a house and school.

Emily spent the last few years of her life there, prior to her death in 1945.

Alice lived on until 1953. After her death, the house was occupied successively by artists Jan Zach and Margaret Peterson.

News that the house might be torn down raised a storm among Victoria artists that turned to jubilation today with the news that the home is to be preserved.

CAN RECREATE STUDIO

Victoria Art Gallery curator Colin Graham called it "great news, just wonderful.

"The Art Gallery has photographs of the inside of the house taken when Emily occupied it, so that it would be fairly easy to recreate her studio."

Mr. Graham indicated that if the new owner wished to set the house up as an Emily Carr museum or shrine, it would be relatively easy to acquire some of the late artist's works for it.

MANY CURIOUS

There would be no shortage of people wishing to see the house.

Writer Howard O'Hagan, last tenant of the house, told The Times on Saturday that there was a regular flow of people who wanted to see the home.

On Sunday afternoon, curious Victorians visited the house in droves, at one time completely clogging narrow St. Andrews Street with their cars as they tried to get what many thought a "last look" at the Carr home.

Archer Report Still Soaring Out of Reach

Public release of the Archer report on Greater Victoria policing is being delayed "out of courtesy" to municipalities involved, a spokesman for the attorney-general's department said today.

But who will release it?

City and provincial officials seem to have been playing a game of Archer report passing.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the report is a government document and the city couldn't release it.

The attorney-general's spokesman said the report was made at the request of city police commission and he didn't know who would make the release.

"I am sure the government would not unnecessarily delay the release," Mayor Wilson said. "I hope it is released as soon as possible."

The provincial spokesman said the report has been given to the city on a confidential basis and Attorney-General Robert Bonner is interviewing the other reeves one by one to give them the portions relevant to their police forces.

So far, he said, one municipality has been given the report.

Mr. Bonner is in Ottawa this week for Columbia River power talks.

There will be no public release at least until he has seen all the reeves.

Child Dies in Fall, Youths Save Others

KAMLOOPS (CP) — RCMP praised the presence of mind of four Vancouver youths who assisted five children trapped on a canyon ledge near here after a sixth child had plummeted 150 feet to his death.

Robert Bruce Davidson of Vancouver and three companions were driving near Peterson Creek, a half mile south of here, when they heard 12-year-old Leslie Wallace shouting for help.

Leslie said her nine-year-old brother Derek had fallen over the cliff and that another brother and a sister and two Seattle children, Stephen and Sharon Dow, were trapped on a ledge on the cliff face.

One of the Vancouver youths drove here to call RCMP and fire department rescuers. Another went up the side of the cliff to keep the other children from falling.

Davidson and his other companion descended to the creek bed where they found the Wallace boy lying at the side of the creek.

POLO TUMBLE GIVES PHILIP BAD BRUISE

Philip was thrown from his pony in a collision with three other horses and lay on the ground among their hooves for several seconds before remounting.

He played out the period, but then went to a hospital where he was examined in the casualty ward. Officials said he had no broken bones but suffered an extensively bruised right shoulder.

Philip drove himself to the hospital in his sports car. Before leaving the game, he had scored his team's only goal. The team was eventually beaten 3-2.

NEW GRAND CHAMPION

Pony Prince Trots Proudly

The stallion, owned by Gilbert Mowatt, was also winner of the "over 12 hands—over two years" section in breeding class.

About 300 spectators saw the morning and afternoon show with 15 divisions for competition.

First place winners also included:

Judge was Dick Gardner, White Rock.

PLANE MISSING 101 MEN ABOARD

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government agencies said today an airliner with 95 soldiers aboard is overdue and missing in Alaska.

The plane was identified as a Northwest Airlines DC7, flight 293, unreported since 2:06 p.m. EST when it was an hour overdue at Elmendorf Air Force Base.

The plane was believed to have last been heard from between Sitka and Annette Island.

Crisis In Quebec

(The position of Quebec province within Canada's Confederation appears to be undergoing strange changes. There are strong "nationalist" feelings, some going so far as to propose withdrawal from Canada and setting up of a separate republic. What are the reasons? What may result? Peter Regenstreif, whose articles analyzing the last election campaign—with an extremely accurate forecast—appeared in the Times, starts a five-part series today seeking the answers to these questions.)

Declarations that "Canada's last chance" has arrived.

Indeed, the events of the past few months in the Province of Quebec point to political behavior patterns that are far more characteristic of "underdeveloped" areas than of a region of a supposedly "advanced" western society.

One of the most noteworthy aspects of Canadian society is the existence of a large, readily identifiable, minority of French-Canadians with its own language, religion and educational system. In fact, it is possible to analyze the course of this country's history simply in terms of French-English relations.

In attempting to explain any developments in Quebec, it is always a good rule to bear in mind just what that history is.

Since 1763, when the British wrested control over most of the territory now called Canada from France, the French living in the British "new world" have tended to feel that they were a conquered people. After uncertain beginnings, the colonial authorities made little or no attempt to interfere with the habits and practices of their new subjects.

Through Church

Instead, the British, heavily outnumberd, dealt with French-Canada through the Roman Catholic Church, the only remaining focus of recognized authority in the area.

While the British North America Act firmly and irrevocably guaranteed to the French, now a minority, their own religion, school system and code of law, and established both French and English as the "official" languages of the country a century later, the French have never lost their conviction that they were in constant danger of having their culture submerged and their autonomy revoked by what they considered to be pernicious English influences.

It is difficult to demonstrate how much of this attitude is based on fact and how much on fantasy. It is, as might be expected, a mixture of both. The point is, that this is an important part of the French-Canadian ideological system.

Isolation from the rest of the country, religious and cultural differences and the self-consciousness of their elites, small in number but intense in conviction, have fed one upon the other. The process has been aided, at least until recently, by the semi-feudal structure of French-Canadian society and role of the Roman Catholic Church, always conscious of its position.

Historical Base

This self-image of a conquered and maltreated minority has some strong historical bases and any self-respecting French-Canadian intellectual can reel off the string of past events, all of which he considers "defeats" similar to the one suffered in 1763; the hanging of Louis Riel in 1885; the difficulties over the educational rights of French-Canadians—in Manitoba in the 1890's; Canada's involvement in the Boer War; the schools question in Saskatchewan and Alberta in 1905.

First Over the Line

In the storm between the calms, City of Victoria trophy winner Adios, Seattle Yacht Club, makes the most of winds which varied over the weekend from downright wonderful to downright non-existent. Carl Jensen's sloop picked up speed sometime during the night, stormed around the Swiftsure marker (HMCS Beacon Hill) and fled home under spinnaker. Elapsed time 30:12:48.

Sloop Thetis Wins But Protest Filed

By MONTE ROBERTS

A veteran contender in the Swiftsure Ocean Yacht racing classic, R. L. Regan's masthead sloop Thetis sailing out of Seattle Yacht Club, appears to be the winner of the main trophy, based on corrected time.

She was first boat home in BB Class to win the class trophy, and saved her time to edge out bigger class A and AA boats which finished ahead of her.

However, a protest has been filed against the Thetis, and will be considered by the Pacific International Yachting Association committee in Vancouver.

Precedent would indicate the protest will be disallowed. The nature of the protest has not been revealed.

First boat home, in the official overall time of 30 hours 12 minutes 48 seconds, was Carl Jensen's big sloop Adios, also a well-known figure in many Swiftsures. But she was beaten in AA Class on corrected time by another Seattle Yacht Club entry, Robert Coe's Sea Fever.

Thetis, of course, is the BB winner as well as Swiftsure winner. Despite a determined battle by Dana Ramsay's Royal Victoria entry Condor—a first time contender—R. B. Gregory's plucky little Cirrus won the B class for Tacoma Yacht Club.

The shorter C Class race, to Clallam Bay and return, was won by Henry Vogel's Aida, Royal Vancouver, followed by Maia V of West Vancouver.

FIVE MISSING ON SWIFTSURE 1962 ENTRY

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The yacht Morning Star reported Sunday she was sinking fast with five persons aboard and an extensive search of Bahamian waters failed to turn up any sign of survivors.

Three planes and a U.S. Navy ship criss-crossed the blue waters 250 miles southeast of Nassau for hours without success. An all-night search under flares was planned.

Someone on the yacht came on the Nassau marine telephone about 4 p.m. He said the craft was taking on water fast and would sink within 15 or 20 minutes.

The 98-foot ketch was entered in last year's Swiftsure race but was was late in arriving at Victoria and did not start. She several times has been first boat home in the Trans-Pac race running from San Francisco to Honolulu.

Warm Simplicity Won Him Love Of All Faiths

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope John will be buried privately in St. Peter's Basilica at 6 p.m. Rome time (1 p.m. EDT), Thursday, a Vatican spokesman announced tonight.

From 9 a.m. Tuesday, Cardinals and diplomats will pay homage before his body, lying in a chamber of his private apartments on the third floor of the Vatican palace.

(Times News Service)

VATICAN CITY—Pope John XXIII, spiritual leader of 500,000,000 Roman Catholics, died today at the age of 81.

He died on the fourth day of a dramatic fight against the disease from which he had suffered for more than a year—a stomach tumor, complicated since Friday by peritonitis.

The pope died at 7:49 p.m. (11:49 a.m. PDT), it was officially announced.

He died the day after Whitsun, feast of Pentecost, an occasion which was always very dear to him.

The Pope had reigned for four years, seven months and six days.

Death came only nine minutes after echoes of an extraordinary outdoor sunset mass in St. Peter's Square died away.

There at least 20,000 of all faiths and nationalities had joined in prayer for the dying Pope.

An announcement on Vatican radio broadcast the news to the world, first in Italian, in a calm but sorrowful voice.

His death also leaves up in the air recent Vatican contacts with the Communist regimes of Hungary and Poland.

It came just before President Kennedy, the first Roman Catholic president of the United States, had planned to call on the Pontiff.

Comparatively Short Reign

His comparatively short reign, his warm simplicity, his great concern for his fellow men of all faiths and his outspoken dedication to peace, Christian unity and social justice made him one of the most loved popes in the long history of the church.

His last days were spent in suffering relieved only when he fell into coma. Crisis had followed crisis and still his astonishing heart pumped life through his veins. His fever rose and so did his pulse rate. He was in what the Vatican called "atrocious pain." But he clung to a crucifix on his breast and suffered with fortitude. When he could, he concentrated on prayer.

High church dignitaries and his sister and three brothers—peasant folk from northern Italy—were in the palace when he died.

A grave relapse occurred two weeks ago and he suffered a final crisis last Friday when peritonitis set in.

The Pope's death automatically terminates the major undertaking of his reign—the second Vatican ecumenical council. One of his successor's first major decisions will be whether to continue the council. It has been in recess since Dec. 8 and was scheduled to resume Sept. 8.

Embassies and legations of the 50 nations which have diplomatic relations with the Vatican were immediately notified of the Pope's death.

CARDINALS TOLD

So were cardinals throughout the world who must come to Rome for the conclave to elect a new church ruler.

The conclave must start in 18 days. It could be sooner because of the speed of modern transportation.

But it cannot begin before a 15-day waiting period, including nine days of mourning.

The cardinals in Rome will gather as quickly as possible to take up the "interregnum," the period until a new pontiff is elected.

During the interim period he is sort of an administrator, a "first among equals" in the College of Cardinals.

The positions of other high church officials lapsed. Even Amletto Cardinal Cicognani

'Inspiring Example To Us All'

News of Pope John's passing was wirelessed to Bishop de Roo of Victoria aboard the RCN frigate HMCS Beacon Hill soon afternoon today.

The bishop, who sailed early today for Tofino and a tour of Vancouver Island's West Coast missions, issued this message:

"From the human point of view, Pope John's death at this time is a tragic loss. However, he has been an inspiring example to all of us in the courageous manner in which he has accepted his suffering.

"By offering his sufferings and death for the Church and for peace, he has made a magnificent contribution to God's plan for the revitalization of society.

"We shall all pray that the work begun by the late Pope will be brought to completion in our time."

Pope John honored him with the personal gift of a bishop's ring and, noting his youthfulness, referred to him as "Our Benjamin."

Solemn requiem mass for the Pope will be conducted in St. Andrew's Cathedral Tuesday at 11 a.m. by Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the diocese.

Montreal Police Nab 8 In Raid on Terrorists

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said today a ninth person—described as an attractive young woman—has been picked up in their continuing drive against the terrorist organization, le Front de Liberation Quebecois.

MONTREAL (CP) — City police are holding eight men suspected of being members of a terrorist group known as le Front de Liberation Quebecois.

This was disclosed at a press conference today by Police Director J. Adrien Robert and confirmed what other police informants said Sunday night.

But he declined to identify the men or disclose details of the detentions. "If we disclose more information quickly, it may compromise our investigation," he said.

Mr. Robert added that most of the detained men are French-speaking Canadians in their late teens or early 20s. He declined to disclose the nationality of those who are not French-Canadians.

LED BY BELGIAN

Reports in Montreal newspapers say the leader of the group is a 33-year-old Belgian who got training in revolutionary tactics in Cuba since he settled in Canada 15 years ago. The Star attributes its information along these lines to an unnamed police informant.

Mr. Robert said it is too early to say whether the FLQ had any connection with Communists.

Further arrests and detentions were possible. He estimated the size of the FLQ at possibly fewer than 20.

Mr. Robert said if any of the men are held criminally responsible for the lone death as a result of bombing activity they "most likely" will be charged with murder, but this

Columbia Teams Open Talks

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Liberal government today opened negotiations with the B.C. government on Columbia River development. Both sides promptly agreed to extend to two days the originally scheduled one-day conference.

When the discussions broke up for lunch, B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin agreed in their descriptions of the conference so far.

"Very useful discussions," Mr. Bennett said. "Very friendly. I am very pleased so far."

"The discussions were very useful," Mr. Martin said. "They were approached by both sides with a sense of co-operation and common purpose."

NO DETAILS

Neither side, however, would discuss any detail of problems that might be in the way of an agreed B.C.-federal scheme for Columbia development in co-operation with the U.S.

When asked what was the main differing point, Mr. Bennett said he would rather make note of the "points we are agreed on." He did not say what these points were, however.

Following the lunch break and oral question period opening today's sitting of the House of Commons, the discussions continued for the balance of the afternoon. They were to continue Tuesday morning.

The talks, initiated by Prime Minister Pearson, opened at 10:30 a.m. (EDT) in the prime minister's office. Accompanying Mr. Bennett were B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, and co-chairmen of B.C. Hydro, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside and Dr. Gordon Shrum. With Mr. Pearson were Mr. Martin, Resources Minister Arthur Laing, Forestry Minister John Nicholson and Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary, Jack Davis, Liberal MP for Coast-Capilano.

After 40 minutes in Mr. Pearson's office, the group left Mr. Pearson to resume their talks in an East Block conference room, while Mr. Pearson kept other appointments.

Then, two hours later, Mr. Bennett emerged to tell reporters how pleased he had been with the discussions, including those with Mr. Pearson. Asked if any new ground had been broken, Mr. Bennett said, "all ground is new ground."

He said the "spirit was of the best," both in the prime minister's office and later. There had been "constructive headway."

Mr. Martin, standing beside Mr. Bennett in the glare of TV floodlights, was asked if he saw an early end to Columbia discussions and an early start on the project.

"We are getting along very well," he said. "When the conference is over I will be able to answer more definitely. This is a very important problem and we are trying, each of us, to meet a common objective."

schools in that province; conscription in 1917 and 1944. The list is endless.

Then there is always the attitudes and the practices the French-Canadian (especially the intellectual and the professional) perceives not only in his own province but throughout Canada: the fact that bilingualism is confined to Quebec and that outside of a few enclaves around Cornwall, in northern New Brunswick, Ontario, Alberta and in St. Boniface in Manitoba, French is just another foreign language, that the federal civil service is not really a friendly place for him; that, in his own province the top-most positions of power and influence in the economic structure are held by "Les Anglais"; and that, in terms of economic development, his people lag behind other Canadians who, in some cases, are living in areas less well-endowed by either nature or location than is his own province.

It is not surprising, then that for some French-Canadians, democracy in itself is suspect. In their eyes, it means simply the rule of the majority against the minority—the preponderance of numbers as against rights.

Since most of the province's rights were established before democracy in its 20th century form became a reality in Canada, the entire constitutional system by which this country has ordered its political life has for a long time been subject to question.

A good rule for English-Canadians to recognize, too, is that Confederation is not looked upon by the French as merely a legal document passed by the British Parliament in Westminster (and therefore another symbol of conquest) but as a solemn compact between the two historic "races" in Canada.

Therefore, as one of the "charter groups" of this country, the French feel they have special claims upon it. Agree with this or not, this is one of the most important facts of Canadian political life.

Obviously, much of the foregoing represents attitudes which are consciously held and articulated by a small minority. Many are outside the mainstream of the hum-drum existence which is the characteristic of every society, not only the French-Canadian. But all French-Canadians are somehow influenced by it.

While they may deplore extremism of all kinds, they also can look with a certain sympathy born of intense ethnic identification upon the efforts of even the most irresponsible of the Separatists or "Nationalists."

Undoubtedly, many will pooh-pooh the present agitation in "La Belle province" as being merely another in the long line of manifestations of "La Dualite Canadienne." However, these recent events are different for two very basic reasons.

In the first place, this questioning of the manner in which Confederation has worked itself out for French-Canadians has reached the highest circles of public life.

Discussing the subject of French-English relations in an interview last week, Quebec's renowned Natural Resources Minister Rene Levesque laid it on the line:

Just a Bargain

"Confederation isn't sacred, you know. It is just a bargain made 100 years ago. It has become a bad bargain. Sometimes the only thing you can do with a bad bargain is to get out of it. And that can be done democratically."

Secondly, contrary to previous experience, the discontent voiced in various circles of French-Canada does not revolve around one specific event—such as conscription or an "autonomy" bill—but around a whole complex of economic, political and social factors which are now all coming together to create a crisis not only for Quebec but for Canada as a whole.

Probably what underlines this crisis more than anything else is the resolution passed in the Quebec legislature last week calling for a provincial commission to examine "the needs of French-Canadians" under a new constitution. It is clear that Canada is at another one of its crossroads.

The succeeding articles of this series will try to analyze just what the elements of this emergency and what some of the possible remedies might be.

CANADIANS PAY TRIBUTE

Gen. Vanier said:

"The people of Canada share the sorrow of the whole world at the death of His Holiness Pope John XXIII.

"There is universal mourning. Indeed it is not only a loss for Christianity but for all humanity who recognized in the Holy Father a heart open to all, a shepherd of a fold with open doors.

"John XXIII was a great Pope; in spite of years, young in action, firm of purpose and a leader whose authority was unquestioned.

WAS CLOSE FRIEND

"I mourn a friend with whom I was intimately associated for nearly nine years when he was dean of the diplomatic corps in Paris. The heads of mission realized very quickly that their dean was a consummate diplomat with a keen intellect, innate tact, and a fine political sense. But Monseigneur Roncalli was much more than just diplomat; to all it was obvious that he was deeply spiritual in his outlook and life.

"Although the pontificate of John XXIII was short, his accomplishment was great. He succeeded in creating a climate of brotherhood in the world and won the confidence of all men of good will. He spread the reign of God which is the reign of truth, of justice and of peace.

MEMORY ENGRAVED

"The memory of John XXIII will live. It will be engraved on the hearts of man in letters of love."

Mr. Pearson's tribute:

"May I, on behalf of the government and people of Canada' express my deep and profound sympathy on the death of His Holiness Pope John XXIII.

"During the relatively short period of his pontificate his holiness won the admiration and deep respect of peoples of all religious faiths . . ."

Mr. Diefenbaker's tribute:

"The passing of Pope John XXIII has brought sorrow to all Christendom. His devotion to and the influence he exercised in the cause of world peace had made him in a few short years one of the most outstanding Popes in modern history.

"In the four and a half years since he became Pope he had become a world voice for peace and social betterment for all mankind."

ceased to be secretary of state on the Pope's death.

It was Cardinal Aloisi Masela, in his capacity as cardinal chamberlain, who formally certified the death of Pope John. He then took possession of the apostolic palace and sent emissaries to take possession of other papal properties around Pope, including the basilica of St. John Lanteran and the papal summer residence at Castel Gandolfo south of Rome.

But Cardinal Aloisi Masella did not move into the papal apartment, following a procedure established by Pope Pius XII. The cardinal ordered the papal apartment sealed, to be left empty until a new pope moves in.

TAKES OVER POST

During the interregnum, the office of secretary of state—normally the highest Vatican post under the pope—will be filled by the secretary of the College of Cardinals. He is a 58-year-old Sicilian, Archbishop Francesco Carpino.

The Pope's three brothers and sister were with him when he died. Just minutes before the death announcement came the Vatican press office had said they and the Pope's confessor, Rt. Rev. Alfredo Cavagna, and Cardinal Cicognani had been in the apartment following from there the mass in St. Peter's square.

The extraordinary mass was celebrated on an improvised altar placed outside the basilica under the balcony from which Pope John had given his first blessing the evening he was elected Pope, Oct. 28, 1958.

The Vatican press office said those in the Pope's apartment, overlooking the square, followed the mass and "united themselves spiritually with the people in the square."

SECOND-HAND STORE CROSS FOR BURIAL

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) —Pope John said Sunday he wants to be buried wearing a pectoral cross which he bought in a Milan second-hand store in 1926, a Vatican spokesman said.

Msgr. Angelo Roncalli, as the Pope then was, saw the cross in a store in a side street a year earlier.

The owner asked 1,000 lire, which the future Pope did not have with him. He said he would call again later.

It was not until a year had passed that the priest returned to the store for the cross.

The spokesman said the cross was thought to have belonged to an abbot of the old Milan monastery of St. Ambrose, the patron saint of that Roman Catholic city.

Many Faiths Prayed For Pope of Peace

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — With uncommon unanimity, men of many faiths throughout the world Sunday watched ailing Pope John XXIII struggle with death, prayed for him and praised him as a man of peace in an angry age.

In large gatherings, in small groups or in private—on both sides of the iron curtain—Roman Catholics and non-Catholics turned their thoughts and hopes to the humble Italian tenant-farmer's son who dedicated his reign as Roman Catholic pontiff to peace on earth and good will toward men.

Protesants and Jews joined Catholics in prayers for him. Communists joined capitalists in praise of him.

Speaking in England's ancient Canterbury Cathedral, the archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, described Pope John as a man who had captured the imagination of the world.

"The hearts of Christians everywhere go out to one man—a great Christian, of our time," said Dr. Ramsey, the highest-ranking prelate of the Church of England.

PRAY IN MOSCOW

A dozen Catholics gathered in the afternoon in Moscow's St. Louis of the French church to pray for the Pope. The church was briefly opened between masses. It is usually kept locked.

After radio broadcasts of the arrests Sunday night, the switchboard operator at police headquarters received a call that the building would be blown up.

There was no indication that the person who made the threat tried to carry it through.

FLQ terrorists have claimed in mimeographed statements to the press that they want to win Quebec's independence through violence. They have claimed responsibility for a series of bombings and other acts of sabotage in Montreal, starting with the tossing of Molotov cocktail incendiaries at Montreal armories March 8.

CALLED MAJOR BREAK

Mr. Robert told the press conference in his large office that the detention of the eight men is "a major break" in the investigation. Some 35 newspaper, radio and television reporters fired questions in French and English at Mr. Robert who answered in either language.

With Mr. Robert were two Crown prosecutors and six city detectives working on the team assigned to crack the FLQ.

Mr. Robert said the eight men were picked up Saturday night and early Sunday morning singly and in groups, adding:

"We tracked down thoroughly about 500 sources of information. It was just one good detail which really enabled us to break the case, and it came more or less unexpectedly."

Dynamite, detonators, alarm clocks and various types of wire were seized by police during the raids. There were 150 sticks of dynamite seized during the police raids.

Columbia Teams Open Talks

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Liberal government today opened negotiations with the B.C. government on Columbia River development. Both sides promptly agreed to extend to two days the originally scheduled one-day conference.

When the discussions broke up for lunch, B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin agreed in their descriptions of the conference so far.

"Very useful discussions," Mr. Bennett said. "Very friendly. I am very pleased so far."

"The discussions were very useful," Mr. Martin said. "They were approached by both sides with a sense of co-operation and common purpose."

NO DETAILS

Neither side, however, would discuss any detail of problems that might be in the way of an agreed B.C.-federal scheme for Columbia development in co-operation with the U.S.

When asked what was the main differing point, Mr. Bennett said he would rather make note of the "points we are agreed on." He did not say what these points were, however.

Following the lunch break and oral question period opening today's sitting of the House of Commons, the discussions continued for the balance of the afternoon. They were to continue Tuesday morning.

The talks, initiated by Prime Minister Pearson, opened at 10.30 a.m. (EDT) in the prime minister's office. Accompanying Mr. Bennett were B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, and co-chairmen of B.C. Hydro, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside and Dr. Gordon Shrum. With Mr. Pearson were Mr. Martin, Resources Minister Arthur Laing, Forestry Minister John Nicholson and Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary, Jack Davis, Liberal MP for Coast-Capilano.

After 40 minutes in Mr. Pearson's office, the group left Mr. Pearson to resume their talks in an East Block conference room, while Mr. Pearson kept other appointments.

Then, two hours later, Mr. Bennett emerged to tell reporters how pleased he had been with the discussions, including those with Mr. Pearson. Asked if any new ground had been broken, Mr. Bennett said, "all ground is new ground."

He said the "spirit was of the best," both in the prime minister's office and later. There had been "constructive headway."

Mr. Martin, standing beside Mr. Bennett in the glare of TV floodlights, was asked if he saw an early end to Columbia discussions and an early start on the project.

"We are getting along very well," he said. "When the conference is over I will be able to answer more definitely. This is a very important problem and we are trying, each of us, to meet a common objective."

A 25-foot cruiser with four adults and two children aboard drifted for four hours in the Straits of Juan de Fuca Saturday evening.

The boat, owned by Lieut. J. T. Holland, RCN, 883 Royal Oak, sent up distress signals which were spotted by a passing Japanese ship that sent word to B.C. Pilotage Authority.

Shortly after 8 p.m. a Pilotage vessel took the pleasure craft in tow about three miles off Broichie Ledge.

Showers Sunday brought some relief to Saanich growers who feared lower yields from the strawberry crops due to the lack of moisture in May.

T. G. Michell, president of the Saanich Fruit Growers Association said the rain proved most beneficial, but more moisture within the next 10 days would do much to help the berries along.

"It's the warm winds with low humidity which dry out the fields," he said.

By JOHN MIKA

It almost never got started.

But for the slow start, it almost finished in record time.

And it almost had a Horatio Alger winner.

But there were plenty of thrilling — and boring — moments for the spectators as well as participants.

Notes Show Drama

Saturday, 8:10 A.M.—Scores of yachts, tall masts bare, glided silently by in pairs, threes and fours moving under auxiliary power through the calm Inner Harbor heading for the starting line.

9:30 A.M. — Thousands of people and cars line the Dallas Road waterfront, aircraft and helicopters buzz overhead, power boats skip through the armada of sails, the starting gun barks—and everyone drifts with canvas limp under the warm sun.

12:30 P.M.—A splendid but heartbreaking sight with dozens of yachts spread out from Clover Point to Albert Head their white, red, blue, green, yellow and black sails presenting a tremendously colorful panorama—but no action. Crew members on all the yachts loll droopily on decks, crack half-hearted jokes as we pass and just sweat with frustration and heat.

Reflects Beauty

1:00 P.M. — Photographers aboard Sudbury repeatedly exclaim over beauty of the sails—all of them reflected perfectly by glazed surface of the sea, showing bars, stripes and patches of each colored sail.

3:45 P.M.—A slight breeze crinkles away the sails' reflections and lighter yachts have spread beyond Metchosin. Stormy weather raises a clear plastic jib sail and the laughter of her crew wafts hundreds of yards over the stilly scene.

Run Before Wind

4:10 P.M. — We're in The Race now and the race is really under way. Strong breeze and tide put bones in the teeth of Ladaro, Sulaire and Nimbus as they run before the wind.

Ladaro—first time in the Swiftsure and a virtual unknown—heeled right over on a starboard tack with one gunwhale awash and her crew hanging over the other shouting derisive war whoops back at the bigger eight-metre Sulaire trying vainly to catch them. Instantly, the underdog Larado became the darling of those watching from the Sudbury.

5:15 P.M.—Mighty Oriole, the biggest entry and crawling with RCN cadets, moved majestically under a white cloud of sail through The Race, passing some of the smaller yachts trailing the field. Sky clouding over and the wind kicking over some white caps.

6:30 P.M. — Breeze still strong and the whole field—sails from horizon to horizon—appears heading for the American shore.

8 P.M.—Off Sheringham Point with a good southwest wind and an ebbing tide Sulaire, Winsome III, Maredea; in centre strait Courageous and Oriole; on American side Sea Fever, Odios, Diamond Head, Troubador and gallant little Ladaro.

10 P.M.—It will be a clear night with a good breeze and it's obvious that Ladaro, with an eight-hour time allowance, will win the Swiftsure in her first time out if she keeps up the blistering pace.

5:30 A.M. SUNDAY — Bobbing crazily in the Pacific swell as we watch sails coming through pearly morning light to round RCN Beacon Hill, anchored at the Swiftsure ledge and also bobbing like a cork.

Almost immediately she set her tall spinnaker and grew smaller in the distance as she flew before a steady 20-knot westerly wind, not quite an hour ahead of Courageous which was next to round the mark.

Sub Under Sail

6:30 A.M. — Sulaire rounds Beacon Hill looking for all the world like a submarine under sail. Her sleek, narrow hull and clinging crew members in slickers and life vests completely disappear from view as she drops into each trough. The next moment she's heaved up on the crest of the wave, spewing salt water and showing her rounded hull and part of her keel.

7 TO 8 A.M.—Traffic out here at the edge of the open Pacific is busier than at Douglast and Yates at this hour on Sunday.

Yachts converge on Beacon Hill from both sides, coming 'round two and three abreast, criss-crossing beyond her and raising more spinnakers as they streak for home.

Within the hour more than 30 boats swept around the mark, yoyo-fashion on the heaving ocean swell. Some swung wide and others, trying to save every second, almost scraped the paint off Beacon Hill's stern as they sped by on a hard tack.

10 A.M.—Slowly overtaking Adios dead ahead as Sudbury II hisses through the sea at 10 knots. We've passed one beautiful yacht after another straining to get home. Skies alternately overcast and sunny. Wind steady. Sea Fever and Courageous off the stern, miles back.

And that's the way it ended as crowds on the Ogden Point breakwater cheered Adios over the finish line hours later.

'Pull Together Or Face Ruin

ANTI-SMOKE APPEAL MADE TO BURNERS

Smoke committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow today appealed to apartment and office building owners and householders to join the anti-smoke campaign.

He pointed out firms like B.C. Forest Products have done their bit by installing expensive control machinery to reduce fly ash.

"But I know that a lot of apartment and office buildings take no precautions at all when burning their rubbish and consequently are getting to be as much of a problem as industry was," he said.

Ald. Edgelow said he had heard that government buildings also, specifically naming the post office, were creating a fly ash problem.

SPEAKER at the annual meeting of the B.C. Institute of Chartered Accountants June 14 will be J. O. Hemmingsen, vice-president, logging, for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd. Meeting will take place in the Tally-Ho Travelodge Hotel, June 13-14.

Mayor Hits Parochial Planning

Unless all of Greater Victoria pulls together the impact of increasing urbanization and fragmentized planning could ruin this area, Mayor R. B. Wilson warned today.

"It would be a tragedy—it really would—to spoil one of the most desirable parts of Canada through parochial planning," he said.

He said he was sure Victoria would do its part to prepare and carry out a plan for the good of the entire area.

DELEGATE RIGHTS

"I feel very strongly that the city should be willing to delegate some of its rights and privileges to the common good," Mayor Wilson said.

This would take the form of adoption of a community plan by the Capital Region Planning Board.

He said he was most impressed with the universal recognition at last week's Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Toronto that overall planning for an area was essential for a healthy community.

"There were a large number of people at the convention who voluntarily expressed the opinion that Victoria—meaning undoubtedly southern Vancouver Island—was one of the most beautiful places in Canada.

"That puts a very great responsibility on those of us in civic government here to see this area is not spoiled."

ANALYSIS

The mayor also said city council would analyze a list of capital projects to see which could be undertaken under a new federal plan for establishing a $400,000,000 civic loan fund "as soon as we know what kind of projects will qualify."

He said the city would have to wait introduction of the legislation in the Commons, then choose the projects it would undertake under the program, obtain provincial government endorsement and ratepayer approval for a money bylaw before any work could start.

TIMES STORY BRINGS OFFERS

Carr Fans Save Emily's Home

By LESLIE MILLIN

Emily Carr's last home will be saved from the wreckers.

The little house at 218 St. Andrews Street will be sold, and just who will buy it is uncertain.

But all the offers on the house, since The Times broke the story Saturday that it was for sale, have been made with the intention of preserving the house as a memorial.

Officials of the Canada Permanent Toronto General Trust Company, administrators of the "secret trust" of which the house is a part, confirmed today that "many" offers have been made over the weekend, and that offers are still coming in.

OWNER TO DECIDE

Decision on which offer will be accepted is up to the owner, believed to be Walter Koerner of Vancouver.

But since the highest bid will not necessarily be accepted — "We don't want an auction sale atmosphere," say trust officials — decision will likely be on a first-come-first-served basis that would put the house into the hands of the preservers.

Original asking price for the house was $7,000, and when the house was first put onto the market it was thought by trust officials to be almost inevitable that the historic home would be razed to make room for a high-rise apartment building.

USED AS SCHOOL

The ramshackle, multi-level house—basically a cabin, with lean-tos added—was the property of Emily's sister, Miss Alice Carr, who used it as a house and school.

Emily spent the last few years of her life there, prior to her death in 1945.

Alice lived on until 1953. After her death, the house was occupied successively by artists Jan Zach and Margaret Peterson.

News that the house might be torn down raised a storm among Victoria artists that turned to jubilation today with the news that the home is to be preserved.

CAN RECREATE STUDIO

"The Art Gallery has photographs of the inside of the house taken when Emily occupied it, so that it would be fairly easy to recreate her studio."

Mr. Graham indicated that if the new owner wished to set the house up as an Emily Carr museum or shrine, it would be relatively easy to acquire some of the late artist's works for it.

MANY CURIOUS

There would be no shortage of people wishing to see the house.

Writer Howard O'Hagan, last tenant of the house, told The Times on Saturday that there was a regular flow of people who wanted to see the home.

On Sunday afternoon, curious Victorians visited the house in droves, at one time completely clogging narrow St. Andrews Street with their cars as they tried to get what many thought a "last look" at the Carr home.

Archer Report Still Soaring Out of Reach

Public release of the Archer report on Greater Victoria policing is being delayed "out of courtesy" to municipalities involved, a spokesman for the attorney-general's department said today.

But who will release it?

City and provincial officials seem to have been playing a game of Archer report passing.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the report is a government document and the city couldn't release it.

The attorney-general's spokesman said the report was made at the request of city police commission and he didn't know who would make the release.

"I am sure the government would not unnecessarily delay the release," Mayor Wilson said. "I hope it is released as soon as possible."

The provincial spokesman said the report has been given to the city on a confidential basis and Attorney-General Robert Bonner is interviewing the other reeves one by one to give them the portions relevant to their police forces.

So far, he said, one municipality has been given the report.

Mr. Bonner is in Ottawa this week for Columbia River power talks.

There will be no public release at least until he has seen all the reeves.

Victoria Jaycee Gets Top B.C. Post

Eric Charman, past president of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, Saturday was elected president of B.C. and Yukon Jaycees at the annual convention in Prince George.
